January 6 a well attended meeting of the Yonkers Horticultural Society was held in Wiggin's hall. A. Herrington installed the officers elected for 1911, previously speaking highly of work done by the gentlemen who held office in 1910. He said that the sound position, financial and otherwise, held by the society is due to efforts made by the retiring officers. The president, Lee Whitman, spoke of necessary hard work for the coming year. Invitations were received from the Morris County and Tarrytown Horticultural societies, inviting members to the annual dinner given by each of those bodies. The Yonkers dinner committee was instructed to go ahead and make arrangements for an early date. Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, exhibited cut blooms of some fine forms of Cattleya Trianæ, Lycaste Skinneri alba, Lælia anceps alba, etc. A committee composed of A. Herrington, W. H. Waite and A. Bennett awarded a certificate of merit to the exhibit.

The Market.

The reaction from the holiday rush to the inevitable dullness of early January is nerve racking and pessimistical. But it was ever thus, and history is but repeating itself. Dinners there are a plenty; some of the retailers have half a dozen nightly. Society is fairly active, but, notwithstanding, there is a dullness that is not encouraging and its presence is demonstrated by falling prices when an uplift was hoped for. The shipments are not excessive, so the mild weather of the last two weeks must bear the responsibility. This week, however, opened with a clear, cold snap, and with more seasonable weather improvement in prices and in business may be anticipated.

The price quotations are about all that can be said this week of practical interest. As one of the old-timers expresses it, "The market is dull with a downward tendency." Roses are at their best in quality, and there is a great abundance of both new and old varieties. Carnations are superb in quality, but prices have dropped so that 3 cents at times would buy the best of them. Orchids are abundant and have to be extra good to bring 50 cents. There are plenty of gardenias. No great demand for lilies and valley. The finest are abundant at $3 per hundred. This cold snap will snap the street merchants' violet enterprise, so the disposal of the surplus becomes a burning question. Sweet peas are growing longer and better. Of hyacinths, narcissi, mignonette and green goods there is no lack.

Club Meeting.

The meeting of the Florists' Club January 9 proved to be one of the best of its quarter century career. About 100 were present, and the new president's generous hospitality was heartily enjoyed and appreciated. Mr. Nugent not only supplied a roast beef and turkey banquet, but cigars and liquid refreshments and a splendid musical program.

Ex-President Miller's valedictory was impressive and his welcome to his successor cordial and eloquent. President Nugent, Vice-President Bunyard, Secretary Young, Treasurer Rickards and Trustees Traendly, Totty, Weber and Hendrickson all waxed eloquent in appreciation of the honors given them and in promise of devotion to the club's welfare.

The president appointed the following committees:

Legislative—Messrs. O'Mara, Birnie, Pierson.

Essay—Messrs. Shaw, Siebrecht, Jr., Pepper.

Awards—Messrs. Miller, Totty, Simpson, Sheridan, Traendly, Hogg, Weston, Duckham.

Exhibition—Messrs. Marshall, Turner, Hendrickson, Rossback, Kennedy.

House and Entertainment—Messrs. Berry, Al Rickards, Fenrich.

Annual dinner—Messrs. Weathered, Miller, Schenck, Keuhne, Shaw.

Outing—Messrs. Fenrich, Einsman, Robt. Young, Donaldson, Butterfield, Weber, Scott, Meyer, Chadwick, Langjahr.

P. O'Mara reported progress for the committee having as its object the securing of a $50,000 appropriation by the legislature for the greenhouses at Cornell. He explained fully the publicity methods to be adopted and said the outlook was encouraging, notwithstanding the governor's proclamation of democratic economy.

The club's committee visiting Robert Scott & Son, at Sharon Hill, Pa., reported on its examination of Double Killarney and Melody roses there and gave the former 86 points and Melody 85 points, and to both the club's certificate of merit. Messrs. Totty, Traendly, Turner, Weber, Simpson and Duckham were the delegation.

Messrs. Maynard, Russell and Scommodeau were nominated for membership, and the resignations of L. J. Kreshover and A. E. McDonald accepted with regrets.

The treasurer's report was an elaborate one and most satisfactory, showing a balance in the treasury of $3,920.73. The trustees' report was an economical one, suggesting several retrenchments, most of which were laid on the table. Considerable discussion was indulged in by Messrs. Scott, Weston, O'Mara, Berry, Sheridan, Traendly, Birnie, Marshall, Miller, Manda, Pepper and Schultz, Messrs. Berry, Weston, Scott and Schultz especially championing the interests of the ladies.

Mr. Traendly spoke of the importance of the Boston National Flower Show and the advisability of a transportation committee, as a large delegation from the club will attend. The president appointed Messrs. Traendly, Bunyard and Miller as that committee.

C. B. Weathered read the resolutions of sympathy on the death of the brother of the Manda boys. Committees to draw up resolutions on the deaths of Mrs. Bruggerhof and Mrs. Horan were appointed: Messrs. Pepper, Shaw and Weathered, and Messrs. Sheridan, Young and Butterfield.

The exhibits of the evening were sweet peas from Geo. D. Schuneman, staged by Joseph Fenrich, including Christmas Pink, Mrs. Smalley, Mrs. Alex. Wallace, Mrs. Charles Totty and Watchung, which received a cultural certificate, and a dark crimson seedling carnation, No. 40, and a bright red seedling, No. 66, much resembling Victory, by W. C. Roberts, of Ossining, N. Y., for which the thanks of the club were given. No. 66 scored 88½ points and was much admired.

Various Notes.

C. W. Scott, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., is back from Bermuda. He says the lilies are looking good—no disease—and no overstock. Mrs. Scott accompanied him. They will plant about 50,000 at their Hinode place at Whitestone this season.

The New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association will have a swell dinner at the Café Martin February 2, with no speeches but an abundance of music and vaudeville. All florists and their families are invited. Until this year the dinners have been by special invitation, but now it is "open house" and everybody with $6 in his jeans is welcome.

The banquet season opened Monday evening, with President Nugent's smoker, and will be in full blast January 16, when the Madison society celebrates with a big dinner instead of the usual smoker. The Mansion House, Morristown, is the place, and a big delegation from New York is going. Then, January 18, the Tarrytown dinner takes place, Red Bank's dinner the same night, while at the Grand Central Palace that evening 5,000 Greek-Americans, under the auspices of the Greek-American Florists' Association, will celebrate in concert, dance and wine. Several New Yorkers have arranged to do Tarrytown and the Greek ball the same night. Following these in rapid succession will come the Glen Cove, Bay Shore, Elberon, Yonkers, Poughkeepsie and Dobbs Ferry feasts fraternal, and, last but not least, the dinner of the New York Florists' Club in February.

David MacFarlane, of Tarrytown, is back from a five weeks' vacation in Colorado.

The good wishes of the seedsmen follow David Adam, formerly of Thorburn's, in his engagement with the Michell Co., of Philadelphia.

The Forster Mansfield $7,000 lattice decoration may be seen this week at the Madison Square Garden auto show. It is receiving much favorable notice from the metropolitan dailies.

Bowling.

The Alex D. Shaw prize, a bottle of champagne, for the high score of the evening, was won January 6 by A. Kakuda. The scores were:

HOW A SAMPLE WORKS.

Every now and then some reader of The Review hands a sample copy of the paper to one of the not large number of florists whom the publishers have not yet been able to reach. This is the way it works:

From what we have seen of The Review, we think it will do us good to join your family, so here is a dollar and a wish for a happy New Year.—H. D. Whitney & Son, Concord, N. H., January 1, 1911.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The looked for improvement in market conditions has not yet arrived. Prices have declined from a week ago in nearly every case, and while on some days there is a fairly good clean-up, there has been no snap to business such as we might naturally expect early in January. Roses are abundant and selling lower; in fact, quite a few are now seen in the fakers' hands in company with carnations, violets and bulbous stock. Beauties are rather scarce, but there is an excellent supply of fine Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond and Rhea Reid. Mrs. Aaron Ward continues to sell well. Not many Maryland arrive here, but some seen are of a fine color and excellent quality. Carnations have also softened in price. The variable weather has affected the quality. Violets for some reason have taken a decided slump; 50 cents per hundred is as much as fine flowers are bringing, not a few going for half that figure. It is years since such low prices ruled at this season on violets.

Sweet peas are arriving in large quantities and the quality steadily improves. Paper White narcissi and Roman hyacinths are overabundant. Tulips and Trumpet daffodils are also becoming quite plentiful and have dropped in value. Some fine freesia is arriving, Purity, as usual, being the best. Marguerites are among the flowers which are selling well, yellows going especially well. Lily of the valley is improving in quality, the foliage now being much better than a month ago. Some splendid mignonette is coming in, also antirrhinum in several colors. Gardenias continue quite scarce. There is now a good supply of Cattleya Trianæ, while Lælia anceps, Phalænopsis grandiflora, cypripediums and some dendrobriums are also procurable.

Easter lilies are plentiful, as are callas. In miscellaneous flowers there is now quite a variety, and some of these sell better than the standard flowers. There is a temporary shortage in best quality adiantum. Trade in greenery has been rather quiet, while plant trade also seemed rather dull. This, however, is usual at this season.

Horticultural Society.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, January 7, it was announced that George Robert White, who had previously donated $2,500, the interest to be devoted to a medal of honor annually, has increased his donation to $5,000. In addition to eminent workers in the realms of horticulture in America, it was the donor's wish that it could, if desired, be conferred from time to time on horticulturists abroad. The committee appointed at a preceding meeting to name the recipient of the medal, consisting of C. S. Sargent, Thomas Roland and J. K. M. L. Farquhar, recommended that it be awarded to Jackson Dawson. The trustee board confirmed this recommendation. The first medal struck was awarded to Prof. Sargent.

At the annual meeting of the society January 7 the new president, C. W. Parker, was prevented by illness from being present. The treasurer's report showed gross receipts for the year $20,018.06; expenditures, $18,657.37; balance, $1,360.67. Receipts from hall rentals about doubled during the year. The society has received $9,117 in bequests during the year. Several members spoke and hoped that the proposed structural changes, which were vitally needed, would not be shelved. It was estimated that an expenditure of $150,000 would insure an annual income of $15,000 from hall rentals, against $3,000 received during the last year.

There were some interesting exhibits placed before the plant and flower committee. Duncan Finlayson received a silver medal for superior culture of calanthes, the finest ever staged here. The variety, Orpetiana, was distinct. Other varieties were: McWilliamsii, Sandhurstiana, Veitchii compacta and Veitchii. Mr. Finlayson also received a first-class certificate for the new Cymbidium Holfordianum (C. eburneum x C. grandiflorum). E. B. Dane, Donald McKenzie, gardener, had some choice orchids. For Cypripedium Albert Hye x C. villosum aureum he received a silver medal, also first-class certificates for Cypripediums Niobe nigrum and insigne Sanderæ x Leeanum. He also showed Phalænopsis Rimestadtiana and Dendrobium Phalænopsis. Mrs. J. L. Gardner, William Thatcher, gardener, showed two good forms of Cattleya Trianæ, also Eranthemum pulchellum and a plant of the cactus flowering cineraria.

The annual lecture course of the society opens January 14, the speaker being J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia. The hour of the lectures has been changed from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m.

Various Notes.

Neal Boyle, of Malden, grows 10,000 Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond roses. These he produces of fine quality, the bulk being sold at wholesale. Mr. Boyle has also 10,000 giganteum lilies just peeping through the soil and intended for Easter. He finds these latter do better in a temperature of 65 degrees after being housed.

J. W. Simpson, of Woburn, who is one of the most successful growers for the Boston Coöperative Flower Market, is handling some extra fine yellow Marguerites, in addition to his other staples.

No finer mignonette has ever been seen in the Boston market than William Nicholson, of Framingham, is now sending in. His Purity freesia, marguerites and carnations are all of top-notch quality.

Thomas Roland, of Nahant, is just finishing a fine cut of Cattleya Trianæ. They started to flower the middle of December and, coming in while orchids were scarce, netted excellent prices.

John Barr, of South Natick, has a house containing 2,000 cyclamens for early spring trade, which are models of careful culture. His carnation houses are a veritable mass of buds and blooms. Specially fine are Beacon, Pink Delight, Winsor, White Perfection and several seedlings which are given considerable bench space. The Queen is still grown and does so well that Mr. Barr is not yet ready to discard it.

W. S. Phelps, of Marlboro, has been sending in some excellent bunches of pink and white centaureas all winter, also excellent antirrhinums and Enchantress carnations, these being handled at 2 Park street by J. M. Cohen.

John J. Fee, of Jamaica Plain, is one of our best bulb specialists. This season Mr. Fee has some of the best tulips, narcissi and other flowers we have seen.

Moses Penn, the well known Roxbury florist, was married January 5. At the wedding reception were aldermen, congressmen and other notables, showing the esteem in which Mr. Penn is held.

From the Exeter Greenhouses, G. W. Hilliard proprietor, Exeter, N. H., some fine Chatenay and other roses are daily consigned to J. S. Manter at the Boston Flower Exchange. New Hampshire grown roses are equal in quality to any in the country.

H. M. Robinson & Co. state that trade since Christmas has been good. Valley has been in active demand. Of Beauties they are not able to get an adequate supply at present. Cattleyas are good sellers. Business in the sundries department also is good.

Arnold & Petros, at their new Boylston street store, had an effective pyramidal arrangement of Carnation Winsor last week, going the full height of the window, rising from a bed of yellow daffodils. This new firm is doing an excellent business.

Edgar Bros., of Waverley, have three large houses in sweet peas. One has been producing for some time. Another is just coming in crop, while a third contains many of the Spencer type for spring blooming. All are looking extremely well.

Ladies' night, for which a fine entertainment is prepared, and installation of officers are expected to draw a crowd of 300 to the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, January 17. Many new members will be added.

Frank P. Putnam's skillful grower, Charles Anderson, in addition to superb White Perfection, Enchantress and other carnations, has also added white stocks to his shipments from North Tewksbury.

Welch Bros. are selling agents for the new rose, Hilda, which attracts considerable notice at the better class stores. They are this season carrying a superb stock of Beauties, Richmond, Killarney, Maryland and other roses, and business is excellent in all departments at the big Devonshire street emporium.

Matthew F. Ruane, the genial salesman for Peirce Bros., who recently epened a flower store in Waltham, has just added a fine new ice-chest and made other improvements in his store. He has found business good from the start.

Local carnationists, who make a specialty of rooted cuttings, are experiencing an excellent demand for them this season. Pink Delight, which propagates less easily than other varieties, is in strong request.

J. Newman & Sons had a charming table centerpiece of delicate pink sweet peas in one of their windows January 7, resting on green velvet, which was admired by many passersby on this busy thoroughfare. Funeral work, which is a great specialty here, keeps the firm busy about all the time.

A local violet grower last week left 1,400 fine singles with a salesman, telling him not to take less than 75 cents per hundred for them. Fifty cents per hundred was offered and declined. A day later the whole lot were disposed of for $2. Anyone can draw a moral from this who wishes.

W. N. Craig.

Catskill, N. Y.—Henry Hansen is planning a new house, to be built at the first favorable opportunity. Business through the entire season has been highly satisfactory.

NEWS NOTES

Troy, N. Y.—George Sambrook has been serving on the grand jury at an extremely busy time.

Ottawa, Ont.—Mr. Wright is adding six new houses this season. They are 22x400 feet each, and are of King construction.

Rochester, N. Y.—Thomas Cogger has presented a petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities amount to $2,046.45 and his resources are said to be worth $100.

Watervliet, N. Y.—During the holiday season Henry Hannell sent into Troy some of the finest Brides, Maids and Killarneys ever seen by the Trojans, and swelled his bank account proportionately.

Forest City, Ia.—At Secor's Hill City Greenhouses the boiler gave out January 1. Fifty oil heaters kept the place from freezing up until repairs were made January 2, just before the temperature fell to 24 degrees below zero.

Lake Charles, La.—C. D. Otis, who has been at Port Arthur, Tex., in charge of the work at the Port Arthur Nursery, which John W. Gates has sold to the Griffing Bros. Co., as reported in The Review of January 5, has returned here to push along his Lake Charles business.

Slingerlands, N. Y.—Fred Goldring says the grower deserves lots of sympathy during backward seasons, when he is doing his level best to make the buds open. It was a job around the holidays, when the demand was greater than usual, but he did pretty well and the buyers appreciate it.

Woodbine, Ia.—The entire stock in the greenhouses of the Woodbine Floral Co. was frozen on New Year's night, as a result of the bursting of the boiler. The manager, A. D. Curtiss, stated that business would be resumed in about two weeks, or as soon as a new boiler could be installed.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Geo. H. Bowditch, of the Lamborn Floral Co., Alliance, O., was in town attending the funeral of his brother, C. B. Bowditch, gardener at the Soldiers' Home. The Lamborn Floral Co. sent a bunch of 100 select Killarney roses to the funeral. The local florists sent numerous floral designs.

Fond du Lac, Wis.—L. E. Sawicke, manager of the Fourth Street Greenhouse Co., reports that early on the morning of January 5 his boiler exploded. The outside temperature at the time was 22 degrees below zero and the damage to the stock was great, in spite of energetic efforts to provide temporary means of heating.

Helena, Mont.—The employees of the State Nursery Co. were the guests of Manager T. E. Mills and Mrs. Mills at a dinner in the Mills residence, December 29. Thirty were present. Mr. Mills occupied the chair, and Walter Card the vice-chair. The dinner was followed by music and other forms of entertainment. The host and hostess were surprised by the presentation to them of a handsome cut glass water set. The address of presentation was made by J. W. Jackson, seconded by J. W. Mallinson.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Special convention and National Flower Show, Boston, Mass., March 26 to April 1, 1911.

Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18, 1911.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

Now is the time to advertise your carnation cuttings.

When is a florist not a florist? When he has no printed letter-head for his business correspondence.

Says a keen observer: "The improvement of a publication is measured by the volume of advertising carried."

Violets are having a bad season, returns to growers in practically all wholesale markets being much below those of other seasons.

Pink Delight is not one of the easiest of carnations to root, but it is one of the easiest to sell, either cuttings or cut blooms.

If "Beginner," who asks about chrysanthemums, will send his name and address his inquiry will be answered. Anonymous inquiries cannot be replied to.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

Jackson Dawson, of Jamaica Plain, Mass., has been awarded the second George Robert White medal of honor for distinguished services to horticulture. The medal was pictured in The Review for December 8.

When a florist tells you business is poor, ask him just how poor it is and usually he will say, ruefully: "Not over ten per cent ahead of last year." So many in the trade have become accustomed to doubling sales every three or four years that they cannot be reconciled to anything less.

THE OLDEST SUBSCRIBER.

I commenced taking The Review with Vol. 1, No. 1, and think I can use it one year more, so inclose the dollar. If I live three months more I shall be 85 years of age. I am taking entire charge of my greenhouse. M. H. Mills, Binghamton, N. Y.

THE PLANT MAILING RADIUS.

One of the large eastern mail order plantsmen recently made a test to see for himself the condition of his stock after going through the mails for long distances. To do this one of the mailing tubes made by the Standard Manufacturing Co., which are used for the regular shipments, was used. The tube was 3x20 inches and contained several plants. It was sent by mail to a point in Alaska. The party to whom the package was addressed was asked to mail it back as soon as received, without opening it or disturbing the contents. This was done, and the tube and contents arrived in due time at the point from which it was originally mailed, and both package and contents were found in good condition after having traveled approximately 10,000 miles.

OBITUARY.

George W. Budlong.

George W. Budlong, 80 years of age, the oldest resident of Norwood, R. I., died Monday, January 2, following a shock on the previous night. He was born in the old homestead between the railroad track and the Pawtucket river, on September 20, 1830, and was the next to the oldest of nine children of George Washington Budlong. The deceased had always conducted the farm, raising garden truck, carnations and other flowers until his health compelled him to give it up. He is survived by a wife and one daughter, Mrs. Nels G. Pierson, whose husband has taken over the floriculture and extended the greenhouse ranges.

Charles Brice Bowditch.

Charles Brice Bowditch, for thirteen years florist at the Michigan Soldiers' Home, died after a week's illness of pneumonia at his home, 1012 Hall street, Grand Rapids. He was 43 years old. He came from England to Grand Rapids twenty-one years ago, and is survived by a mother, three brothers and a sister. He belonged to the Elks, the Woodmen of the World and the Masons. Grand River Lodge, No. 4, F. & A. M., had charge of the funeral. Mr. Bowditch was a nephew of Mrs. F. A. Chapman, florist of Grand Rapids and now retired. He came to Mrs. Chapman's on his arrival in this country, and after Mr. Chapman's retirement from the business, conducted his greenhouses until his appointment to the position he held when he died.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The severely cold weather in the middle of last week had the usual effect upon the demand for flowers and caused a considerable accumulation of stock, with the result that the end of the week was marked by the movement of a great quantity of flowers in certain lines at prices such as always are necessary whenever old stock is to be cleaned up. The accumulation was particularly unwieldy in the line of flowers for corsage work; violets naturally are slow sale when people cannot wear them out of doors. Carnations also accumulated and were cleaned up at cheap prices on Saturday. Last week there was an abundance in practically every line, except Beauties; these stiffened in price, where most other lines weakened.

The present week opened with milder temperature and the absence of any special city demands, but with exceptionally good shipping trade. Prices are moderate, but there is a tendency toward stiffer rates for roses and the probability that other flowers will sell better now that the rose crops are on the down grade.

Beauties are in good request; the supply is not excessive and only part of the receipts can be called strictly first-class. Roses are much less plentiful than they have been. White, which was a glut around Christmas time, is now no greater than the demand. There is an abundance of roses of the special long grades; in fact, for many weeks these extra fancy flowers have not been bringing prices in proportion to their quality; the best demand, and relatively the best price, has been for the

Notice of Removal

We are now located in our big new double store on the street floor at 19 and 21 Randolph Street, 2nd building east of Wabash Avenue, where we have

More than double the floor space previously used.

The removal has been made necessary by the large increase in our business in 1910, and is in line with our settled policy of years' standing, to always maintain our space and facilities a step ahead of the needs and development of our business. We shall continue as heretofore to devote our undivided attention to wholesaling cut flowers only.

medium lengths. Short roses are again coming into demand and prices are a little firmer. The quality of the long Killarney and Richmond leaves nothing to be desired.

Carnations are plentiful. Last week cheap sales were necessary to clean up, but buyers always come into the market when they can get first-class carnations at moderate prices, with the result that the stock is moving better this week. Violets are in large supply and selling cheaply for January. Sweet peas are much more abundant than they have been and much of the stock is of superlative quality. There is plenty of valley, stock now being seen from the new season's crop of pips as well as from the cold storage stock. There has been large increase in the receipts of orchids and first-class cattleyas are now in abundant supply, with prices down to the point where the retailers are taking hold more freely than usual. Easter lilies are plentiful and callas are coming in freely. The receipts of tulips are heavier, but most of the stock still is short-stemmed and white is the prevailing color. There is a large supply of Romans and Paper Whites are a glut, but wholesalers believe that with the passing of the heavy supply of white roses, the bulb stock will now have a better outlet. Stevia seems to be about all cut out.

There is little change in the green goods situation. There is plenty of boxwood and enough of all other greens. Adiantum moves slowly and only at prices considerably below those of other years. On the whole, the ferns now being received are not up to the mark in quality.

Removal of the Amling Co.

When a family changes its domicile between two days it usually means an effort to dodge the creditors, but when a busy business house does the same thing it signifies merely the desire to effect the change of base with the least possible inconvenience to patrons.

The E. C. Amling Co. did business, as usual, at 32 and 34 Randolph street Friday, January 6, and Saturday, January 7, in the big new store on the street floor at 19 and 21 Randolph street. Most of the wholesalers dropped in to extend felicitations and the smile on the face of practically every customer indicated that the enlargement of facilities is appreciated.

The new store, back of the first thirty feet, used as an office, has a depth of 135 feet and is forty feet wide. The receiving and shipping departments are in the rear, with a loading platform on a wide alley. The new ice-box is one of the deepest in town, being 10x30 and eight feet three inches high. There is large wrapping and table space, and good light.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club did two months' business in one night, January 5, and then sat down to a dinner. Election was a mere formality. Installation should occur at the February meeting, but, under a suspension of the rules, was put through immediately after the unanimous election. The new officers are:

President—H. E. Philpott.
Vice-president—A. C. Kohlbrand.
Secretary—A. T. Pyfer.
Treasurer—E. F. Winterson.
Trustees—H. N. Bruns, Alex Henderson and John P. Degnan.

President Philpott appointed the following standing committees:

Transportation—P. J. Foley, H. B. Howard, E. F. Winterson.
Sports—A. Zech, Wm. Graff, W. Wolf.

Mike Fink was designated as sergeant-at-arms "during good behavior."

Before President Asmus laid down the reins he appointed H. E. Philpott, H. N. Bruns and A. T. Pyfer a committee to draft resolutions on the death of J. F. Klimmer, and on motion of L. H. Winterson the president, or, in his absence, vice-president, was authorized to act in the matter of sending flowers to the homes of deceased members; in the past what has been everybody's business has sometimes turned out to be nobody's business.

The following were elected to membership:

J. W. Starrett, 5657 Saginaw avenue.
Wm. Wolniewicz, 1214 School street.
J. W. Schmid, 913 Montana street.
Nic Karthauser, 6656 Ridge avenue.
Geo. Gobel, 2242 Warren avenue.
A. Malchow, 3743 North Clark street.
Guy M. Reburn, 51 Wabash avenue.
V. Bezdek, Wilmette, Ill.
H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.

Proposals were as follows:

C. L. Sherer, 4931 Superior street.
Max Cohen, care E. C. Amling Co.
W. L. Kroeschell, care Kroeschell Bros. Co.
E. F. Winterson, Jr., 45 Wabash avenue.
J. Wolniewicz, 1214 School street.

Among the fifty-four persons present were E. O. Orpet, Lake Forest, Ill.; George Brown, Greenfield, Mich., and A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn. The latter showed the new roses, Prince de Bulgarie and Dark Pink Killarney, each of which was given a certificate of merit by the committee headed by F. F. Benthey. W. N. Rudd showed a red carnation, No. 35-08, which was given a certificate. Honorable mention was made of a vase of Carnation Washington shown by the Chicago Carnation Co.

At the close of the business session, adjournment was to the main dining room of the Union hotel, where dinner was served. It was Dutch treat, but the arrangements were in charge of that skilled purveyor, Vice-President Kohlbrand. F. F. Benthey acted as toastmaster and gave opportunity for speech to nearly half of those present, beginning with the new officers and the visitors. When P. J. Foley was called on he made a most serious talk, presenting to George Asmus, as a testimonial from the club members, a large tin watch. As the real testimonial, an exceedingly thin gold timekeeper, suitably engraved, was not immediately forthcoming, the retiring president was for a few minutes quite uncertain as to "where he was at."

Various Notes.

Among the season's substantial additions to greenhouse area will be eight houses to be erected at High Ridge by the Evert Bros. John Evert will add three houses, each 31x150, and Nick Evert will put up five houses, each 30x150. It is understood that the Pittsburg Plate Glass Co. will supply the 1,400 boxes of glass required and that the Moninger Co. is milling the roof material.

Wendland & Keimel have not yet closed a contract for new houses, but they bought the glass in November and it is the general impression that work will shortly be started on a range of fourteen houses.

Wietor Bros. are busy putting in cuttings. Young stock has always been an important item of their yearly sales.

Henry Van Gelder says that Percy Jones is finding more than the usual demand for carnation cuttings.

Glass is not high; 16x18 D. S. A. is selling in carload lots at about $2.15, and D. S. B. at about $2 per box.

The Poehlmann sweet peas are no longer dropping their buds. It took some time to get the mastery of the situation, but the vines are now flowering heavily.

Phil Schupp says that J. A. Budlong has over 200,000 valley pips in cold storage.

C. W. McKellar says his advices from the east are that there will be no further shortage of orchids this season.

The Flower Growers' Market stockholders held their annual meeting last week. Directors were elected as follows: John Sinner, Frank Beu, Alex Henderson, Hertha V. Tonner, Amelia Schaeffer. The directors will meet in a few days to elect officers and decide various questions now pending.

John P. Degnan, of Winterson's Seed Store, says that ever since the flower show they have had calls for the Castle Gould celosia.

Peter Reinberg will try out a number of the new roses next season, including Rose Queen, Melody and Double Pink Killarney.

Sinner Bros., Poehlmann Bros. Co., Zech & Mann and the Chicago Carnation Co. each distributed New Year's calendars.

John Kruchten reports that the buyers are again beginning to take an interest in boxwood, the sale for which fell off after Christmas.

Vaughan & Sperry say they attribute the falling off in demand for and price of adiantum to the large use now made of Mexican ivy.

Kyle & Foerster say they have had an exceptionally good business in the last few days. They look to see Paper Whites, the worst drag, do better from this time on.

A. L. Randall is on the job again this week, after being confined to the house for several days by a bad cold.

Adam Zender is cutting a fine crop of Killarney and Richmond. Part of his cut is sent to Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, and part to Dom. Freres, in the Flower Growers' Market.

Word comes from O. P. Bassett that he has the foundations in for his new home in Pasadena.

W. E. Lynch, at E. H. Hunt's, says January 9 brought a larger number of shipping orders than any other day of the year to date.

There was a meeting of a number of wholesalers at the office of Bassett & Washburn January 11 to discuss the project of a joint removal to the new building the University of Chicago is putting up at the corner of Lake and Market streets. The artificial refrigeration, the other facilities, and the price of space looks good to many of the houses and it was decided to send around a paper for signature to see how many will go and how much floor space each will require.

The bad weather January 11 cut down the number who participated in the excursion given by the Chicago Carnation Co. to its plant at Joliet, but there was a merry carload on the 11:45 train. Luncheon was served on arrival at the greenhouses, after which there was a couple of hours for inspection of the greenhouses before catching the 4:15 train back to the city. Carnation Washington was the principal object of interest, for practically all the growers either have or are planning to order stock of this dark pink sport of Enchantress.

Fleischman has a flower store at the Coliseum this week, No. 7 Commonwealth avenue, advertised by the electric company as a street of model stores with model lighting.

Lubliner & Trinz are opening a new flower store at Portland, Ore. S. G. Lubliner is in charge.

Kennicott Bros. Co. has had a large supply of poinsettias in the last week, but says the sale for them practically ended with New Year's.

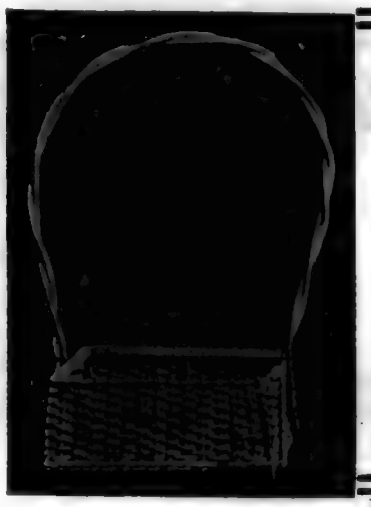
CINCINNATI.



The Gateway to the South.

The market seems to have returned to its normal midwinter condition. A practical sufficiency of all kinds of stock is here to meet the demands; in fact, some lines are long on really first-class stock. The prices are down to the bottom, considering the time of the year. The out-of-town demand for all lines has been strong.

The supply of roses is steady. Some growers are cutting stronger, while others are going out of crop. Beauties, Killarney and White Killarney are the leaders in quality, with the other roses as extremely close seconds. The Beauties are a little short in quantity at present and clean up readily; the request is especially for medium grades.

Carnations, for the first time since the extraordinary crop of last autumn, are showing signs of accumulating. White and light colors sell readily, while the darker shades move much more slowly. At times even the good old Enchantress fails to attract the buyer's eye.

The market is well supplied in other lines. Lily of the valley sell well. This is also true of longiflorums and callas. New York double violets have been in strong supply and the latter part of last week and the early part of this week have sold nicely, but at low prices. Single violets are coming in stronger than they were. Narcissi and Romans are a superfluity. Good poinsettias are arriving daily and promise to do so for a fortnight to come. The supply of green goods is good in all lines except plumosus, the supply of which equals about half the request.

Club Meeting.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held at Wm. Murphy's salesroom at 311 Main street, on Monday night, January 9. In numbers it was surely as large, if not larger, than the annual meeting at Gus Adrian's last July. It seems that whenever the club meets at some other place than the club rooms more of the boys remember the meeting. James B. Allan, A. J. Horning and Mr. Mueller were admitted to membership. The flower show next autumn came up for discussion, and judging from the spirit displayed seems an assured fact. E. G. Gillett, R. Witterstaetter, Dan Carmichael, Wm. Murphy, H. Greensmith and Max Rudolph gave especially effective addresses on the subject. Wm. Murphy and President C. E. Critchell then refreshed the rusted, red-hot alimentary pipes of the florists with eats and drinks. The club unanimously gave them a vote of thanks for their hospitality. A vase of C. E. Murphy's new seedling red carnation favorably impressed the assembly.

Various Notes.

Charles Murphy's carnations are blooming so fast and the quality is so good that they find a waiting market.

C. E. Critchell has been long on some excellent New York double violets.

Julius Dilloff, representing Schloss Bros., of New York city, was a caller last week.

L. H. Kyrk is in receipt of a communication from a relative who expressed amazement at the high prices carnations retailed at in her town. The letter states, "The florist sold every carnation he had at 75 cents per dozen!" Mr. Kyrk has been receiving regular consignments of very good sweet peas during the last fortnight.

P. J. Olinger reports a loss of about 300 lights that were broken by the recent high winds at his New Castle greenhouse plant.

Geo. Klotter, of West Price Hill, also reports a loss of glass by the wind.

QUALITY IN RIBBONS is as necessary to the florist as the quality of your flowers and plants. High-grade ribbons do not necessarily mean high in price. If you buy your ribbons at first hand, direct from the manufacturer, and cut out all between profits, you get quality in your ribbons at prices no more than what you pay for cheap grades. The only way to prove to you that Pine Tree Ribbons are of superior quality is for you to order a few pieces of Ribbon for trial. If not of superior quality and reasonably priced, return them.

Order but a few pieces. We manufacture all kinds—Taffeta, Satin, Fancy, Gauze—narrow, medium and wide widths. Write for sample clippings of our different grades (these sample clippings are free), make your selection and give Pine Tree Ribbons a trial.

Remember, you save all between profits when you buy from PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The cut flower market is in poor shape; business is dull, with prices low and irregular. Conditions have changed materially since the holidays. The heavy crop of roses is passing. It would hardly be correct to say has passed, for there are still a good many, although their decreasing number is shown in better average prices. Carnations, on the contrary, have increased in numbers. Prices have fallen; the Wards are now obtainable at the figures quoted for best Enchantress a week ago. White carnations drag. Accumulations of ordinary white are jobbed off at low prices. Sweet peas are extremely fine; generally speaking, the best sell much more readily at the highest listed prices than do the poor peas at the lowest prices. Lavender have not always as long stems as the pink and white. Cattleyas are fine and plentiful; when pushed they go fairly well at prevailing prices, which are about half those asked at Christmas. Gardenias are in splendid shape, but the market for them is dull. Violets suffer with their bosom friends (may I be allowed this joke once more?). Lilac is in good supply, the quality very fine. Paper Whites are tremendously plentiful and can generally be sold at some price. Romans are cheap and rather interfere with the sale of lower grade valley. High grade valley sells moderately, but the supply is in excess of the demand. Lilies drag, though callas are more active than the Easter variety. Daffodils are increasing in numbers. Yellow tulips have made their appearance. Pansies are in fair request. Greens sell well, generally speaking, asparagus particularly so.

Christmas Plants.

The street asserts in a positive sort of way that a member of a prominent firm said the other day that the Christmas plants offered by his house this season were the finest that he had ever handled. Inasmuch as this firm stands for the plant rather than the cut flower as a Christmas present, and in view of the large increase in the demand for plants this season, a few notes about them seem timely. It was learned that a large number of the Christmas plants in question were grown at Forty-ninth and Market streets; that these plants were considered so perfect that an especially heavy advance order for them was placed. So Robert A. Craig was interviewed on the subject. Mr. Craig has done as much, perhaps a little more, than anyone else in this city to advance the blooming plant standard by his cultural skill and enthusiasm.

"Poinsettias were most popular in the medium sizes when made up. Five small plants in an 8-inch pan, when combined with ferns, were effective. Next in popular favor came the 7-inch azalea pans, three-quarters the depth of an ordinary pot. These contained three small poinsettias, selected for the size of their bracts, and some green. Every poinsettia order included some small plants in 3-inch and in 4-inch pots for basket work. The salmon-pink cyclamen made a color addition that was popular. All colors in cyclamens went well excepting one shade of pink that fades an ugly blue. The smaller cyclamens were also freely used in baskets and hampers. The azaleas went particularly well. Perhaps this was due to the fact that we only grew three varieties, all bright colors. One of these, Hexe, failed to come in time, but will prove useful during January. The medium sizes of begonias were most in request. The Lonsdale Lorraine is most called for in Philadelphia, the older type outside of Philadelphia, where the Lonsdale type is unknown. Agatha has been discarded. We did not push Glory of Cincinnati, as the stock was limited. Ficus pandurata sold better than ever before in its history, both single and branching. I think the market for this plant is broadening. Crotons were eagerly

Some Splendid New Roses

Robert Scott & Son's Introductions

MELODY The New Irish Rose, will fill a long felt want for a good commercial yellow, one of the most beautiful yellows ever put on the market, a remarkably free bloomer, freer than any other rose on the market today. With its rich, glossy green, red-tinged foliage and its beautiful, well formed, yellow bud, it has met with wonderful success wherever we have sold the cut blooms during the past season.

MELODY, own root, $6.00 per dozen; $30.00 per 100; $70.00 per 250; $250.00 per 1000. 2½-inch pots, delivery during March. Orders for cut blooms in quantity on short notice, $10.00, $12.00 and $15.00 per 100.

KILLARNEY needs no introduction to the rose growers of this country.

DOUBLE KILLARNEY has all its good points and in addition is a stronger grower, has far more petals and larger flowers.

DOUBLE KILLARNEY, own root, $4.00 per dozen; $20.00 per 100; $40.00 per 250; $150.00 per 1000. For grafted, $10.00 extra per 100. 2½-inch pots, delivery during March.

Orders on both these roses are and have been coming in far ahead of our expectations, including some of the largest orders ever booked on new roses. Our advice is, get your orders in early, as they will be filled strictly in rotation. Write for our Illustrated List, containing the introducers' descriptions.

E. G. Hill's Introductions

ROSE QUEEN We believe, has a wonderful future; something very distinct, entirely different from any rose now on the market. We are booking orders for March delivery, 50c each; $35.00 per 100 (25 at 100 rate); $300.00 per 1000; $5.00 per 100 additional for grafts.

MRS. AARON WARD $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000; own root, January delivery. $25.00 per 100 for strong grafts in March.

A. N. Pierson's Introductions

PRINCE DE BULGARIE Cut blooms sold in New York as Mrs. Taft. Large flowers of a beautiful shell pink, perfect stems and foliage. As this is such a strikingly beautiful rose, besides being a good grower and free bloomer, it is sure to be a big success commercially.

Grafted stock, 2¼-inch pots, $3.00 per dozen; $20.00 per 100; $180.00 per 1000. Own root stock, 2½-inch pots, $2.50 per dozen; $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

LADY CROMWELL A sport of My Maryland, same habits excepting in color, a shell pink outside, shading deeper towards the center, which is a creamy yellow.

Grafted plants, each, 75c; $6.00 per dozen; $10.00 per 25; $17.50 per 50; $30.00 per 100; $70.00 per 250; $250.00 per 1000.

DARK PINK KILLARNEY A sport of Killarney, identical in habits with the parent, excepting much darker in color.

Grafted plants, 2¼-inch pots, 40c each; $3.00 per dozen; $20.00 per 100; $180.00 per 1000.

sought. The idea that a croton is not a midwinter plant is erroneous. Leaf dropping in winter is due to overwatering. Crotons must be kept dry in the house. A feature of the Christmas demand was the repeat orders for ferns. These were used with great freedom in baskets and hampers of the fancy-leaved varieties of the Boston type."

Various Notes.

Edward Reid left for the south January 4, returning January 10.

Dr. Herman spoke on "The Amateur's Summer Garden" before the Germantown Horticultural Society in Association hall, January 9.

Stephen Poryzees, brother of Charles P. Poryzees, has opened a flower and fruit store next to the Columbia hotel, in Chester, Pa.

George Carson Boyd, Wilmington, Del., and Mrs. M. McAllister, of Passaic, N. J., were recent visitors.

Among the growers who called at S. S. Pennock-Meehan's to meet A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., last week were Frank P. Myers, Alexander B. Scott, Adolph Farenwald, Eugene Bernheimer, Victor Croshens and Edward Towill.

A Boston retailer has written to his Philadelphia correspondent asking for the Princeton rose in response to a customer's inquiry.

J. D. Nevius will lecture at Michell's on "The Importance of Poultry as a Farm Product," January 23, at 518 Market street.

Work is being pushed on the new building, at Twelfth and Race streets, of the Leo Niessen Co.

Edward Towill, Roslyn, Pa., has a seedling red rose of great size. It is a cross between J. B. Clark and Richmond that the knowing ones say should be watched.

Albin Harvey & Sons, Brandywine Summit, Pa., are cutting particularly fine pink and white sweet peas.

Walter P. Stokes is gratified by the active demand from the south for early tomatoes, which are his specialty.

A dear little baby girl arrived at J. Liddon Pennock's January 9. Isn't that fine! William J. manages, Gilbert sells and Miss Mary finances.

W. H. Taplin, formerly with Charles D. Ball and now with Eugene Daille-douze, is slated for the February meeting of the Florists' Club. His subject will be "Carnations of Today." Progress has been made by the committee of the Florists' Club, which is trying to improve our shows, and if the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society is willing a guarantee fund will be raised.

W. S. Adams and Harry Wintzer have been added to the Michell force, with George Hampton.

Eugene Bernheimer has shown a sample basket of wonderfully perfect tomatoes picked at the Florex Gardens.

Although, after the holiday rush, business generally drops off considerably, it can be said that the last week, with quite a run of funeral work and a few odds and ends of trade, was a good one. SEFTON CORRUGATED SHIPPING CASES

STRONG, LIGHT AND CONVENIENT

WHY use heavy wooden Boxes for Shipments of Flowers and Plants when you can get a box better adapted to your needs, weighing about one-half as much?

Our Boxes are made to fold flat; thus insuring economy in storage space and enables the commission merchant to knock them down and return them in bundles, reducing return charges--they can be used over and over.

Our Patented K. D. Tin Corner is the only satisfactory K.D. corner ever adapted to a Corrugated Shipping Case. It gives you a perfectly flat box. Costs no more than set up corners.

equal to the demand, while in carnations a few more good ones could have been disposed of. If we get a liberal supply of sunshine, most of the carnation growers will be "right there with the goods," so they say.

In the other lines of cut flowers, such as violets, sweet peas, bulbous stock, stevias, valley and lilies, the supply is large enough to fill any and all orders at all times. Of green goods there is plenty at this time.

Club Meeting.

The first meeting of the year, held January 5, was attended by fifteen members. Wm. Zimmermann, as master of ceremonies, most ably installed the following as officers for the year 1911: President, H. V. Hunkel; vice-president, Arthur Leidiger; secretary, Gust. Mueller; treasurer, John G. Heitman; trustee for three years, A. F. Kellner; trustee for two years, Fred Holton.

In view of the fact that the guarantors of the 1910 flower show received a twenty-five per cent dividend on the amount signed, the club's treasury received $600, with more to come, as its share of the net profits of last year's show. It was also voted to hold another grand flower show in the Auditorium in November, 1911.

President Hunkel appointed Messrs. Halliday, Zimmermann, Holton and Rusch, with the last mentioned as chairman, to serve as the entertainment committee for the ensuing year.

C. Dallwig, as a committee of one, was appointed to see that topics of interest would be brought up at the various meetings.

Mr. Schiller, of Chicago, who was a visitor, brought with him a vase of the new carnation, Washington, which is being disseminated by the Chicago Carnation Co., of Joliet, Ill. The flowers, which were of good size, showed up well on nice, stiff stems. Refreshments were served after the meeting.

Various Notes.

At Robert Zepnick's store they are offering some exceptionally fine cut pansies for sale these days. It is a strain of their own, which they have worked on during the last twenty-five years and which they believe is second to none which they have seen thus far.

Walter M. Maas & Co., on Oneida street, who embarked in the retail business a year ago last fall, in anticipation of a large holiday rush became the owners of a fine Buick auto a week before Christmas. In speaking of it at this time, Mr. Maas says it did the work of three ordinary delivery outfits. Their holiday business was seventy-five per cent ahead of last year, and, by pressing another motor machine into service during the rush, they say that all orders were delivered on time.

During the last week, while the thermometer was hovering around the zero mark, one of the large steam boilers at the Brown Deer plant of the Holton & Hunkel Co. sprung a leak, but no bad results followed, owing to the quick-mindedness of the man in charge.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports a satisfactory run of business for the last week. They are contemplating an addition of one propagating house and two mum houses at their Wauwatosa plant.

Visitor: Mr. Garland, of the Geo. M. Garland Co., Des Plaines, Ill.

Fred Bliese, of Schneck & Bliese, the Waukesha florists, left January 5 for an extended trip to Los Angeles, Cal. He was accompanied by Mrs. Schneck, mother of the senior member of the firm.

Nic Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, is a busy man these days, propagating and disseminating his new carnation seedling, Bright Spot. He reports a good demand for it. E. O.

SPRINGFIELD, O.

The Market.

The monthly meeting of the Springfield Florists' Club was held at the office of the Good & Reese Co., Monday evening, January 9. In addition to the members Arthur J. Todd, C. A. Schafer and J. F. Businger, who recently embarked in the florists' business as officers of the Reeser Plant Co., were present as guests and prospective members of the club.

Random talk prior to the business session indicated that the Holland bulb salesmen are now in town, and the much vexed question of exorbitant transportation costs on shipments from Sassenheim, Hillegom and adjacent points was again threshed over without a satisfactorily definite solution, the most practical plan suggested being to have the shipper prepay freight out of funds to be advanced by purchaser.

The paper of the evening was read by Arthur C. Leedle, secretary of the Leedle Rosary Co., on the subject of "The Sphere of the Landscape Architect," which was treated in a manner evincing a considerable study. An animated discussion followed, in the course of which it developed that Springfield is practically without a landscape architect whose services are available to the general public. The value of such expert services is readily discernible in the beauties of Snyder park and Ferncliff cemetery, which for natural beauty, enhanced by artistic skill, are conceded to be unequaled anywhere in the country. The woeful lack of artistic and intelligent planting in Springfield was freely discussed and as a remedy it was advocated that the gradual education of the children should be attempted, as this would eventually raise the standard of the entire community.

Christian Binning referred to the custom of the schoolmasters in Germany in training the pupils to plant. He followed with a splendid suggestion to the end that a large portion of the land at Snyder park advocated as suitable for the formation of a lake be apportioned among the different public schools and planted by the children under the supervision of the principals and properly regulated by the park authorities. Such an idea systematically worked out and controlled would be productive of intense enthusiasm in the schools and at the same time add popularity to the park and in the end would prove a valuable advertisement to Springfield. Mr. Binning and C. P. Bethard were appointed a committee to formulate a plan for presentation to the proper city officials. Ge Dale.

SALVIAS FOR MAY.

When should salvias be sown to make nice plants for May? J. K.

Sow any time during March. A sowing in even the last part of that month will give big plants, as salvias are rapid growers. C. W.

Six Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand. If you are the only florist in your city represented here, you get the orders coming into your territory from other florists. If you are not represented and "the other fellow" is—we can leave it to you what becomes of these desirable orders.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

Immediately after the rush of the holiday trade there seemed to be a lull in business; it did not start in with a boom, as it generally does with the coming of a New Year, but this condition of affairs only lasted for a couple of days, when orders began to come from seemingly every direction, while the contented smile crept back into the countenance of every florist. Ever since the middle of last week there has been a continual brisk demand for stock of all kinds, funeral work being the chief factor, while wedding, reception and banquet requirements were not far behind.

Roses, which were in splendid and abundant crop for Christmas, appear to be taking a vacation just now, but carnations are right there with the goods and plentiful enough to outstand all demands. Lilies, too, while not overabundant, are coming along well, and there appears to be enough in the market to supply all requirements. Bulbous stock, such as Romans, yellow and white narcissi and daffodils, are coming in heavily, but so far the demand has kept them on the move. There is not much doing in the pot plant line and, fortunately, the supply is not overabundant.

Various Notes.

The Dayton Florists' Club, which had postponed the regular monthly business meeting on account of the holidays, met January 9 at the floral establishment of J. F. Young.

Mrs. B. Haschke has a fine crop of violets at the present time.

The Heiss Co. has a nice supply of cyclamens coming in now, which had been intended for Christmas, but the dull weather retarded their progress. This company reports a good market for these plants, which are fine.

W. W. Horlacher was quite busy with decorations for New Year's receptions, and his report is that cut flower trade has been good.

M. Anderson reports that last week's business was most encouraging. He made one of his regular trips to Cincinnati last week, and tells us he had a fine time. There seems to be some attraction in Cincinnati for Mr. Anderson, and it is rumored that sometime in the near future he intends to bring the "attraction" back to Dayton with him.

Samuel Kurtz, manager of the Dayton Floral Co., has been confined to the house for several days, his complaint being reported as lockjaw. The present report is that there are hopes for his recovery, and he is doing as nicely as could be expected.

Warren G. Matthews is just convalescing from a hard attack of the grip.

"Trade has been keeping us on the jump, while along with funeral work we are getting some large wedding orders," is the report from the Dayton Floral Co.

We are glad to report that Mrs. Young is able to be back at her store again.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The week following New Year's was reported as a good one among the local florists, both wholesale and retail. A great deal of activity was displayed among the west end florists, who had considerable to do for the social set, including several big receptions and weddings. The short opera season also brought some business to the florists. There was, besides, a good deal of funeral work put up among the downtown florists, who say that their transient trade helped greatly all of last week.

The wholesalers had plenty of stock on hand daily. Prices have come down on all grades of roses, and some splendid stock of Richmond, Killarney, Maryland and Bride was sent in. Carnations, too, are better and prices lower. Enchantress, Rose-pink Enchantress and White Enchantress are good sellers, as well as Boston Market. Beacon, too, has had a good call. A good crop is expected from now on, as there has been a scarcity in these ever since the season began.

The weather is just right for California violets. Our Kirkwood growers are sending in big consignments of them daily to our wholesalers and the price is cut to $2.50 per thousand. There are plenty of lilies to be had, also lily of the valley, Romans, Paper Whites and sweet peas. From the above account one can see that the St. Louis market is pretty well taken care of by our growers and well handled by our wholesalers, and the retailers are doing their share by buying quite heavily daily.

Various Notes.

The Retail Florists' Association elected the same officers for another year at their annual meeting last week. They are as follows: President, C. C. Sanders; vice-president, Theo. Miller; secretary, F. C. Weber, Jr.; treasurer, R. J. Windler; sergeant-at-arms, Max Herzog. The association has during its existence done a great deal of good for the retail florists. Meetings will be held, as usual, every first Monday in the month in the Knights of Columbus hall.

J. W. Lempke, representing the W. W. Barnard Co., of Chicago, spent last week here calling on the local trade, with good success.

The Engelmann Botanical Club held its regular monthly meeting Monday evening, January 9, in the lecture room of the Missouri Botanical Garden. The nominating committee presented its report and W. W. Ohlweiler, of the garden, presented a paper entitled "Some Observations on the Frost of April 24, 1910."

Frank Weber, who is chairman of the new entertainment committee of the American Association of Nurserymen, is beginning early to lay his plans for entertaining the association when it meets here early in June.

Charles Young, of the C. Young & Sons Co., reports that their cut flower department at 1406 Olive street has been kept pretty busy since the first of the year with shipping orders. They are making extensive preparations for the coming spring seed trade.

Several of the Belleville florists were over last week. Among them were Henry Emunds, E. W. Guy and A. G. Fehr. All have a good word for the holiday trade in Belleville. Mr. Emunds says he cut his last chrysanthemums last week.

The news of the appointment of Fred H. Weber as state vice-president of the S. A. F. was well received by the local trade. Mr. Weber is a prominent member of the St. Louis Florists' Club and a hard worker for anything he undertakes, so an increase in membership in the S. A. F. from this state can be looked for this year.

Charles Kuehn received last week fine consignments of carnations from Henry Baer, of Peoria, Ill., and roses from A. C. Canfield, of Springfield. The prices of stock in all grades have fallen greatly since the first of the year.

The violet growers at Kirkwood are consigning to this market a great lot of extra fine California violets. Those of W. J. Pilcher, F. W. Ude, Jr., Hugo Gross and A. G. Ahner are handled by the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. Holiday prices on these are almost cut in half at present.

We regret to have to report the death of J. F. Henry Meinhardt, who died January 4. Mr. Meinhardt was the father of Fred H. Meinhardt and the Misses Meinhardt. The funeral took place Friday, January 6, at 2 p. m., from his late residence, 6727 Florissant avenue. The local trade was well represented at the funeral and the floral designs were many, large and beautiful. The members of the Ladies' Home Circle attended in a body. J. J. B.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

THE Springfield Seed Co., Springfield, Mo., has a new five-ton motor truck to do its hauling.

NOT in years have there been such heavy importations of seed peas as are coming in this season.

THE executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association was in session at Detroit, January 11.

THE response to the first mailings of catalogues to the south has been more than usually prompt this season.

LUTHER BURBANK'S latest "creation," a strawberry named The Patagonian, is being exploited in the daily press.

THE growers are slowly acquiring acreage of peas, but it is not rapid work and is costing more than last year.

THE records of the New York customhouse show the importation through that port this season of 9,625 cases of lily of the valley pips.

A CONSTANTLY increasing number of Holland bulb growers and nurserymen are arranging for permanent representation in this country.

THE directors of the Grass Seed Dealers' Association have held a meeting preparatory to the Washington hearing on the pure seed bills.

CONGRESSMAN MANN is making good his campaign promises; he is pushing pure seed legislation, and he is doing it while the House of Representatives still is of his own political faith.

A SEED grower at Santa Clara, Cal., wrote under date of January 5: "We have had little rain here this year, only 1.25 inches to date. At this time last year we had had 8.17 inches. The crops are not growing and look very bad. If we do not get two inches of rain in the next ten days, it will be bad for all crops in California this year. If we get eight inches of rain from now until May 10 the crops will come out all right, but we must have at least two inches to get the land in shape so the crops will get a good start."

There are a lot of grasshopper growers in America—Hopping Willies—kid-glove geranium growers, who manage to exist on a job here and there as long as their canned horticultural knowledge lasts and before the crop comes in and the boss finds out he's up against it. They are the real "green fly" of the growing business. The great trouble with the majority of help a man hires, is that they gauge their labor by their wages and the boss never believes they are worth more than they get. You may think your employer is easily fooled, but look out that it is not you who are fooled, for the average employer is very watchful of the actions of his men and generally knows more than is credited to him about it. The only men who ever succeed are the stick-to-it kind; perseverance pays plus. They are the kind who realize the boss has more cares than the employee, and as they gradually shoulder these cares, they become the boss themselves. There comes a time when every boss is glad to lay down his tools, especially when he knows a good man to take them up. Rome was not built in a day.

Now, some buyers of bulbs are like Hopping Willies—buying from one man and another—the first arrival usually. Don't do that—make your order interesting to a good house and that house will take better care of you than half a dozen houses, each with a part so small that it hardly pays them to call again. Get as near the real source of supply of quality as you can, for your own sake, and you will profit by it. In lily bulbs and French bulbs you can't get nearer to the source of quality than Horseshoe Brand, and the real cost is no more and often less. You can't buy better bulbs anywhere and you might get worse. Prices reasonable.

RALPH M. WARD & CO.

Not How Cheap But How Good NEW YORK

Cold storage Giganteum of superior quality on hand—order now for delivery during 1911.

The Harris Seed Co., San Diego, Cal., is now in its new quarters at 1530 F street.

A. E. McKenzie Co., Brandon, Man., has almost completed its new seven-story and basement seed warehouse.

Leonard Pfeifer, of Sawyer, Mich., has joined the staff of Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn., and is contracting peas in the Rapid River region of Wisconsin.

J. Otto Thilow, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, will address the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, January 14, his subject being "Gardening for and by Amateurs."

Wm. Cooper & Nephews, the English firm of horticultural chemists who have American offices, have withdrawn Apterite from the market and sent it back to the laboratories for further test.

The T. J. Grey Co., Boston, is making considerable improvement in its store at 32 South Market street. The offices have been moved from the second to the third floor, allowing for more seed drawer and counter space.

Frank C. Woodruff, of S. D. Woodruff & Sons, Orange, Conn., is a member of the state senate and on its organization January 4 was elected president pro tem. The position carries with it the appointment of all senatorial legislative committees.

The H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, in its new building, has undertaken a number of innovations. One of these is its welfare work, in the interest of employees, but that which is attracting the most attention is the series of lectures in the store by members of the store staff and others competent to discuss amateur gardening topics in an interesting way. Good audiences have attended.

In the catalogue of a big European house from which many American seedsmen draw supplies, there appears the following: "The past summer has again been characterized by frequent rains and lack of sunshine, which has greatly affected the proper development of seeds, and the germination of some varieties is below the average. For this reason we would suggest that seeds should be sown somewhat more thickly than is usual."

Watson S. Woodruff, who was present January 11, when the executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association met at Detroit, is chairman of the committee on legislation. He advises that there is some prospect that the hearing on pure seed bills, called for Washington, D. C., January 17, will be put over, but that he is planning to attend, with as many of the committee as possible, President Page and other large seedsmen.

H. R. 29,163.

It is extremely unfortunate that the subject of federal regulation of the seed trade should come up, as in other years, at a time when all seedsmen are in the midst of their busiest season and when Congress has but a few weeks in which to dispose of many important questions. No bill so vitally affecting important interests should be enacted into law under such conditions. Nor is the method of a few short hours' general discussion before a large committee likely to work out the best results; the subject is one which should be gone over

NEW AND RARE DAHLIAS!

New and Dwarf Mignon Dahlias, offered for the first time

This valuable novelty is an entirely new strain among the species of Dahlias. Its early flowering and very dwarf habit (15 inches) make it one of the finest bedding plants ever introduced. It commences to bloom in June and keeps on flowering until frost starts in. We can offer it in six shades. Habit of growing and flowering reminds one of Anemone Japonica (Japanese Windflower), as every plant of the Mignon Dahlia produces in great profusion, well-formed, single flowers of medium size and magnificent color, which stand erect above the foliage and are, as cut flowers, excellent for table decorations.

The flower committee at Amsterdam awarded this race, on account of its great merits for bedding and cutting purposes, 5 First-Class Certificates and 5 Awards of Merit.

We have also in connection with these Mignon Dahlias some very fine new Peony Dahlia varieties, which you will find in our Special Dahlia Catalogue, which will be mailed to anyone who wishes same.

Order now, so that we may book your order for these Dahlias.

We still have about 15,000 of the beautiful pink Queen Alexandra Spiraea left. Can ship at once. Ask price.

We are also booking orders for Bulbs and Spiraea to be shipped in September and October. Let us have your order early. Prices quoted upon request (state whether you want prices quoted f. o. b. Holland or f. o. b. Philadelphia Branch House). A postal received in time will bring one of our American salesmen from the Philadelphia House upon their semi-annual trip.

Our Catalogue for Bulbs and Plants is now ready for 1911. Do not delay in asking for one of these. Learn to buy direct from the nursery, as our prices will surprise you. Goods can be sold F. O. B. Philadelphia if so desired.

at length, point by point, if something workable is to be evolved.

Congressman Mann's new Pure Seed Bill, H. R. 29,163, if adopted in its present form, will disorganize all existing methods of conducting the seed business. This bill is open to all of the objections urged against the draft of a bill for the same purpose considered at a meeting of seedsmen at Chicago, February 9, 1910, as a result of which George S. Green, then chairman of the Seed Trade Association's committee on legislation, wrote Congressman Mann, in part as follows:

It was the opinion of the majority of those in attendance at the meeting, that no law should be enacted in which garden seeds and bulbs were included under the same provisions as might properly apply to grass and clover seeds, because the conditions of production and use of these two classes of seeds are so radically different.

It was also thought that it was unwise to provide for arbitrary standards to be fixed by the Secretary of Agriculture, for the following reasons:

1. It is believed to be impossible to make such standards properly conform to the varying requirements necessitated by varying climatic and crop conditions attending the production of seed.

2. The best methods of testing seeds for purity and germination which are now in use, are not sufficiently uniform and accurate, and the vitality of seeds not sufficiently stable to warrant imposing heavy penalties for the sale of seeds falling below a certain arbitrary standard.

3. While purity and germination constitute the only available basis of arbitrary standards, they are by no means a complete or accurate measure of the actual value of seeds to the user thereof. Color and size of seed, locality of pro-

"A WORTH WHILE" NOVELTY

THE OSTRICH PLUME CELOSIA "PRIDE OF CASTLE GOULD" is an entirely distinct type of the Celosia Pyramidalis Plumosa, and surpasses by far anything thus far placed on the market. This strain has through constant culture and careful selection and hybridization proven its superiority to anything similar ever offered.

The following four strong points speak for themselves:

HABIT OF PLANT. Pyramidal, compact growth of from two to three feet, with immense, extra fine-feathered heads, gives the plant a most striking and unique appearance.

MARKET VALUE. The flowers being of such bright and intense color, and the plant of erect growth and beautiful foliage, it creates the greatest admiration, wherever shown, and establishes a demand for itself that every plant-lover must appreciate.

COLOR. The following distinct colors are among these hybrids: Blood-red, real Carmine, Golden Yellow, Salmon, Deep Scarlet, Dark Orange and Wine Red. However, by variation, there will be found many more shades; the self-coloring will be surprising.

DECORATIVE VALUE. As a pot plant, with its quick-growing habit, we believe there is no finer plant known at the present time, wherefrom in the course of six months a most excellent stock of salable plants in every size can be obtained. As a bedding plant, it cannot be equaled by any other annual for its profusion of flowers and variety of striking colors, and we consider it the queen of all decorative annuals where showing groups are desired, and when given a fine, sunny exposure it will develop to its highest perfection.

We offer seed for the first year strictly from pot-grown plants, furnished by the introducers, Messrs. Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.

All packets we send out will contain mixed seeds.

duction, trueness to type, excellence of strain, and many other qualities enter into the value of seeds, and in any given instance, any one of these might be the determining factor in measuring their true value to the user. These considerations make it manifestly unjust to allow the terms "United States Standard" to be applied indiscriminately to all seeds of certain varieties which might reach certain standards of purity and germination, thus tending to create the false or misleading impression that they are all of equal value.

4. It is believed to be questionable public policy to place in the hands of any public officer the power to hamper any trade or business to the extent that such proposed standards would do; especially in a case where the knowledge of conditions of production and the apparatus and methods for making tests are only now in the process of evolution and not by any means perfect.

We believe that no legislation should restrict or prohibit the exportation of any class of seeds having commercial value in any foreign country; for example, there is now produced in this country clover and alfalfa seed in considerable quantities containing dodder. There is a foreign market for such seeds. There are certain climates and countries in which dodder does not thrive, and there is no sound reason, either commercial or moral, to absolutely prohibit the exportation of such seeds. On the contrary, such prohibition would tend to cause such seed to be re-sown within our own country.

We believe that the provision "or are of a quality forbidden entry into or forbidden to be sold or restricted in sale in the country from which exported" is unfair and would prove exceedingly burdensome, because it throws upon the importer the necessity of keeping thoroughly informed at all times about legislation in any foreign country from which he purchases seeds. Even then he could not be thoroughly protected, as some new law might be passed in the exporting country between the time he contracted for the goods and the time of shipments reaching the United States custom house. Furthermore, some restrictions which might be wise or necessary in the country of production might be entirely unnecessary and unwise here.

There are other more or less important points in your proposed law with regard to which the wording would seem to need change, which we shall be glad to take up with you in conference should necessity arise and opportunity be afforded. We appreciate the evident fair-minded spirit which has led you to eliminate so many of the burdensome features of your former bill, and we believe you will, upon reflection, concede the force of our arguments stated above, and will not hastily introduce or urge a law unless you believe it to be in all respects suitable for the requirements of the situation. In the meantime our committee resolved to endorse my suggestion for a bill to prevent the importation of adulterated seeds unfit for planting, and to pledge you our support to help to secure the prompt passage of a bill covering this ground in case you should consent to introduce and urge for passage such a bill.

The bill prohibiting the importation of adulterated seed, or seed unfit for planting, referred to in the last paragraph, was subsequently endorsed by the American Seed Trade Association at the Atlantic City convention last June and has been introduced in Congress by Mr. Mann (by request) and will be up for hearing before the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce at the same time as the bill of which Mr. Mann is the author. Mr. Mann originally set the date for this hearing as 10 a. m. January 17 at the committee's room at the Capitol, but indicated that if this date were not convenient for seedsmen some postponement could be arranged.

for a few days had a tendency to keep trade slow. The last day or so there seems to be more activity and, with the larger death rate at present, there will be a rush. Roses and carnations are quite plentiful, and bulbous stock is good, so there will be enough flowers to go around for some time at least.

Various Notes.

Ben Kramer reports business as only fair since the holidays, but it is picking up again.

Curt Niednagel, formerly of Niednagel & Sons, has severed his connection with that firm and expects to go to the Coast with a view of settling there. We all hope that, whatever he does, he will be successful and contented. He is a hard worker and should always be at the top. With funeral work and decorations, this firm has had something to do all along.

J. C. Elsperman reports trade as slow up to the last few days, but with several funerals on hand he looks for better business. His carnations are doing well and he has plenty of narcissi and hyacinths.

The Blackman Floral Co. has just moved into its new store at 522 Main street. This building was damaged by fire recently and in remodeling the store room was fitted up to suit Mr. Blackman. This company is now cutting enough stock to supply its trade, which is up to the standard for this season of the year.

Royston & Fenton are off crop with Bride and Bridesmaid, but look for a good cut next month, as the plants are breaking nicely. They are having a good cut from their Ivory. E. L. F.

COMMERCIAL FERTILIZERS.

What is the best commercial fertilizer for general truck crops, and also for geraniums and other potted plants, to be used with stable manure?

W. N. T.

There is much difference of opinion as to what particular brand of fertilizer is best for any crop or purpose. For geraniums and many potted plants I like bone meal or blood and bone. Pulverized sheep manure you will find excellent for most greenhouse purposes.

For the truck garden a fertilizer should be selected according to the crop grown, as some crops require far more of some one of the ingredients of fertilizer that are used by plants than do others. What is called a well balanced fertilizer will, however, give good results for most truck crops. H. G.

DOUBLE GLASS IN GREENHOUSE.

I am contemplating the building of a cucumber forcing house. Do you think it would be advisable to use double glass? Fuel here, in the central part of Washington state, is extremely high priced—$10 per ton for soft coal. What disadvantage, if any, would there be in the use of double glass? Are there any growers who use double glass on tropical houses?

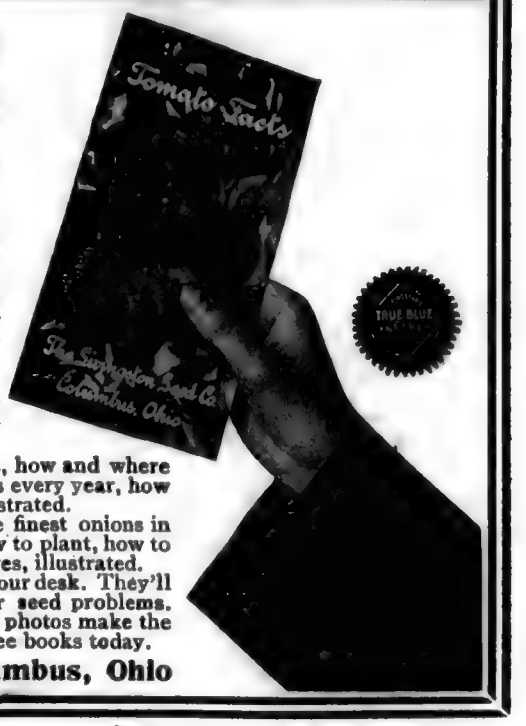
G. W. B.

I could not grow cucumbers profitably if obliged to pay $10 per ton for soft coal, and would not advise any one to try it. Of course, I mean by that in severe winter weather. Toward spring, when they require much less fuel, and at the time of finishing them up, when they need no fuel at all, it would not matter so much what the coal cost.

Two thicknesses of glass keep down the fuel bill a good deal and would be all right when brand-new, but would soon have to be cleaned by taking out the lower layer. Dirt will get in between the layers, where you can not reach it in any other way. If the lower layer is put in without putty and just butted together, it is little trouble to remove and clean it on a small scale. I have seen the experiment tried two or three times, and noticed that in each case the glass was finally left out altogether.

My advice would be to build the house strongly and solidly and use the best 16x24 glass, which should be bedded in the best greenhouse putty by experienced hands, so that the roof will be absolutely tight, with no cracks where the glass laps. Fit the ventilators carefully and do not use any cracked or broken glass or pieces. Put on storm doors in winter and have the perpendicular bars in both gable ends made so that you can put in glass on the inside as well as the outside. The ends of a house are invariably cold, but this precaution would help to keep them warmer, and that small amount of double glass could be removed every fall, cleaned and put back in a day.

Grow lettuce until toward spring, by all means, and cucumbers for spring and early summer. H. G.



Livingston's Famous Tomatoes

fill the bill with the most particular planters. Even size, shape and color, heavy yielding and good eating qualities are bred into all our sorts. We grow tons of the best tomato seed every year to fill the steadily increasing demand.

Livingston's Globe makes many southern planters rich. First early large, round, purple. Of highest quality. Pkt., 10c; ⅛ oz., 20c; oz., 35c; ¼ lb., 50c; lb., $1.85, postpaid.

Livingston's Beauty is still the standard purple market tomato. Early, productive, solid, best quality. Pkt., 5c; oz., 20c; ¼ lb., 50c; lb., $1.85, postpaid.

Livingston's Stone is the greatest canning tomato known today. Our "headquarter" stock is absolutely unequaled. Oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.60, postpaid.

Free Booklets You Need

To make your work in greenhouse and garden a better success we have published the following helpful booklets—free for you.

"Tomato Facts," tells all about our money-making sorts, how and where we grow tons of high-class tomato seeds every year, how to raise prize fruits by staking and pruning. Profusely illustrated.

"Profitable Onions," explains our method of growing the finest onions in the world. Tells when to plant, how to plant, how to harvest the crop. Describes our unequaled strains. 16 pages, illustrated.

"Annual" and "Blue List," for 1911, should now be on your desk. They'll help to solve your seed problems. Honest prices, truthful descriptions and illustrations from photos make the books dependable guides. Write for any or all of above free books today.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Business has been brisk here since the holidays, both in the cut flower line and blooming plants, such as azaleas, begonias, cyclamen, etc. Funeral work has been heavy for the last week or two and it was hard at times to get enough stock to go around, although the supply has been quite heavy considering the amount of cloudy weather we have had in the last two weeks.

Roses have been good and demand has kept them cleaned up at all times, but carnations have come in somewhat lighter than during the holidays and there have been several days when they were at a great premium. Sweet peas are fine and find a ready sale, with prices somewhat lower, and narcissi and Romans have been in good supply and were used to good advantage when other stock was used up. Violets are meeting with a good demand both in single and double.

Smilax has been rather scarce since Christmas, as it was pretty well cut out at that time.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club dance was held Wednesday, January 11.

Sherman Stephens reports good business out his way, with plenty of funeral work.

The Munk Floral Co. is sporting a delivery automobile, which makes a neat advertisement for them.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. reports heavy business last week, especially in funeral work.

The Columbus Floral Co. is having some good cuts of carnations at this time.

Wilson's seed store has been making a drive on carnations lately and is moving quite a lot of stock.

The Livingston Seed Co. has been quite busy in the flower department, and

NEW FANCY CALADIUMS.

Tuberous Rooted Begonias, Fancy Caladiums, Gloxinias, etc.

The Begonias and Gloxinias which we handle are produced for us by a specialist of many years' experience. You can buy cheaper, but not better stock.

Begonias, Single in Separate Colors. Scarlet, Crimson, Rose, White, Yellow and Orange, 40c per doz.; $2.50 per 100; $22.50 per 1000.

Begonias, Single in Choicest Mixture. 35c per doz.; $2.25 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

Begonias, Doubles in Separate Colors. Scarlet, Rose, White and Yellow, 60c per doz.; $4.50 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Begonias, Doubles in Choicest Mixture, 50c per doz.; $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000.

Begonias, Frilled in Separate Colors. Scarlet, White, Pink and Yellow. These are with wavy and frilled petals like some of the newer Petunias, $1.00 per doz.; $7.00 per 100; $60.00 per 1000.

Begonias, Dwarf Hybrid, Duke Zeppelin. Rich scarlet, 85c per doz.; $6.00 per 100.

Begonias, Dwarf Hybrid, Frau Helene Harms. New yellow, $2.00 per doz.

Begonias, Dwarf Hybrid, Lafayette. Crimson-scarlet, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

Gloxinias, in Choicest Mixture, or in Separate Colors, as Blue, Red, White, Red with white edge, and Blue with white edge, 60c per doz.; $3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000.

Gloxinia, New Emperor (Gloxinia Hybrida Imperialis). A new type, a cross between Sinningia Regina and the best types of Hybrid Gloxinias. This not only covers a full range of colors as in the ordinary type of Gloxinia, but the foliage also is very ornamental, the leaves being of a rich bronzy red color, with strong projecting white veins. The flowers all stand erect, thus showing to best advantage. We offer in choice mixture, $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100.

FANCY LEAVED CALADIUMS.

We have the largest stock in the world. Over 400 varieties, including not only all the good standard sorts, but many new varieties never offered in quantity before.

This is one of the most valuable plants for decoration of the Florists' store window during the summer months and during recent years we have sold many thousands for this purpose. We especially recommend the choice rare and new varieties at $15.00 per 100 for this purpose.

We offer special selections according to variety as follows:

Choice Standard Varieties. The finest collection ever offered at the price, $1.75 per doz.; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Choice Rare and New Varieties. A splendid assortment, especially valuable for the retail florist, $2.25 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

Rare New Varieties. The most recent introductions, $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

Choice Mixture, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $80.00 per 1000.

Our New Quarterly Wholesale List, issued January first, contains a full list of seasonable Plants, Seeds, Bulbs, etc. Write for it if you have not already received a copy.

BEGONIA LUMINOSA.

Is Begonia luminosa a suitable plant for window-box work in the summer and does it bloom continuously or at certain periods? C. E. G.

This begonia is a constant summer bloomer and should be satisfactory for window-boxes. Other excellent varieties for this work are: Erfordii, the different forms of Vernon and gracilis.

A UNIQUE CALENDAR.

Shaffer & Larson are proprietors of Dows Greenhouse, Dows, Ia., and their 1911 calendar, a copy of which has reached The Review, is the most unique which has come to hand this year. It is a big automobile, cut out of heavy cardboard and embossed, with the name of the florist printed on the side of the box, just as it would be on the actual vehicle. All over the automobile and surrounding the girl at the steering wheel are the biggest and reddest roses one ever saw. While the artist may fall short of a place in the salon, no one will receive a copy of Shaffer & Larson's calendar without appreciating that he has had something handed him.

PACIFIC COAST.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is again back to normal; in fact, it is a little too quiet after such strenuous weeks as just experienced. New Year's business was a steady grind, but not so large that the regular force could not handle it. There was a scarcity of flowers, yet there was a decline in prices, and we about cleaned up all left-over plants and baskets.

Carnations are coming in nicely, but are not an oversupply, and roses are practically out of the market. Some choice Maud Dean mums are in evidence and are quickly snapped up at top prices. That lily of the valley this season is a failure, is voiced on all sides; scarcely one-third produces spikes and some growers are considering discontinuing it altogether.

Considerable complaint is heard of eastern shipments of plants being received frozen. Not enough care is exercised in the packing. Quite a different condition prevails on the Pacific coast, as the winter has been exceptionally mild, with no freezing weather yet. At present, the writer has a vase of roses on the table that were picked on the outside January 3; they are of unusual form and color, but short stemmed.

Various Notes.

D. M. Ruggles, of Eugene, Ore., spent a few days here recently making inquiries regarding greenhouse construction.

Warren & Moore have taken over the Deming greenhouses at Lents. They will extend the plant and add modern improvements.

C. L. Flint, horticulturist of the Oregon Agricultural College at Corvallis, Ore., while in the city recently, was plied with many botanical questions by the florists.

G. Ingalls, of Richmond, Ind., is visiting in this city. He was formerly with the E. G. Hill Co. E. R. C.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Since New Year's day the retail business in the vicinity of San Francisco has been quiet, and from general appearances it may be so for some time to come. The weather continues most beautiful and flowers of all kinds are plentiful. As a matter of fact, we have had no cold weather to speak of for the last year, and never in my memory have cut blossoms been so cheap or in such profusion at this time of the year. The central and southern portions of California are at the present time experiencing a spell of unusual drought, which if not soon checked is going to have a disastrous effect on everything in a business way. This is felt indirectly by the florists as much as any other tradesmen, and a few good showers would accomplish wonders in restoring confidence to the general public.

If the warm days continue much longer we may expect that stock will be as cheap as it usually is three months from now. This condition is to the advantage of no one except the flower consumer, and the retailers need not hope to reap much of a harvest until climatic conditions change.

Various Notes.

Philip Murray has opened a stand in Spreckel's Market for the sale of cut flowers.

Gill's Floral Depot has opened the largest establishment in Oakland devoted to the handling of flowers, seeds, plants and kindred industries.

H. Plath reports a record-breaking holiday trade in the line of ferns and foliage plants of all sorts.

C. C. Navlet, of San Jose, was in town recently looking up stock for early spring orders. He had the best season's trade during the year 1910 ever enjoyed by his firm.

A. H. Hills, of Fruitvale, is cutting heavily of cattleyas and dendrobiums at the present time.

Fred Borland is on a two weeks' vacation in the neighborhood of Sacramento, Cal. G.

CENTRALIA, WASH.

Our little city of 8,000 inhabitants is fast becoming an important railroad center. It is situated nearly midway between Tacoma, Wash., and Portland, Ore., and is generally conceded by the traveling public to be one of the most beautifully located cities of its size in this part of the great northwest. Its interest in the geeenhouse business is made manifest by one vegetable house and two flower houses within the town limits, and one or two a little distance out. These are all doing well and also are using the hot water system of heating.

Andrew Kahler, at his vegetable greenhouse, makes a specialty of lettuce and tomatoes and finds ready sale for all that he can grow.

The Centralia Greenhouses have recently changed hands and are now under the management of John Willins, an eastern man of experience.

Floral View Greenhouses are doing a good business and trade is increasing so rapidly that plans are under consideration for the enlargement of the plant to twice its present capacity. The two present firms cannot supply the demand for cut flowers and designs.

The equable climate of Washington is particularly favorable to the greenhouse business. It is easy to recognize the advantages of a country where hailstorms, cyclones and zero weather are virtually unknown. After over twenty years of residence in these parts, with a preceding twenty years of Minnesota climate, the writer has become a western fixture. C. D. D.

Hillsdale, Ore.—John C. Elliott, a florist and gardener of some years' experience, has now started in business here on his own account. He has secured an 8-acre tract and expects to build a carnation house, 130 feet long, in the spring, as the beginning of a range of glass.

Bellingham, Wash.—D. M. and Ray W. Kersey, proprietors of the Kersey Floral Co., have leased some desirable space on the ground floor of the new building on Dock street, owned by the Bellingham Bay Improvement Co., and are fitting it up to be used as their store. They will remove from their present location on Elk street as soon as the new place is ready for them. They are planning for an expansion of their business at the new location.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June, 1911.

THE nursery trade has every reason to be satisfied with the record of the year 1910.

THIS is a busy month with nurserymen—attending horticultural society meetings.

CALIFORNIA PRIVET is at least in abundant supply, if not in surplus, taking the country as a whole.

THE Ohio Nurserymen's Association held a meeting at Columbus, January 10, the day before the meeting of the State Horticultural Society.

THIS is so big a country, and the outlet for nursery stock is so broad, that what is in surplus in one locality cleans up well if offered in another.

W. C. REED, Vincennes, Ind., started January 10 for a trip to Cuba, accompanied by Mrs. Reed. They will attend the meeting of the American Pomological Society at Tampa, Fla., February 10 and 11, en route home.

AT Macclenny, Fla., the Baker County Good Roads Association has been organized through the initiation of G. L. Taber, of the Glen St. Mary Nursery Co., and C. M. Griffing, of Griffing Bros. Co. Mr. Griffing was elected president of the association.

M. E. GILLETT, a nurseryman of Tampa, Fla., is making preparations to set out one of the largest citrus groves in the United States. He has 1,000 acres of land near Florence Villa, in Polk county, which he proposes to plant with orange and grapefruit trees. Mr. Gillett was formerly president of the Florida Citrus Exchange.

RETROSPECT AND PROSPECT.

How Things Look to Nurserymen.

With many nurserymen the year 1910 was the best ever, but the consensus of opinion is that 1911 will be better yet. The views of several of the large concerns were printed in this department last week, and here are others:

E. P. Bernardin, Parsons, Kan.

The review of 1910 looks good to me, for it has been an excellent year with me, notwithstanding the adverse weather conditions that we have had to contend with the entire year. With the one exception of cherry, prices have been good on all the stock that we had to offer and we have made quite satisfactory sales and will make a good clean-up on the year's business.

The general tendency of the nursery business in the west is an increased sale in ornamentals of all kinds and this part of our business in the central west is growing faster than the fruit tree end of it.

The prospect for 1911 looks good to us, especially along the line of ornamentals, as so many of the cities are now voting bonds for civic improvement, developing park and boulevard systems. This makes an increased demand among the small planters, as they all want to keep in line with the improvement of their cities. The high prices for fruit the past season has made an increased demand for apple and peach, as people are just beginning to realize that notwithstanding we had an immense apple

Roses for 1911

DARK PINK KILLARNEY

A sport of Killarney, similar in habit, but more highly colored than Killarney at its best. When Killarney is pale, Dark Pink Killarney is bright and cheerful.

Grafted Plants only, from 2¼-in. pots, $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000.

LADY CROMWELL

A shell-pink sport of My Maryland that for pleasing color is unsurpassed. A wonderful producer, and a color that sells.

Grafted Plants only, from 2¼-in. pots, $30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000.

DOUBLE PINK KILLARNEY

Originating with Robert Scott & Sons, who supply us the wood for grafting. Stronger in growth than Killarney, and with at least ten more petals. A wonderful improvement.

Grafted Stock only, $30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000.

PRINCE DE BULGARIE

The best prices for cut flowers should be the standard for judging Roses, and this Rose has been the money-getter. Strong and vigorous in growth, and with its beautiful shell-pink bloom, it has sold on sight. One of the best Roses grown.

Grafted Plants, $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000.
Own Root, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

MRS. AARON WARD

By far the most pleasing of the Yellow Roses now on the market. A general favorite, and one which will be widely grown, for yellow Roses are in demand.

Grafted Plants, $25.00 per 100, $200.00 per 1000.
Own Root, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

MELODY

We have reserved for our orders own-root plants of this choice novelty. No grafted plants.

From 2¼-in. pots, $30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000.

RADIANCE

Strong in growth, and making plenty of stem. Cerise pink in color.

Grafted Plants, $18.00 per 100, $150.00 per 1000.
Own Root, $10.00 per 100, $90.00 per 1000.

KILLARNEY, WHITE KILLARNEY, RICHMOND, MY MARYLAND, KAISERIN AUGUSTA VICTORIA

These are the old standards, and we are headquarters for young stock.

Grafted Plants, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.
Own Root, 2½-inch, $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

and peach crop last season, prices were high, and this has made a demand for the general public to grow a little fruit for home use.

Our fruit tree trade has all been with the small planters, and when the large commercial plantings are taken into consideration, the general outlook for 1911 for well grown nursery stock in all departments should be the best the nurseryman has seen for years.

Stark Bros., Louisiana, Mo.

The general nursery trade is in a strong, vigorous and prosperous condition. The outlook for spring trade is most encouraging—an unprecedented demand. The "Back to the Soil" movement is reflected in the horticultural meetings, the volume of correspondence and particularly the great land and apple show recently held in Chicago. It is revolutionizing all conditions and the return to the country is most favorable. We need more producers of fruit and food stuffs—that is the way to solve the problem. The fruit growers, the farmers throughout the country, are prosperous. They have awakened to their opportunity, their possibilities, and in addition to planting orchards and fruit plantations, each one is doing something in the way of ornamental planting and making America beautiful. We appreciate the great opportunity for the florists, the seedsmen and nurserymen.

WISCONSIN CHRISTMAS TREES.

George Klumb, president of the Klumb & Chesney Nursery Co., of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., spoke in a recent interview of the increasing difficulty that he experiences in finding a sufficient quantity of Christmas trees to meet the demands of the trade.

"Balsam and spruce trees," he said, "are growing scarce in Wisconsin and upper Michigan. The land is being cleared and it grows more difficult every year to get a sufficient supply of good trees. We buy what is called cut-over land, which has been cleared of the heavy timber, and cut out the balsam, spruce and young pines. Northern Wisconsin is becoming a great fruit country, and next spring we shall put out fifty carloads of these trees. The finest exhibit of apples at the last state fair came from our county, and I believe that northern Wisconsin can beat the world growing apples and berries. As for vegetables, we grew this year cabbage that weighed from eighteen to twenty pounds each."

Grape Vines

All old and new varieties. Large stock. Warranted true. Can furnish a special heavy two-year grade with large roots and good tops for florists' retail trade.

ZANESVILLE, O.

The Zanesville Florists' Club held its December meeting at the greenhouses and residence of C. L. Humphrey, where flowers and lettuce grow to perfection. Mr. Humphrey has seven fine, new, modern houses and grows a little over half an acre of that crisp and tender vegetable.

After an inspection of the place, all proceeded to the residence, where the regular business of the meeting was transacted. Two new members were added to the list. Luncheon was served, and all the party expressed themselves as being well pleased with the progress of the club and with all they had seen at Mr. Humphrey's up-to-date establishment. G. W. C.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The usual January thaw started in early this year and was followed closely by the coldest days we have had this season. The temperature was close to zero for about twenty-four hours and this was followed by another thaw, which has lasted three days. December was steadily cold the month through and was a costly one for the coal bin, due partly to the absence of sunshine, which has been dull since late in November. The demand for cut flowers had decreased considerably, but stock is none too plentiful as yet. The demand for funeral flowers has kept things pretty well cleaned up, but the social call for flowers was never so poor as during the last year. Social functions of all kinds were missing and at the yearly events the absence of flowers was noticeable. Jonquils made their appearance last week, but, being the early variety, they were scarce and none too good. The first Yellow Prince were shown Saturday and were good for the time. Violets and peas have dropped a little in price.

DON'T FORGET

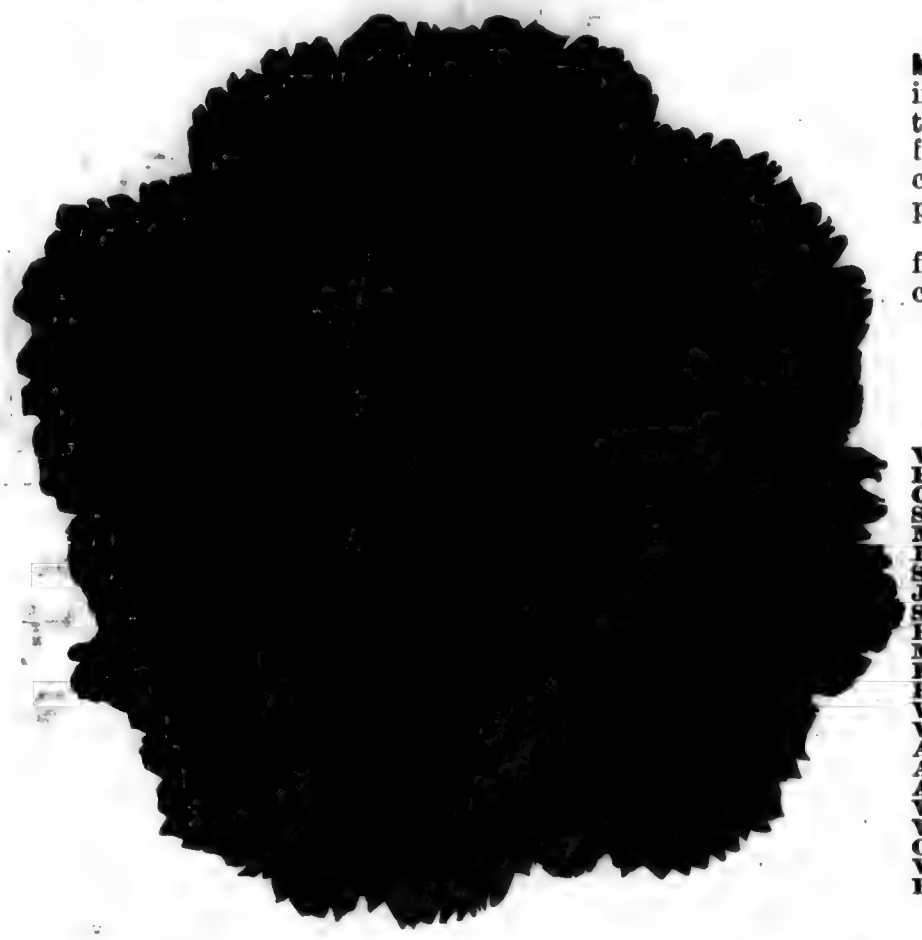
Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held January 3. The flower show was discussed. The bowling meeting was held last week, at Oertel's, with a good attendance.



Mr. Kramer, the florist who recently opened a store on Main and Utica streets, has decided that he would rather sell flowers on the market than at this place and has sold out to the young lady with whom he worked, Miss Gertrude Sauer. The young lady has been connected with the trade for the last eight years, working for one of the leading firms of the city. Knowing the trade and customers as she does, Miss Sauer should make this a good stand.

David Scott, of Corfu, reports that he has started a cut of Golden Spur jonquils and expects to ship 35,000 within the next fifteen days. R. A. S.

Ballston Spa, N. Y.—William Bensel, of the Schaefer Estate, was well pleased with holiday trade. They had a banner crop of roses, which sold at sight.

The Market.

Week number one of the New Year was a busy one for some, while with other retail stores it was quiet. Many large funerals created a big demand for flowers. Beauties and other roses are none too plentiful at present, consequently prices are high. Carnations came along a little too fast for the demand after New Year's, necessitating a reduction in the market price. Some of the growers are complaining of the receipts for carnations during the holidays. Many of the carnations shipped to the local commission houses were entirely too old and no retailer with any conscience at all would undertake to sell them to his customers at the fabulous prices some of the growers expected.

Single daffodils and freesias are selling readily and are of good quality. Good Paper Whites and Romans are plentiful and come in handy for the large amount of funeral work.

Sweet peas in all colors are now in large crop and meet with a welcome among the flower buyers, but put another damper on the sale of violets. This latter flower does not seem to be as popular as in former years; at least, such is the experience of Detroit florists.

Various Notes.

The annual dancing and card party of the Detroit Florists' Club will be given at Harmonia hall Thursday evening, January 19.

A banquet at the Hotel Cadillac was tendered by his many friends to the Hon. Philip Breitmeyer on his retirement from the mayoralty January 9. Among the florists to attend were: Robert Flowerday, Wm. Hielscher, Robert Rahaley, Albert Stoll and J. F. Sullivan.

Robert Flowerday, Jr., better known to the trade as "Tut" Flowerday, and Miss Petrequin, of this city, were married Wednesday, January 4. The happy young couple are spending their honeymoon in Chicago.

Former Mayor Breitmeyer was one of the large party of Detroit auto enthusiasts to attend the auto show in New York city.

A unique table decoration was executed January 6 by E. A. Peters and his staff. The event was a children's party. On one of the tables the decorations were in the form of a formal garden; a pretty hedge was made of boxwood, and miniature bay trees, also made of boxwood, were arranged about the table. Tiny artificial birds and prettily dressed dolls made a pretty scene of the whole.

Michael Bloy met with a disaster January 5 which resulted in a total loss of about $3,000. Some time ago Mr. Bloy purchased a Packard touring car. In attempting to thaw out the water system January 5 the gasoline became ignited, resulting in an explosion which immediately set fire to the auto and shed, causing their total destruction. Mr. Bloy carried no insurance on this property.

outclasses everything heretofore grown in the dark pink section. Won first honors in the 100 class for best dark pink at the A. C. S. meeting, Pittsburg, January, 1910, also at the Chicago Flower Show, November, 1909.

It is a pure, bright, dark pink of even shade, size 3½ inches, an early and continuous bloomer, brings fully 25 per cent more flowers to the plant than Lawson at its best; flowers well shaped on long, wiry stems; calyx does not split. It is a good shipper, and the cuttings root easy.

Price, per 100, $12.00; 25 at 100 rate; per 1000, $100.00; 250 at 1000 rate; per 5000, $400.00.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

The New Year's trade was highly satisfactory to all the flower store owners, and although the business rush of the holidays is over, no lack in trade is noticeable. This is largely due to the continued society affairs, which are this season of a more lavish order in the demand for plant and flower decorations than in former years. The first of the many carnival balls took place January 6 and will be followed by many more, each one demanding costlier bouquets than the previous ones. All this will keep the flower stores busy until Carnival day, February 28.

Various Notes.

This city experienced, January 3 and 4, the most severe cold wave since 1899. The thermometer registered 23 degrees and 25 degrees on the respective days. The weather bureau issued timely warnings and those were surely two trying days for the local florists in saving their indoor and outdoor stock from freezing. From information received, no damage was done to greenhouse stock, but many unprotected outdoor plants, being somewhat tender on account of the last warm spell, suffered seriously, especially in private gardens. None of the outdoor palms, including Latania Borbonica and Phœnix Roebelenii (the latter receiving its first tryout under such weather conditions), were killed; only the shriveled edges or the brown color of the leaves of some varieties show now the effects of the cold. Although we had heavy rains previous to the freeze, no snow fell in the city or immediate neighborhood, which was surely a lucky circumstance, and saved thousands of beautiful palms.

A few days after the cold weather the writer saw a batch of Cocos plumosa planted outdoors without any protection. The hardy leaves looked frostbitten, but the center ones were in perfect condition, and being planted out since last spring, the stock will doubtless recover and make fine plants for the coming fall. The loss to the truck farmer is not considered heavy, because all tender vegetable plants for later crops are still in the protected coldframes. The landscape and market gardeners are rejoicing, because they will find now eager customers for the large stock of all kinds of bedding plants, and especially Boston and Piersoni ferns, grown by them. We have an exceptionally fine and large stock of Ferns in the following varieties—first-class plants of exceedingly good value—plants that will please the most critical buyers, both in regard to quality and value.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima (improved). The finest of this type—never showing a Boston frond; has not reverted in the last four years. Fine plants, 4-in. pots, $2.50 per doz.; 6-in., $6.00 per doz.; 8-in., $12.00 per doz.; large specimens in 12-in. pans, $3.00 to $5.00 each.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima Compacta. This bears the same relation to Elegantissima that Scottii does to Bostoniensis. It is a dwarf, compact plant, especially fine in the small sizes. Fine plants, 4-in. pots, $3.00 per doz.; 6-in., $6.00 per doz.

Nephrolepis Scholzeli. Fine plants, 3½-in. pots, $2.50 per doz.; 6-in. pans, $6.00 per doz.; 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis. Extra strong plants, 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

Nephrolepis Scottii. 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

Small Ferns for Fern Pans. Best and hardiest varieties, assorted: Pteris Mayii, Wimsetti, Adiantoides, Aspidium Tsussimense, Crytomium Falcatum, etc. Strong plants, 2¼-in. pots, $3.50 per 100.

CROTONS. Nice assortment, well colored, 5-in., $9.00 per dozen.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Trade during the holidays and the last week has been quite satisfactory. Parties and receptions calling for elaborate decorations were not as numerous as a year ago, but the number of smaller ones created a steady demand for flowers. The demand for corsages is steadily increasing and is one of the factors of the business during the holidays, calling for orchids, valley, peas, violets and roses.

Funeral work was steady last week and cleaned the market daily. Carnations are of good quality, but are not sufficient to go around. High grade roses are plentiful, Brides, Maids, Killarney and Richmond being obtainable in almost any quantity. Beauties are not up to their standard, owing to the recent cloudy weather.

Home-grown orchids are plentiful, selling mostly in corsages. Yellow jonquils, lilacs and freesias are making their appearance and are bringing better prices than will be obtainable later. Most of the violets are the eastern doubles and they are in good demand.

Various Notes.

Morton M. Brandlein has quantities of fine stevia and his carnations have been of good quality.

Harry Balsley spent a few days in the city last week, calling on the trade. Mr. Balsley reports the pot business good.

Smith & Young have been cutting some extra fine Killarney lately. They also are cutting some Cattleya Trianæ.

Frank Soule, formerly with John Rieman, but later of Seattle, Wash., is back at the old stand. He says Indianapolis is good enough for him.

Ernest Rieman is back in the florist business after spending about four months on a jury. He says he has had enough jury service to do him the balance of his days.

Charles Wheatcraft has been sending in some good sweet peas.

Bertermann Bros. Co. is going to put in another automobile for delivery.

H. L. W.

Savanna, Ill.—The residence of J. Y. Lambert was burned to the ground December 30, with all its contents. The family were away from home at the time and, on returning, found that they had lost all their belongings except the clothes they were wearing.

GERANIUMS

A fine lot of young Geranium plants, just right to grow along into the finest kind of plants for spring sales. The finest varieties in their respective colors for bedding.

Marvel, dark red; A. Ricard, orange scarlet; Decorator, the improved Ricard; M. de Castellane, cherry red; Jean Viaud, pink; Castries, pink; Beaute de Poitevine, salmon; Countess de Harcourt, white. From 2-inch pots, $2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

This is The Florists' Manual

By William Scott

SECOND EDITION

THOROUGHLY REVISED AND BROUGHT UP TO DATE

NO SCIENCE, BUT LOTS OF PRACTICAL COMMON SENSE

"I have several times been consulted by those who would make a beginning in the Florists' business. In each case I have said that the first step is to subscribe for a Trade Paper, and the next to procure a copy of the Florists' Manual." —J. A. VALENTINE, Pres. Park Floral Co., Denver, Colo.

"Find enclosed $5 for the Florists' Manual, by William Scott. It is the best book of the age on commercial floriculture and should be in the home of every gardener."—CONRAD FORBACH, Buffalo, N. Y.

No dry-as-dust botanical classifications, but tells you just how to produce marketable plants and cut flowers in the best and cheapest way.

PELARGONIUMS.

PANSY GERANIUM, MRS. LAYAL.
This beautiful pelargonium is of the easiest growth, dwarf in habit, and literally covered with flowers all the time; and as it requires little or no attention, it is invaluable as a window plant. The coloring and marking of the flowers are most extraordinary, light pink, white, dark purple, black, etc., almost rivaling the pansy in uniqueness of flower. It is this combination of coloring which obtained for it the popular name of pansy geranium. Strong plants, $5.00 per 100.

DENVER.

The Market.

We had a touch of real winter, which reached the climax on New Year's day, when the thermometer registered 16 degrees below zero. At some of the greenhouses that were not sheltered it went as low as 22 degrees below. This lasted only a day or two, however, and since then we have had weather that would compare favorably with spring.

Business has kept up quite steadily since the holidays. Balls and receptions have been numerous and, with several funerals, have taken all the available stock, which is none too plentiful.

Carnations are off crop at several of the larger places. This is also true of tea roses and Beauties, but for once violets are up to the demand. Prices are about the same as before Christmas. A few Easter lilies are seen, but there is little call for them. Jonquils have made their appearance and are selling well.

Various Notes.

The Elitch-Long Flower Store had the decoration at the reception of the First National Bank in its new quarters, Monday, January 2. Numerous bouquets were sent to the officers, many of them being furnished by the Park Floral Co.

T. McDonald, the florist at Fifteenth and Lawrence streets, was probably the heaviest loser by reason of the recent cold weather. The steam pipes froze, and every cut flower and plant in his place was frozen. Several plants in the window of the Alpha Floral Co. were touched by frost, and all those in the windows of the Elitch-Long store were ruined.

The decorating at the Denver Club for its annual ball was done by A. H. Bush, of the Daniels & Fisher Stores Co. The scheme was quite unique and was highly complimented in the daily papers. M. R. J.

CALLA ELLIOTTIANA.

I should like to know something of the habit, requirements and capacity for bloom of Calla Elliottiana, as compared with C. Æthiopica. G. F. B.

The yellow Calla Elliottiana is a native of South Africa. Unlike C. Æthiopica, it is not a winter bloomer and has therefore less commercial value. The tubers should be started in heat in March or April and must be kept on the dry side until the pots are well filled with roots. Its natural flowering time is summer and a few pots make a pretty effect in a store window. Planted outdoors in rich soil, it succeeds better than when confined in pots and flowers for a number of weeks. Clumps of it in the flower garden are quite effective. It is usually propagated from seeds, which the plant produces in abundance. Before freezing weather occurs, the roots must be lifted and stored in a dry shed or cellar for the winter. Commercially speaking, Calla Elliottiana has no great value. Were it a persistent winter bloomer it would be different.

Greenhouse Heating.

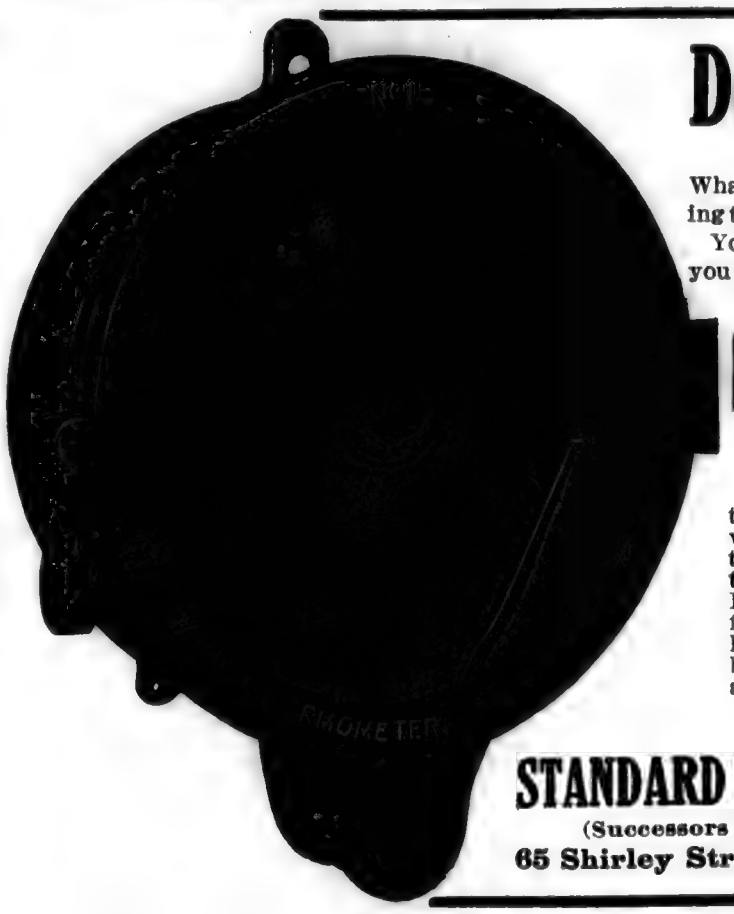
FROM HOT WATER TO STEAM.

As we contemplate building more greenhouses and will necessarily have to increase our heating capacity, we have decided to change from hot water to steam, so that one chimney and one boiler may do the work for the plant.

We have at present three houses, each 28x100 and six feet to the gutters. They run east and west. At the east end of the north house there is a brick office, and at the west end of two houses is the work shed. We have a Kroeschell boiler, with three openings in the top, from which 4-inch flows are taken, one for each house. These rise to the highest point in each house and flow the length of the house on the north side; then they branch and return under each bench through twenty-one 1½-inch returns, except in the south house, which has twenty-three returns. We wish to know what are the necessary changes in piping, etc.

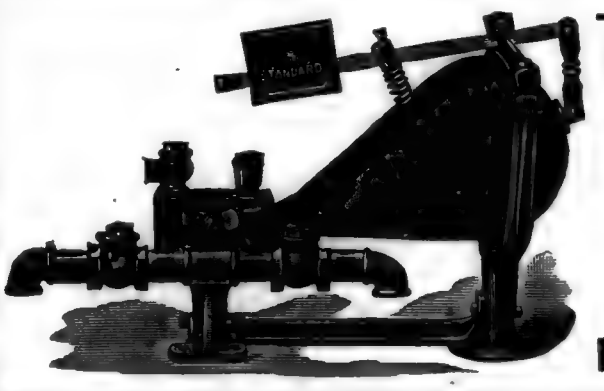
The intended addition will consist of one house, 18x100, north of the present building, and another house, 20x100. The north house will have a solid board wall on the north side; the south house will have three feet of glass in the south side. We wish to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees when the weather is 22 degrees below zero. We are located in southern Nebraska. H. L. H.

If the present heating system is to be used, the temperature desired can be maintained with steam by using twelve 1½-inch pipes in the three 28-foot houses, where they have no exposed walls. Two additional pipes will be desirable for each exposed 6-foot wall. In the new house, use one 2-inch overhead flow and seven 1½-inch returns in the 18-foot house and ten returns in the 20-foot house.



Instead of keeping the 4-inch overhead flows in the 28-foot houses, it would be better to take them out and substitute one 2½-inch flow in each house.

GREENHOUSES AND DWELLING.



I am sending you a sketch of my greenhouses and should like to know whether the system of piping there indicated would be the best for the purpose, and whether the boiler I have is large enough. I am heating the three short houses and wish to add the long house and also my dwelling house, which contains eight rooms. The boiler I am using is a fire-box boiler, eight feet long, with a 32-inch shell and forty 2-inch flues, each five feet long. The fire grate is 2x3 feet. The boiler is tapped for one 4-inch main.

All are connected houses, except that the west house is separated from the others by a glass partition, as I wish to carry a temperature of 65 degrees in that house and 50 degrees in the others. The outside temperature here, in central Michigan, sometimes drops to 20 degrees below zero. C. A. H.

The sketch shows three coils, each containing five 1-inch pipes, in two houses 21x57, in which a temperature of 50 degrees is desired, and the same number of pipes and coils in the other house of this size and with three feet of glass in the west wall, in which a temperature of 65 degrees is desired. The pipes in the latter house, however, are 1¼-inch. The new house is 21x96, with

FLORISTS' REVIEW

When Writing Advertisers

GREENHOUSE HEATING

is a perplexing question to all florists EXCEPT those using

MOREHEAD STEAM TRAPS

¶ The installation of a Morehead Return Steam Trap in a Greenhouse is absolute evidence of progressiveness on the part of the florist.

¶ It is further evidence of good management, for the "Morehead" is an investment in both satisfaction and economy.

¶ The majority of florists are using Morehead Traps. If you are one of the exceptions, it will be to your interest to write us—we will make you a liberal trial offer proposition.

Ferguson Bros., Omaha, Neb., write as follows:

It might interest you to know the results obtained with the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler and Kroeschell Piping system.

We have just had a night of 14° below with a stiff wind blowing and we carried the house at 52° with the boiler at 170°. The house is piped for 50° and as we are using a cheap grade of slack, the result speaks for itself.

We were told by the dealer when we ordered the coal that we could not burn it, so we bought a car of good coal to help along if the slack would not give results, but it was not necessary. The Kroeschell Generator certainly helps the circulation and the new method of piping for hot water is a surprise to some of the greenhouse men in this vicinity.

KROESCHELL BROS. CO., 444 West Erie St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Mention The Review when you write.

two and one-half feet of glass in the east wall, and shows three coils containing five 1-inch pipes. A temperature of 50 degrees is desired in this house. The piping seems to be properly arranged and adjusted, except that for the short houses, in which 50 degrees is desired, four 1-inch pipes in each of the coils would probably answer. Thirteen or fourteen 1-inch pipes should answer in the long house, for 50 degrees.

There is also a house 8x84, across the north end of the other houses, in which a temperature of 40 degrees is desired. The coil of three 1-inch pipes, together with the 3-inch main which passes through it, should give the heat desired.

The question does not give the size of the dwelling, but in severe weather the boiler would probably have all that it could handle to heat the five greenhouses. When 10 degrees above zero outside, however, it could probably heat the dwelling as well. The use of a single stove in the dwelling, when the mercury drops to zero and below, would probably furnish all of the heat needed.

ATTACHING A GENERATOR.

In attaching a generator to a hot water system, with the tank up above the boiler, higher than any other part of the plant, does the hot water have to travel all around the system before the generator begins to work? The generator is to be attached to the main return near the boiler, and connected directly with the tank above. Some of the water travels 180 feet and back.

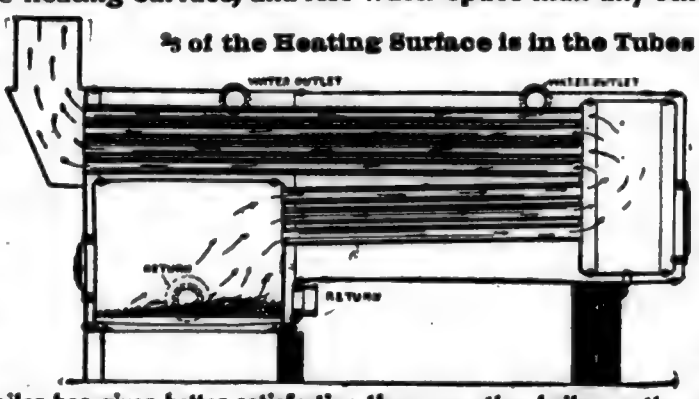
It is difficult to make out just what information is desired, from the way the question is written. The best way would be to connect the expansion tank with the highest part of the flow pipe. The circulation begins as soon as the water in the boiler becomes hot, the heavier cold water pressing in from the return and forcing the warmer and lighter water from the boiler up into the flow pipe. The circulation is continued and becomes more rapid as the temperature of the water increases.



Whatever method of obtaining a closed system is used, for the purpose of running it under pressure, there is practically no effect until the water in the boiler has reached about 212 degrees, which would be the boiling point in an open system. By closing the system it is possible to raise the temperature at which the water will boil, and this not only hastens the circulation, but, as the water in the coils will also be hotter, the efficiency of the radiating surface is increased proportionately. Where a generator is used it goes on the pipe leading to the expansion tank.

THE PENDULUM SWINGS BACK

Some have claimed that a roof supported this way is the only way.

First it is one extreme and then the other. Neither all columns nor all truss has been our position. The growers are beginning to see it's right, and the pendulum is swinging back again.

Others have demanded the opposite extreme in a house, with no columns and full of trussing.

Time and time again we have flatly refused to take orders offered to us, simply because the kind of a house we were asked to build, was impractical. Sometimes we have lost business by it—that is to say, lost that particular order—but inevitably, such men come back when they build again. Why do they come back? They have found out that we knew what we were talking about. They come back to get the benefit of an experience such as no other builder in the land has.

283 expert greenhouse men and 50 years of experience; that's what they have working for them when they buy a house from us. In the construction engineering force alone there are eighteen men. When you build you need the benefit of these men's brains—need them because greenhouse building nowadays requires the greatest skill of expert greenhouse engineers, not just builders. That is, if you want safe, sound, enduring houses having the highest efficiency. And as we understand it, you are that kind of a man.

Take up with us that house you intend building.

THE STANDARD PUMPING ENGINE

For Greenhouse Water Supply

These pictures were taken from the Coe Ridge Greenhouses, belonging to Mr. Asher M. Coe, a very successful florist in North Olmsted, Ohio. A letter from Mr. Coe to the Standard Pump & Engine Company appears below.

Coe Ridge, North Olmsted, Ohio, Dec. 23, 1910.

The Standard Pump & Engine Co.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—

I have used a Standard Pumping Engine for over eight years. It is always ready, and I don't need to get up steam or wait for the wind to blow. It is a necessity to florists away from hydrant water, and sometimes much cheaper than hydrant water, and away cheaper than a steam pump. I have about 14,000 feet of glass, and use about $10.00 worth of gasoline a year. Gas is still cheaper. The repairs are nothing, and it never breaks down.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Asher M. Coe.

The Market.

There seems to be no let-up to business as yet. Flowers have been none too plentiful since Christmas. Prices, however, are a little lower now. Carnations retail at 60 cents and 75 cents per dozen; a few have been bringing $1 per dozen. Roses retail at $1.50 and $2 per dozen. Violets sell at $1.50 per hundred blooms, sweet peas at $1.50 per hundred blooms, and Paper Whites at 50 cents per dozen.

Some nice flowering plants are still to be seen in the stores. Stevia is about all gone. Candytuft helps out a good deal.

Various Notes.

R. H. Woodhouse had a good wedding order last week, in which he used immense quantities of ferns, Killarney roses, asparagus greens, palms and other decorative plants. He also had the order for the bridal bouquet, consisting of 300 lily of the valley, with a shower effect, using Farleyense also with fine effect. He reports business fine.

E. H. Chamberlain reports business as great since the holidays, there being no let-up as yet.

Wm. P. Peirce reports business as first-class. Funeral work has also been good with him. Last week he had some nice lilies at his store.

Wm. H. Davenport has still some fine plants in his window. W. L.

The Market.

The holiday season over, business has reverted to its normal status and the continued dark weather keeps the stock cleaned up closely. Funeral work is plentiful and the social whirl, being in full swing, keeps the decorators busy.

The local greenhouses are so well supplied that it is hardly necessary for the retailers to go out of town for stock. Daffodils, tulips, Romans and sweet peas are arriving in goodly quantity and quality, but the demand for such novelties is just as good.

There is a slump in the plant end of the retail business since cut stock is back to saner prices, and it is to be hoped that the growers and wholesalers have learned a lesson thereby.

Various Notes.

The Flower Shop, located near the Jones-Russell Co., on Euclid avenue, was closed last week by one of its creditors.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Frank A. Friedley and Miss Anna M. Dress, which took place December 28. Mr. Friedley is manager of the J. M. Gasser Co. greenhouses and is popular among the florists of the city. All join in congratulating him and wishing him many years of happiness.

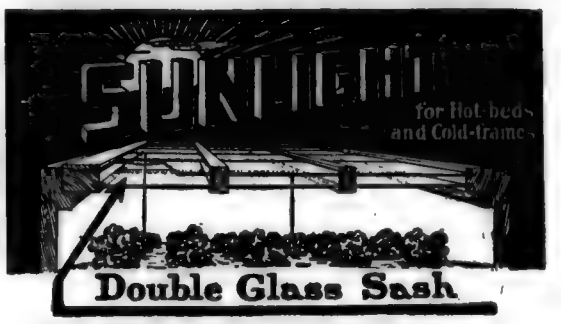
A fierce gale struck Cleveland Monday, January 9, and created havoc with plate glass windows, telephone and telegraph wires, etc. Among the unfortunate was Mrs. Lincoln Brown, Detroit and West Seventy-fifth streets, whose large corner window was blown in and all the plants and flowers in the window were destroyed.

Knoble Bros. decorated 132 tables and three parlors at the Hollenden hotel New Year's eve.

The Florists' Bowling Club was reorganized recently and showed good form the first night. Rivalry is strong between the growers and retailers and some good scores are looked for.

F. J. Ritzenthaler, of Knoble Bros., visited at Canton Monday, January 2.

The Jones-Russell Co. had a big decoration at the Excelsior Club last week for one of the largest Jewish society affairs of the season.



The J. M. Gasser Co. reports a good business for all of last week. Their greenhouses are sending in some excellent Killarney.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange made a big showing last week in Killarney, Beauties and carnations.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

THE MODEL FLOWER SHOP.

One of the most unique of the educational exhibits that maiks the big electrical exposition now in progress at the Coliseum, Chicago, is that of the Fleischman Floral Co., coöperating with the Commonwealth Edison Co. In preparing for the show the electrical company planned a demonstration of modern store illumination and invited the coöperation of one leading retailer in each of some half-dozen lines. The Fleischman people were quick to see the advertising value of representation in such a display. Commonwealth avenue was laid out across the Coliseum, with its row of model stores. There is a grocery store, a dry goods store, a haberdashery and several other lines besides the florist are represented. In each case a complete store has been fitted up, with elaborate window display and the finest illumination which modern electrical devices make possible. The accompanying illustration shows the Fleischman front and its neighbor to the right. The electrical show runs a fortnight and is attracting enormous crowds. There is no feature of the display that gets closer attention than does the row of model stores, and of these Fleischman holds his full share of the crowd. No goods are sold at the Coliseum, but orders are taken for delivery from the Jackson boulevard establishment. A great many florists have visited the show for the purpose of inspecting the store illuminations, and one of the results will be a higher grade of lighting in Chicago flower shops.

THE SHOWER EPOCH.

The Many Uses of the Shower.

Since the introduction of the shower attachment to the bride's bouquet, this dainty accessory has led to variations in the hand and corsage bouquet for formal occasions and has extended itself to almost every form of floral decoration. Besides the showered hand bouquet, we now have the arm shower, the prayer-book shower, the wrist shower, the fan shower, the showered corsage and the wide band of ribbon worn above the elbow, from which a short shower depends.

In table decorations there are showers from a shade over the table to a centerpiece or mirror below; showers from a basket or canoe; from a small Japanese umbrella frame, suspended from a chandelier, the showers being attached to the ends of the ribs.

Bridal Corners, Banquet Rooms, etc.

For a bridal corner a larger sized umbrella is similarly treated. Or a canopy is showered from the far-back corner downward, and shorter streamers fringe the foreground. Or an immense bridal wreath overhead is showered with streamers and clusters of bells, with or without small flowers. A large basket with a shower of tiny baskets makes an attractive bridal corner.

When in doubt as to the "how" to decorate a mirror, bank below with a massive, rich group of blooming plants or large cut flowers, and shower from the ceiling or from the top of the frame, densely but not heavily, watching jealously lest you steal too much of the reflecting surface.

For the decoration of the banquet room, aside from the table, festoon the ceiling with short drapes of green in regular lines, and from these drapes, or from the points where they are caught up, hang showers of chiffon butterflies of as many colors as the coloring will allow. Hundreds of them could be used, of all sizes, ad infinitum.

In Funeral Work.

Funeral work is not exempt from the shower style of elaboration. When a large spray is wanted, instead of making it much longer than the casket, limit the length to that of the casket and add a shower to the ends and sides. Begin with the tie and drape the showers over the stems, letting them fall to the floor. This will soften the outlines and suggestions of the casket, and, if not lowered with it, will cover the grave. Use ribbon, sprays of green and small flowers. Your handsome standing wreath can be converted into the cascade style by the addition of the same kind of showers, attached to the lower

The Market.

The holiday season over, business has reverted to its normal status and the continued dark weather keeps the stock cleaned up closely. Funeral work is plentiful and the social whirl, being in full swing, keeps the decorators busy.

The local greenhouses are so well supplied that it is hardly necessary for the retailers to go out of town for stock. Daffodils, tulips, Romans and sweet peas are arriving in goodly quantity and quality, but the demand for such novelties is just as good.

There is a slump in the plant end of the retail business since cut stock is back to saner prices, and it is to be hoped that the growers and wholesalers have learned a lesson thereby.

Various Notes.

The Flower Shop, located near the Jones Russell Co., on Euclid avenue, was closed last week by one of its creditors.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Frank A. Friedley and Miss Anna M. Dress, which took place December 28. Mr. Friedley is manager of the J. M. Gasser Co. greenhouses and is popular among the florists of the city. All join in congratulating him and wishing him many years of happiness.

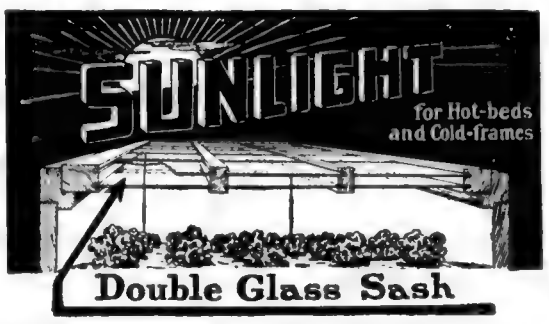
A fierce gale struck Cleveland Monday, January 9, and created havoc with plate glass windows, telephone and telegraph wires, etc. Among the unfortunate was Mrs. Lincoln Brown, Detroit and West Seventy-fifth streets, whose large corner window was blown in and all the plants and flowers in the window were destroyed.

Knoble Bros. decorated 132 tables and three parlors at the Hollenden hotel New Year's eve.

The Florists' Bowling Club was reorganized recently and showed good form the first night. Rivalry is strong between the growers and retailers and some good scores are looked for.

F. J. Ritzenthaler, of Knoble Bros., visited at Canton Monday, January 2.

The Jones-Russell Co. had a big decoration at the Excelsior Club last week for one of the largest Jewish society affairs of the season.



The J. M. Gasser Co. reports a good business for all of last week. Their greenhouses are sending in some excellent Killarney.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange made a big showing last week in Killarney, Beauties and carnations.

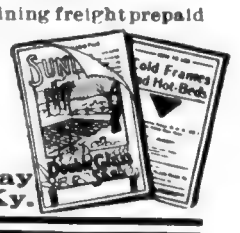
Treat your plants right! Use Sunlight Double Glass Sash

A ⅝ inch layer of dry still air between the two layers of glass, affords ample Protection in the coldest weather.



This transparent blanket eliminates all mats, boards or coverings of any kind, and does away with the hard work.

Plants get all the light all the time which makes them grow faster and sturdier and puts them on the market weeks in advance of those grown under single glass sash. Glass is held in place without putty. Can't work loose. Easily replaced.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

THE MODEL FLOWER SHOP.

One of the most unique of the educational exhibits that marks the big electrical exposition now in progress at the Coliseum, Chicago, is that of the Fleischman Floral Co., coöperating with the Commonwealth Edison Co. In preparing for the show the electrical company planned a demonstration of modern store illumination and invited the coöperation of one leading retailer in each of some half-dozen lines. The Fleischman people were quick to see the advertising value of representation in such a display. Commonwealth avenue was laid out across the Coliseum, with its row of model stores. There is a grocery store, a dry goods store, a haberdashery and several other lines besides the florist are represented. In each case a complete store has been fitted up, with elaborate window display and the finest illumination which modern electrical devices make possible. The accompanying illustration shows the Fleischman front and its neighbor to the right. The electrical show runs a fortnight and is attracting enormous crowds. There is no feature of the display that gets closer attention than does the row of model stores, and of these Fleischman holds his full share of the crowd. No goods are sold at the Coliseum, but orders are taken for delivery from the Jackson boulevard establishment. A great many florists have visited the show for the purpose of inspecting the store illuminations, and one of the results will be a higher grade of lighting in Chicago flower shops.

THE SHOWER EPOCH.

The Many Uses of the Shower.

Since the introduction of the shower attachment to the bride's bouquet, this dainty accessory has led to variations in the hand and corsage bouquet for formal occasions and has extended itself to almost every form of floral decoration. and upper arcs of the wreath after it has been filled as for an ordinary piece. Let the streamers fall over the larger flowers used in the base.

On Baskets and in Windows.

From the tall handle of a large basket for whatever purpose, if a chiffon tie is used, hang a light shower of a color which shall harmonize with the color scheme of the basket. It need not envelop the basket, but should hang over one side of the handle and well toward the base of the basket.

Many of these plans may be used for window decorations, and can be lasting if the sprays of green and flowers are set in Kift vases.

Many flowers, by their style of arrangement on the stem, make natural shower material; for instance, swainsona, asparagus in bloom, smilax in bloom, etc.

A WOODMEN'S DESIGN.

In estimating the merits of the Modern Woodmen's design which is here illustrated, the excellence of the work will be more readily admitted if the reader agrees with a statement recently made by one of The Review's correspondents in regard to this particular sort of design. The correspondent referred to, writing on the subject of "Society Emblems in Flowers," in the issue of December 29, pronounces the Woodmen's design one of the most difficult to execute, and then adds: "To my way of thinking, the best way to make the design is by placing a small sized woodmen's ax on a panel nicely trimmed with flowers, and the wordbe wished. The sledge hammer and log, made of light pink carnations, and the ax and wedge, made of red carnations, are all sufficiently clear in outline and sufficiently artistic. The parts which bear the lettering are finished in white carnations. The slender bordering of smilax, with the projecting points of the fern fronds, makes an effective finishing touch.

Mr. Evans is now manager for J. F. Ammann, at Alton, Ill.

WHAT'S IN THE BOX?

Or How Do Appearances Count?

The manner in which flowers are delivered frequently counts for more than the flowers themselves. Who would not rather receive a gift of two-dollar-a-dozen roses carefully packed in a neat, clean box, with a spray or two of adiantum or mignonette, than a huge bunch of Beauties in a paper gaping at the top or frayed at the bottom, and tied with a cotton string? I should like to meet the person who is more easily tempted by a manila bag of the finest candy than by a commonplace brand displayed immaculately in a dainty box or basket. I am willing to admit a weakness for attractive umbrella handles, to the neglect of the quality of the cover.

Genius in rags never did commend itself.

Fine quality of flowers in slouchy packages never gained a patron.

The Best Box.

But neither were gaudy boxes ever fitting receptacles, nor helpful in developing the best in flowers and foliage.

ing, 'Modern Woodmen,' on a background of white flowers."

If there are special difficulties in the working out of the Woodmen's design, the difficulties seem to have been pretty thoroughly overcome by H. G. Evans, the designer in the present instance. He has succeeded in making the various details of the piece as distinct, and at the same time as graceful, as could well

Richness of quality, modesty in color, absence of decoration, good taste in printing mark the artist of the box.

A good grade of board is always the cheapest box, as it better stands handling and requires no decoration. In color it may be cream, white, gray or dull green, without colored lining. One of these colors will serve as a trademark, and should belong to the store, like the style of script or the stationery design.

No color wears better than a cream or gray for the lifetime of a store. Little besides the name and location should appear on the box, and if the firm is well known the address may be omitted. An inconspicuous trade-mark may sometimes be worked in to advantage.

Special boxes for special flowers, as for violets, are not often happy selections, except as to size. Their colors cannot approach the living hues of the flowers and had better not be attempted. A white violet box without a picture or the printed word "violets" is in the best taste.

While speaking of violet boxes, we should be generous with the length of them. Don't stub the toes of your flowers. Since the single violets with long stems have come so much into vogue we ought to have offered to us a special violet box of good depth and length, say twelve to fifteen inches, which will carry not only a round bunch of good size, but a showered corsage. A little clip fastened in the inside of the bottom, to hold a bunch in place when the box is turned on end or upside down, would be convenient. The same arrangement would be a good scheme for securing an arm burst or a shower bouquet in its place in the box.

Tinted lining for boxes should be kept in the neutral colors. Who hasn't had his eyes hurt by seeing a pink-lined box used for scarlet carnations or yellow daffodils? The same holds true of the waxed paper which is the final lining of the box. White and manila are the only sure colors. Where several colors can be kept in stock for different flowers, the case is different. One can then choose the correct thing.

Although good boxes add to the expense account, it costs more to do without them.

Speaking of refined acessories recalls a story told by a student who never realized till years had elapsed how he had been treated by his landlady of college days. She served only bread and sauce for tea every night. But the linen was immaculate, the silver was polished and, with good cheer, the balance of the menu was not missed.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.

Retail florists should not lose sight of St. Valentine's day; it is a day that has been rapidly growing in importance in the last few years. Push for business and February 14 you can do several times your usual daily average. Flowers are much more acceptable valentines than are even the frilliest of the tissue-paper creations with the amorous verse.

To get action for St. Valentine's day you need only to call attention to the suitability of flowers for that day's purpose. Use your show window; you cannot dress it too "heartily" for the week before. Most of the valentines from the florist's take the form of corsage bouquets, more or less elaborate, or simple boxes of loose cut flowers. Have both in your window. Plan the decorations now. Begin early, with just a suggestion of Valentine's day in your display, and work up to a full Valentine's window to go in February 11 and continue to include February 14. Last year one retailer bought a big, flossy paper affair after the most approved old style and put it in his window beside a modern hamper containing a corsage bouquet of violets. Between the two he put a cord lettered:

WHICH?
WE offer the sweets of Nature
For the Sweets of Earth.

Don't overlook your local newspaper as a means of reaching the valentine-buying public. Its powers are even greater than those of your show window. Offer in your ads corsages and boxes of loose cut flowers for St. Valentine's day. Quote a price or two. Don't let the candy man beat you to it—he knows the paper things are out of date.

Cuts in an ad always help to attract attention. Reproduced herewith is one of a corsage bunch of violets The Review has had made to help retailers push the sale of these flowers for St. Valentine's day. A duplicate of it will be sent postpaid to anyone who will pay its cost, 60 cents.

Violets are abundant this year and will not be high in price for St. Valentine's day. Gardenias, "the bosom friend of violets," also are plentiful and not expensive. Cattleyas promise to be in full crop for the first part of February, and there will be plenty of other flowers in the wholesale market. Prices will not be high, quality will be good, and there is big opportunity for profit. Why not get busy?

Arrange for your supply of boxes, ribbons, ties, shields, etc.

Canandaigua, N. Y.—R. H. McKerr is shipping a fine crop of single violets to Syracuse, where they are in demand.

CUT FLOWER BOXES.

With the retail florists who cater to wealthy trade the effort ever is to do things just a little better than others do them. For that reason leaders in the line have taken to the use of made-up boxes, not to the exclusion of the folding box or the corrugated box, for each is indispensable, but for putting up the highest class of orders. The accompanying illustration shows such boxes, made up to order for Chicago retailers. The samples were supplied by H. Schultz & Co., 531 West Superior street, Chicago. The boxes in the center are, of course, for designs, etc., those at the left for loose cut flowers like roses and carnations, while the smaller boxes at the right are for violets or sweet peas made up in corsages. The good taste that is displayed in these boxes is as easily adaptable to folding boxes. The retailer for whom the cut flower boxes at the left were made chose pure white for his scheme; the only touch of color is a gold band around the edge of the cover, the name being also in gold. The retailer for whom the design boxes were made selected gray for his entire line—not a bit of color on it except the gilt lettering for the name; no address. The violet boxes are violet in color. The gray boxes are not lined, but the others are lined with pure white. Your tasteful retailer fights shy of bright colors.

This Cut, Postpaid, 60 cents.

With the made-up boxes all the first-class stores have special fancy tags. The appearance of the outside of the package is of importance scarcely less than the appearance inside. First impressions count for a great deal.

STIGMONOSE.

You will find enclosed some foliage from my carnations, which are affected with some sort of disease. Will you please tell me what is the cause of it and what I can do to remedy it?

L. F.

The leaves forwarded were full of stigmonose, a disease which you will find difficult, though not impossible, to work out of your stock. Outside of good culture, your only remedy lies in careful selection of cuttings. Select those which seem free from the disease each season, and in the course of three or four years, if the variety is not too far down the toboggan, your stock may be quite clean.

The introduction of the disease being through the punctures of insects, it is therefore essential that you keep your plants free from these pests. Picking off these spotted leaves will, of course, help the appearance of the plants, though I doubt whether it will help much to eradicate the trouble. Do not overfeed the plants, as that, or anything else which tends toward softness of growth, will aggravate the trouble.

A. F. J. B.

WEAK, THIN STEMS.

I shall be greatly obliged to you if you will tell me what is the trouble with my carnations. They seem to be perfectly healthy and the stems are rather longer than the average. The flowers are good sized ones, but the stems are weak and thin and hardly able to bear the weight of the flowers.

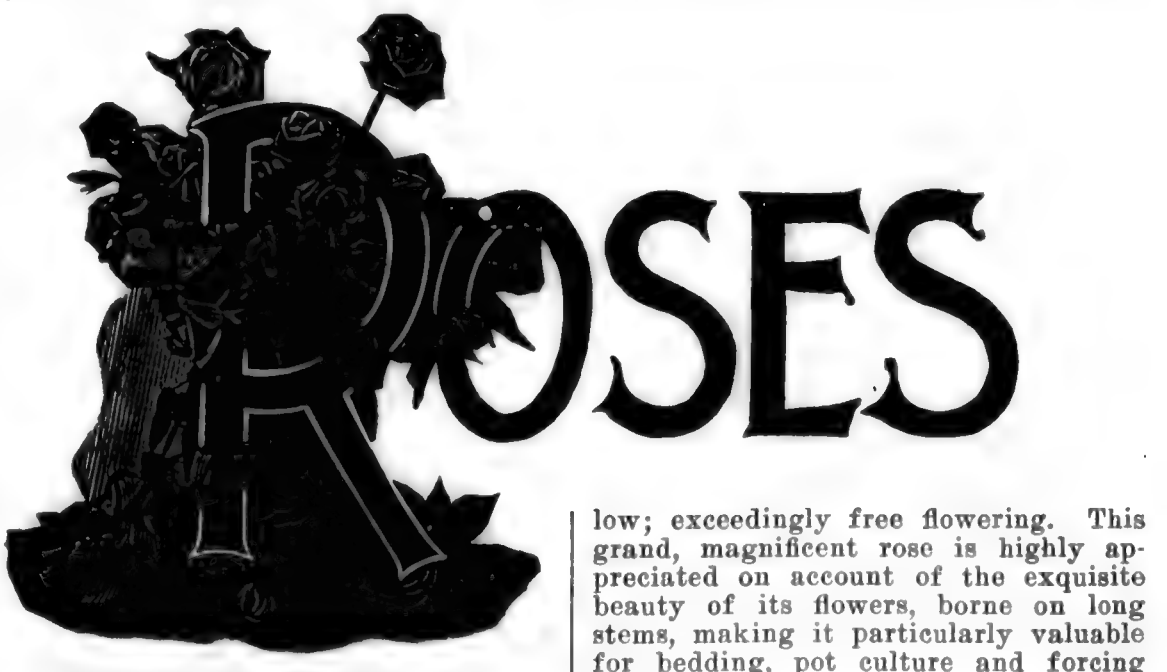
I have two varieties, Enchantress and White Perfection. I keep a night temperature of 48 to 50 degrees and give them as much air as possible in the day time. I have always kept them rather on the dry side and have fed them every ten or twelve days with light liquid cow manure. I have used a good fibrous loam and cow manure as compost. The plants are planted eight inches apart. I believe the cuttings came from plants that had been overpropagated, as they show slight signs of stigmonose. Do you believe that a top-dressing of soot would help to strengthen the stems?

L. M.

Weakened constitution and close planting may be at the bottom of your troubles. Your temperature and ventilation seem to be about right and should have a tendency to produce strong stems. Eight inches is certainly not enough space for any kind of Enchantress plant, and if you had good plants of White Perfection they should have more space too. Enchantress needs at least 108 square inches of space, or 9x12 inches. White Perfection can get along with ninety square inches, or 9x10 inches, unless the plants are unusually large for that variety.

Your soil may also be deficient in lime, and I would advise you to give the beds a light sprinkling of air-slaked lime or wood ashes every two weeks, giving three applications. If you can get wood ashes, I should prefer them to the lime. Use about a 3-inch potful of wood ashes to each row of plants halfway across a 5-foot bench. Of the lime, use about half that amount. Water in well, after scratching the surface of the soil slightly. In about two weeks you will see a decided stiffening of the growth. Do not go to extremes, on the supposition that if an ounce is good, a pound must be better. Too much will make the stems brittle at the joints, so that they will snap off in handling. We have seen them so brittle that the blooms would snap off the stems with their weight while standing in a vase.

Propagate only from plants along the edge of the bench, as these will likely have more substance. A. F. J. B.



CHLORIDE OF LIME IN WATER.

Referring to the discussion in recent issues of The Review, E. M., who asked the original query as to the effect of the use of water in which chloride of lime has been used for disinfecting, says: "Water with chloride of lime in quantities necessary for destruction of typhoid germs has been used in the entire plant for the last four or five months, with, we think, unfavorable results. Carnations are apparently healthy but do not have that robust, strong growth they should have and are slow of growth. Cuttings in the sand are slow to root and the loss is more than it should be. All this under the most favorable condition to produce the best results. Rose plants benched last spring were growing strong and healthy until about the time, as near as I can remember, when the water was treated with chloride of lime. The leaves turned yellow and became thin and weak and growth almost stopped. The roses so remain at the present time. This condition is most noticeable on the latest set plants. The only other cause for the trouble would be the use of some hog manure."

NAME OF CARNATION.

Please state what is the name of the enclosed carnation. J. E. M.

The bloom forwarded was too badly wilted to permit a positive opinion about the variety. The stem and calyx had the appearance of Lawson. There are, however, several deep pink varieties on the market now, many of them descendants from Lawson and somewhat similar in growth. A. F. J. B.

RIVOIRE AND DE BULGARIE.

I noted with interest the discussion of the two roses, Antoine Rivoire and Prince de Bulgarie, in The Review of January 12, page 8. I have both varieties in my collection of 220 kinds, and both were imported directly from the originator and introducer, Pernet-Ducher. I quote his descriptions verbatim from his latest catalogue:

"Antoine Rivoire (Pernet-Ducher), large, full flower, camellia shaped; color, rosy flesh, shaded and edged with deep carmine; base of petals yellow; very free flowering and vigorous; a most beautiful rose, excellent for all purposes.

"Prince de Bulgarie (Pernet-Ducher), very vigorous grower, with large, bright green foliage; fine, long, graceful buds; very large flowers, full and of elongated, cupped form, with large petals; color, silvery flesh, deeper in the center, delicately shaded salmon and saffron yellow; exceedingly free flowering. This grand, magnificent rose is highly appreciated on account of the exquisite beauty of its flowers, borne on long stems, making it particularly valuable for bedding, pot culture and forcing purposes."

The plants, as grown in the open here, are true to these color descriptions. Grown side by side, they are so distinct that there is scarcely a possibility of confusing them. The colors are even more distinct than the descriptions would seem to indicate. A lady here once described Prince de Bulgarie as white with an orange-sherbet center, which is rather apt. There is a marked difference in the shape of the blossoms and also in the growth of the plants, Antoine Rivoire being upright and Prince de Bulgarie rather low and spreading. Personally, I should not describe either as "very vigorous," though both are good growers when budded on strong roots. Both stand our hot Kansas summers well, becoming much lighter in color in July and August. Prince de Bulgarie is one of the most delicately beautiful roses I have ever seen. W. A. Harshbarger.

ORCHIDS

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Cattleyas.

Cattleya Trianæ will be the only variety in season in quantity for some time yet. It is in some ways a fickle and disappointing orchid, for even when it makes up fine bulbs, which would win our applause, they prove trying to the grower when they produce a single flower per sheath, instead of three or four, which have been expected. Keeping the plants too far from the light is often the cause of their flowering sparsely. Overshading is also responsible in part.

As soon as the flowering season is over, do any necessary repotting. Plants which have roots and growths hanging over the sides of the pots must be attended to. No cattleyas which have quantities of roots running into the atmosphere can be in as vigorous a condition as those which have their roots inside the pots. The old idea about these plants living on atmospheric moisture is the rankest nonsense.

Cattleya Schrœderæ.

Cattleya Schrœderæ, which immediately follows C. Trianæ in blooming, has its buds showing in the sheaths. This cattleya is rather high priced to be extensively grown commercially. Its color also, which is pale, is not as popular as the deeper colored varieties. It, however, comes in at a time when cattleyas are unusually scarce. C. Mossiæ now has its growths well made up and a month hence it will be possible to see the colors of the buds in the sheaths.

Apply water rather sparingly at this season to all cattleyas. Do not give any shade at all as yet. Never mind if the bulbs and leaves take on a slightly saffron-like hue; they will be harder and prove more floriferous than the softer dark green ones grown in shade.

Cattleya Fly.

That terrible pest, the cattleya fly, is the bane of cattleya growers. It usually comes on newly imported stock of C. labiata. Its presence is easily told by the unusually swollen appearance of the new growths. When these growths appear examine them closely. Such as are extra thick will probably be found, when cut through the center with a sharp knife, to contain about half a dozen larvæ or flies, which should be destroyed at once. If the growth is left a little too long, the flies will be sometimes found winged and ready for flight. If they have escaped, it means that so many more young growths will be stung and ruined. Cutting off handfuls of young growths seems radical and cruel, but it is the best remedy leading to extermination. Any failure to cut off the growths will result in the almost total ruination of not only C. labiata, but all others of the labiata section. The long bulbed varieties, such as Harrisoniæ, Bowringeana, etc., are less affected; so are the long bulbed lælias, such as elegans and purpurata. Strong fumigation once a week during the spring season, when the flies are most numerous, will help in some measure to diminish their numbers.

Dendrobiums.

Many of the plants of Dendrobium nobile will now have reached sufficient development so that the flower buds can be counted. Those plants which have nodes of sufficient size should be moved into a warmer house, and just as soon as it is seen that there is no longer any danger of their becoming growths instead of flowers, afford more moisture at the root to assist in the development of the flowers. If the plants are not wanted in flower until, say, the end of March, they must be kept cool and dry at the root for some weeks longer. A temperature of 45 to 48 degrees will answer well, and if the plants are sprayed over thrice a week they will need no water at the root.

D. Wardianum already, in some cases, has buds showing color. This is a fine commercial variety, its large, handsome flowers making a grand show. Retail florists who can hang a few baskets in their window, allowing the pseudo-bulbs to droop naturally, can produce a fine effect. This dendrobe, unfortunately, runs out much earlier than those of the nobile type. When fully expanded, the dendrobiums can be hung or stood in a house the temperature of which averages 50 degrees at night, and if shaded from direct sun will keep fresh much longer than if held in a warm house.

Where it is wished to increase the stock of dendrobiums, cut off a quantity of the old pseudo-bulbs which have flowered in preceding years. Cut these in pieces four to six inches long and lay on sphagnum moss in flats. Stand these below a bench, where there is not much drip nor bottom heat, and they will soon start to root and make new growths. These, if placed several together in pans or baskets, will make nice plants a year later. On some of the plants there are probably young plants produced on the old flowering bulbs. If these are cut off and placed in pans or baskets in an equal mixture of fern fiber and sphagnum, they will soon grow into good flowering plants.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Dahlias and Cannas.

It is yet much too early to think about starting roots of either dahlias or cannas for spring sales, but there is a possibility of rot starting among them, and if they are looked over occasionally and decaying portions carefully removed, it may mean a considerable saving of stock before spring. If you want to try a few dahlias for spring flowering under glass, they should be started now. Select small clumps; lay them on a bed of moss on a bench in a warm house. Spray occasionally until they break; then divide the clumps and plant them out in a bed or bench where they will have good head room and a night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees. Allow two feet between the plants and thirty inches in the rows, and be sure to use a stout stake for each plant. Dahlias are still something of a novelty in spring. There are always people who are looking for something out of the common, and dahlias in April and May will be welcomed by them.

Giganteum Lilies.

Longiflorum lilies of the giganteum type should now have the pots well filled with roots and the tops two or three inches high. Plants in this condition want a night temperature of 60 to 65 degrees and they are then sure to flower in ample time for Easter. Any which are well rooted, but which have not started to push their growths yet, can also be placed in heat. It is a great deal better to give a good heat right along, increasing it if necessary after the buds show, than to endeavor to bring them on in a temperature of 50 to 55 degrees. Giganteums seem to particularly enjoy a brisk heat during their whole growing season. It may seem a far-away cry to Easter, but it is better to take time by the forelock now, rather than subject the plants to violent heat in a frantic effort to bloom them on time.

Lilium Candidum.

Unlike the giganteums, Lilium candidum is ruined by hard forcing. It should never be grown warmer than 50 degrees at night, if large flowers with plenty of substance are desired. If the plants are now four to six inches high, they are all right and will need no extra forcing to hurry them. When well grown and of the true north of France type, the old Madonna lily will take second place to no other variety. Never omit the weekly fumigation. If you do, you will find the lower sides of the leaves which are near the surface of the pots alive with green aphis. Candidums are strong rooters and will be much improved by the application of liquid manure once a week from now on.

Spiræa Japonica.

If the newly imported spiræa clumps have had a good freezing, a batch should be potted up and placed in a warm, moist house. These would be rather too early for Easter, but spiræas are such neat pot plants that there is a sale for them over quite a long period. The old S. Japonica is a cheap variety and still much grown, especially for cutting at Memorial day, but in pots such sorts as Gladstone, astilboides floribunda, grandiflora compacta and others are vastly superior. Any or all of these can be forced successfully now.

That beautiful variety, Queen Alexandra, is not seen at its best if forced for Easter. It comes much better during the last half of April and from that date until the middle of June. This is one of the finest forcing spiræas ever introduced and, now that it is quite moderate in price, more florists will undoubtedly grow it. In a cut state for Memorial day it is superb, as is that other charming pink variety, Peach Blossom. The spiræas wanted for Easter need not be started before the early part of February.

Amaryllis.

The earliest batch of amaryllis will now have spikes well advanced. Increase the water supply as the spikes develop, but be careful not to overwater, especially where the bulbs were repotted. In order to have a good succession, start a fresh batch of bulbs some hybridizing and saved your own seed. In pans or flats kept shaded, moderately moist and in a brisk heat, amaryllis will soon germinate. Pot off when they are of sufficient size and keep them growing right along until they flower, which is usually when two years old, but sometimes earlier or later. There is a considerable increase in the interest in amaryllis, and up-to-date retailers display not only plants in bloom, but cut spikes. These latter are better cut in bud; the flowers open out in water just as well as on the plants.

Spencer Sweet Peas.

January is a good time to make a liberal sowing of Spencer sweet peas under glass. They are easily the best sellers among sweet peas, and after April there seems to be a demand for a wider range of colors. At that time violets are gone and sweet peas are probably the most popular of all flowers in season. There are each season a number of additions to the so-called orchid-flowering type of sweet peas. The following are tested and reliable varieties, with colors which cannot fail to please: Mrs. Routzahn Spencer, soft chamois pink, beautiful; King Edward Spencer, crimson scarlet; White Spencer, a grand, pure, wavy white; Helen Lewis, bright orange, a fine selling color; Countess Spencer, clear pink, still one of the best; Frank Dolby, pale lavender, a popular color; Apple Blossom Spencer, blush pink, beautifully waved.

Antirrhinums.

From the earliest planting of antirrhinums, spikes of fine quality have now been cut for over a month, and they are selling well. In order to secure really strong stalks, some disbudding of the shoots is necessary. If they once in two weeks. A temperature of 60 degrees at night and some bottom heat are conditions which amaryllis enjoy. If there are any facilities for plunging the pots in leaves or any other suitable material, they will thrive vastly better than when not plunged.

This is a suitable time to sow a fresh batch of amaryllis seed. Try the best possible strain if you have not done are wanted of the best quality, not over three must be allowed to each plant. For such spikes, however, a good price must be obtained and it may pay better to allow double the number to grow, of medium strength. Be sure to keep the flowering shoots tied up. Once they become twisted, they are valueless.

Never subject the plants to strong heat in order to hasten a crop into bloom. If you do, the stalks will become so weak and brittle that they will snap off or bend over. Fifty degrees should be the absolute maximum at night for antirrhinums. As the spikes develop a top-dressing of sheep manure, scratched into the soil and washed in, will be of material benefit to them. Take note of any particularly pleasing varieties, mark them and put in a batch of cuttings from them. The colors come tolerably true from seed, but the quality is often variable, and a first-class white, pink or yellow snapdragon is well worth retaining.

Mignonette.

During January, February and March mignonette produces the finest spikes in the year. It is an annual which loves cool weather, and in a house held as near 40 degrees at night as possible, with other conditions to its liking, it makes excellent spikes. Give the beds a top-dressing of cow or sheep manure. Mignonette likes a generous soil and appreciates feeding. If you have a first-class strain, it will pay to save some of your own seed. Mark and reserve a few of the finest spikes for this purpose.

Show Pelargoniums.

Show pelargoniums should now receive their final potting. Use for compost two-thirds fibrous loam and one-third dried cow manure, to which may be added some soot and coarse sand. Press the soil firmly in the pots. If wanted for Easter, do no further pinching of the shoots, but if intended to flower in May or June, remove the tops from the stronger shoots. These plants grow rapidly now and should be afforded a fresh stand every week. Raise up some of the larger specimens on pots. This will insure stocky and well furnished plants. Any failure to fumigate or syringe with nicotine will mean a swarm of green aphis, which will speedily disfigure the plants. Grow cool and airy at all times for the best results.

Petunias.

Petunia cuttings from double plants, taken now, will make strong, salable stock in May. There is always a good sale for petunias. Certainly they are among the few plants which bloom persistently, either in window boxes or beds. Packets of so-called double seed will only yield a small percentage of doubles. This is a good time to make a sowing. Be sure to prick off every seedling. The weaker ones are most likely to be the doubles. Seed of single petunias can be sown any time from now until the end of March. If they are wanted in 4-inch pots for May sales, sow now. Do not cover the fine seeds at all. A thin scattering of fine sand may be dusted over them. As the seedlings germinate, be sure to keep them well up to the light. If there are snails in your houses, they will clear the little plants off in short order, unless looked after sharply.

THE GINDRA PLACE.

Conrad C. Gindra's establishment at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is located on Main street, on the line of travel to and from Vassar College, and is kept constantly neat and attractive. The accompanying illustration gives a bird's-eye view of a part of Mr. Gindra's establishment and its environment.

Establishment of W. & K. Pedersen, St. John, N. B.

IN NEW BRUNSWICK.

The accompanying illustration gives an excellent idea of the character of the location and the excellence of the facilities of W. & K. Pedersen, at St. John, in the far northeastern province of New Brunswick, so far out of the beaten tracks followed by florists that Samuel S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, is almost the only member of the trade who goes there regularly.

TUBEROSES IN THE SOUTH.

What varieties of tuberoses are most suitable to the climatic conditions of the Texas coast country, particularly the Alvin district? What are the names of some of the long-stemmed varieties, both single and double flowered, that are grown in the southwest?

H. & L.

In our opinion, one variety of tuberose will succeed as well, under any climatic conditions, as another. All varieties succeed well here, at Magnolia, N. C., about forty miles from the Atlantic coast. The name of the tall variety that we are familiar with is the Tall Double, and in single flowering sorts there are the Mexican Everblooming, Albino and Silver Leaf. The variety almost exclusively grown here, however, is the Excelsior Dwarf Pearl.

Newbury Bulb Co.

DORMANT AZALEA INDICA.

I should like to know how to handle Azalea Indica, when received in a dormant condition, so that the flowers on them will be large. About how long does it require to force them into bloom? I have a cool, cemented cellar. Will it be all right to keep them in it until it is time to start to force them?

J. E. S.

The azeleas can be kept nicely on the floor of a cool cellar. If the temperature is just above the freezing point, it will be all right. Be sure that the balls are sufficiently moist if the plants are not in pots. It will be better to pot them as soon as possible; they will then be better under control for watering. The time required to force azaleas into flower depends much on the time when you want them, as well as the variety. Presuming that your plants are wanted for Easter, allow them six to eight weeks in a temperature of 60 degrees. If you have no higher temperature than 50 degrees at night, allow two weeks more. Some sorts can be flowered within a month, but it is easy to hold them a week or two in a cold house, when once they are seen to be on time. C. W.

APHIS ON VIOLETS.

Kindly tell me how to destroy green and brown aphis on my violets. I do not want to use gas. F. H. R.

The safest fumigant to use on the violets, and one which will clear out the aphis, is one of the nicotine papers. These are far better than tobacco stems, as they are cleanly, leave no offensive smell behind them and there is no likelihood of injury from their use. If one application does not destroy all the aphis, give a second one a couple of days later. Then fumigate once a week without fail. If you will make it a point to fumigate every greenhouse once a week during the winter season, there will be little chance for the aphis to spread. You should not wait to see it. Prevention is better than cure.

C. W.

VIOLETS DOING POORLY.

I would like to know what would be best to do about my house of violets. By mistake I was delivered sheep manure and, not thinking there would be any great danger in using it, I put about three to four inches of this at the bottom of my plants. The balance of the soil was rather poor and I am not getting any blossoms to speak of and they are very small. The plants did not take hold of this soil. Can I use anything to offset this treatment, or had I better throw them out and try something else before I put in my stock plants for Decoration day? I suppose my soil is more or less filled with ammonia. Will it be fit for stock plants? H. J. C.

If you had mixed the sheep manure with your soil before planting, it would have done the plants lots of good. Pulverized sheep manure, if laid several inches deep below each plant, would be too strong for the roots to live in. If you want to keep your violets and they are green and healthy, it would pay even at this date to lift them and fork over the beds. Give the soil a good additional application of cow or sheep manure and then replant. If you take them up with a ball, they will not suffer much of a check. If, however, you feel the plants are not worth retaining, throw them away now, or as soon as your stocks are ready for the beds. The sheep manure will be just what they like, only take care to incorporate it well in the soil before planting.

PRIMULA SINENSIS SEED.

How is Chinese primrose seed grown? Can it be produced in a greenhouse, or should it be procured from other countries? Which would be the better way?

A. J. B.

Seeds of Primula Sinensis are always produced under glass. While it is possible to save seed from your own plants, still, unless your strain is an extra good one and the flowers have been carefully hand pollinated, it is far better to purchase them from some reliable seed house. It pays to buy the best grades of primula seed. It costs as little to grow the dearer seeds into plants as the cheaper ones, and they will always sell the best. Mixtures are less salable than distinct colors; scarlet, white, pink and white, and pink sell the best. Germany and Great Britain are the two chief countries from which first-class primula seed is exported. As special houses are devoted to each variety or color, you can always depend on getting them true to name. It would be quite otherwise if you depended on any haphazard method of your own. C. W.

BEGONIAS.

Lorraine Begonias.

Lorraine begonia, the finest winter flowering variety ever introduced, seems to have lost little of its popularity; at least it was never seen in greater abundance, or better grown, than during the present season, and sales have been brisk. We were told that some people are tiring of it. This is true of every plant which is of comparatively easy propagation, flowers freely and can be purchased at moderate rates. An objection raised is that the plant is too squatty in its habit, that it carries too many flowers and enough foliage does not appear to show off the flowers to proper advantage. We are told that in England this plant is trained in more of a pyramidal shape and has great uses as a hanging plant, neither of which we seem to have tried to any considerable extent. A scarlet Lorraine would be a grand acquisition, and its sale for Christmas would be something phenomenal. We will some day undoubtedly have one of this color, or some other begonia of a similar shade. The introducer of such a begonia should reap a comfortable fortune from such a plant.

The bulk of the Lorraines are probably now sold. The plants still on hand will keep in good condition for a number of weeks yet, but it is well to start now on the propagation for next season's plants. Leaf cuttings should be taken and inserted in clean, sharp sand, where a brisk bottom heat of 80 to 85 degrees is maintained. In taking off the leaves we like to make a little slanting cut in the stem, which portion is to be inserted in the sand. Better success will be had from cuttings taken thus than when merely a straight cut through the leaf stalk is made. Water the cuttings well every day. If the sand is porous, as it should be, there will be no trouble from damping off. Some growers prefer leaf cuttings to shoots. The former will produce stronger plants, which carry larger flowers than those on the short cuttings. They are also less freely produced, which is really an advantage. From shoots the plants flower more heavily, and for small or medium plants this method of propagation is to be preferred.

Begonia Incarnata.

This beautiful begonia flowers a little later than Lorraine, not being at its best until the middle of January. It is a taller grower and requires less staking and tying than Lorraine. There is an improved type, which originated in Brookline, Mass., and which is an immense advance on the original variety, the blooms averaging twice the size. This would soon become a popular commercial begonia and prove a serious rival, even of Lorraine, were it as rapid a grower and as easy of propagation. Unfortunately, it is difficult to get plants of salable size in a single season, and when carried over a second season a fair price would necessarily have to be charged to make them profitable. No one has yet placed this on the market commercially, so far as we know, and there is a grand good opening here for some wide-awake grower to make a big hit, for by growing it at 55 degrees for a month it can be had in fine shape for Christmas. Propagation is effected by taking soft cuttings from old plants, which have been cut back, rested a little, and then started up in a moist house.

Begonia Rex.

There are always some buyers who admire pretty foliage, and the varicolored foliage of the Rex begonias appeals to quite a few. It is probably a fact that all colored-leaved plants are freaks, but just the same Rex begonias, fancy caladiums, crotons, dracænas and not a few other plants are popular, and rightly so. It is true that green is the most pleasing and satisfying color, but it seems narrow and harsh to condemn all deviations from it. The Rex begonia is not a plant much seen at the stores, but the average country florist can dispose of a good many, as there are not a few buyers who see far more beauty in them than in many much choicer and more valuable plants.

Now, while the propagating bench is steadily warm, is an ideal time to increase the stock of these begonias. Only propagate those which have the finest colors. Use well matured leaves, which, when cut in small pieces and laid edgewise in lines in the cutting bench, are not long in rooting and producing little plants. The warmer the house, the sooner will they be fit to pot off. It is best to discard the thinner portions of the leaves as being least likely to root.

TROUBLE WITH LILIES.

I am sending you a lily bulb on which you will find a lot of white insects like thrips. These also are on callas and I find them destroying many plants. You will also find a pest of black flies and worms. They seem to be in the soil and get to the roots of the plants and kill them off. These black flies are in the houses all winter. Kindly advise me what to do to kill this pest. E. S. & S.

I was unable to discover any of the flies or worms in the soil when received, nor could I detect any thrips on the scales of the lily bulbs. As the trouble seems to lie entirely in the soil, it will be necessary to use something to kill them where they are, without at the same time injuring the plants. If your soil seems to be generally infested, it would be better to sterilize it, if possible, before using it. If you cannot do this, secure a few cans of carbon bisulphide, which at retail costs about 25 cents per pound. While your compost is in heaps, bore holes eighteen inches apart with a pointed stick. Pour about a teaspoonful of the liquid in each hole, immediately covering it up. Go over any compost in this way and you will kill all grubs, worms and insect life of every kind. Keep lights away while applying the carbon, as it is explosive and must be handled with great care.

You can use the same remedy on plants in your benches or in pots. Bore a single hole in each pot and pour in a few drops, or in the benches let the holes be eighteen inches apart. It is better to have the soil wet when applying it, as the fumes then are more penetrating. You need have no fear of carbon hurting your plants in any way. A top-dressing of black soot scratched into the soil, or watering with soot water, would tend to drive away these pests and at the same time benefit your plants. C. W.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Conditions show an improvement over a week ago and flowers are cleaning up much better. In some cases prices have hardened a little, but in others they continue unusually low for mid-January. Roses are somewhat off crop with practically all the growers and have sold quite well during the last week. Prices have been a little higher than a week previous. Quality remains good. Carnations are less abundant. They also are off crop with some of the growers. Particularly good are Pink Delight, Enchantress, Beacon, Helen Goddard, White Enchantress, Dorothy Gordon and White Perfection. Violets continue low in price. Some of the growers blame the high Christmas prices, which they say frightened people from buying them. Certainly present prices are not at all profitable for the growers.

Sweet peas are abundant and prices are quite low. A month hence there will be an immense lot on the market, as so many more are growing them this season. Valley is of better quality, but the demand is only moderate. Freesias are fine and sell well. Among tulips, some excellent Thomas Moore are seen. Dutch hyacinths are also arriving. Golden Spur is now the best narcissus. Paper Whites continue overplentiful. There is still an abundance of stevia; large quantities of this useful little flower are sold. Marguerites continue to sell well, especially the yellow varieties. Gardenias are not abundant, but the demand is light. Cattleyas are now in good supply and prices have fallen. Of lilies there is an ample supply. A few speciosum roseum are to be seen. Callas are arriving more freely. There has been a good business done in adiantum and asparagus. The plant trade is unusually quiet.

January 17 the market turned much higher. Roses were scarce and carnations and other flowers advanced.

Club Meeting.

Ladies' night at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club January 17 brought out an attendance of over 250. The committee on S. A. F. entertainment made a report, which was accepted as progressive. The newly elected officers, P. M. Miller, president; Thomas Pegler, vice-president; W. N. Craig, secretary; Peter Fisher, treasurer, and J. P. A. Guerineau, Mr. Cameron, William Downs and W. J. Kennedy of the executive committee, each made short and optimistic addresses. The report of the treasurer showed a substantial balance on the right side of the ledger. The secretary in his report stated that seventy-nine new members were added in 1910; that the largest attendance at any of the regular meetings had been 240, smallest 102; average for the year, 148. There were members in eleven states and one foreign country. A new committee on exhibits was appointed, consisting of Duncan Finlayson, Arthur Griffin, W. J. Harvey, Pembroke Patten, George Page, George Anderson, Kenneth Finlayson, Wm. McGillivray, Peter Fisher, J. L. Smith, W. C. Rust, David Weir, George Shields and Albert Botley. The entertainment committee named is P. J. Turley, C. J. Harvey, W. D. Nickerson, P. J. Van Baarda, George Butterworth, W. A. Hastings and Frank Murray.

Exhibits included: A grand lot of Chinese primulas from Martin Sullivan. A new hybrid solanum with sharp-pointed berries from T. J. Grey Co., which received a report of merit. Roses Prince de Bulgarie and Dark Pink Killarney from A. N. Pierson, each of which was awarded a report of superior merit. White lilac from W. W. Edgar Co. Collection of violets from H. F. Woods.

A message of sympathy was voted to be sent to Mr. and Mrs. Julius Heurlin in the loss of their youngest son. Ten new members were elected.

It was stated that at the February meeting Edwin Jenkins, of Lenox, will be the speaker, and that there will be special exhibits of carnations and roses. Other speakers were announced for later meetings. It was voted to hold the club dinner in February.

An enjoyable entertainment was provided, which included songs by Mrs. McEwen and Miss Louise Kloppenburg, which were warmly encored. Neil Miller and John Miller made a hit with their duets and solos. Dancing followed. Refreshments were served to everyone present, and everyone voted the occasion an enjoyable one. The captain of the steamship Pretoria and other officers were among the guests of the evening, as were F. R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, and A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell.

Various Notes.

The sympathy of a wide circle of friends goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Julius Heurlin, of the Blue Hill Nurseries, South Braintree, whose youngest son, Spencer, died January 9 after a two days' sickness with scarlet fever. The older boy, Victor, is dangerously sick with the same disease.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, are bringing in pink and white Dutch hyacinths of fine quality. Among their tulips Thomas Moore is conspicuous, and proves a fine seller.

The opening lecture at Horticultural hall, January 14, attracted a good audience, in spite of the damp, disagreeable weather. J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, proved an interesting speaker and a good discussion followed the lecture. The change of hour for the lecture from 11 to 2 caused disappointment to quite a number, but the later hour when generally known may become popular.

Peirce Bros., of Waltham, and Newton Conservatories are among those who are sending in fine consignments of fronds of Nephrolepis Whitmani, which sell well.

J. S. Manter, at the Boston Flower Exchange, is handling an extra fine grade of antirrhinums. These are now procurable in the market from November until June.

Peter M. Miller spent last week in Bar Harbor, Me., in the interests of his firm, the T. J. Grey Co., and reports excellent business. A large delegation from there are planning to be present at the National Flower Show.

In H. R. Comley's always interesting window January 14, were, among other flowers, Strelitzia Reginæ, Dendrobium formosum giganteum, Lilium speciosum and grand Richmond roses.

F. J. Dolansky is marketing some excellent Cattleya Trianæ at the Boston Flower Exchange, also a fine cut of Lilium longiflorum.

There are this season complaints of much disease in Harrisii, Formosa and multiflorum lilies. Some growers of the latter will lose over half their stock. Giganteums, however, seem to be coming much better.

M. H. Walsh has a grand lot of big specimen ramblers in tubs, which he intends to flower and exhibit for the national show. Mr. Walsh now tubs his plants in the fall from the open ground and finds they do as well as when grown in tubs or pots through the summer.

Noted in E. MacMulkin's window last week were some fine bougainvilleas, prunus, camellias and large specimens of Azalea Apollo.

N. F. Comley, of Lexington, at the Boston Coöperative is receiving large consignments of single violets and carnations. He has several large houses of sweet peas coming along in good shape. He is an extensive vegetable grower under glass and is trying 5,000 cauliflowers this season, in addition to the staple crops, such as tomatoes, cucumbers, lettuce, beets and radishes.

J. Streiferd & Son, in addition to being excellent growers of pot plants, are shipping an extra fine grade of Killarney, Bride and Bridesmaid roses to the Boston Coöperative Flower Market.

Carnation Helen Goddard is still hard to beat in its color. As grown by the originator, S. J. Goddard, and P. & W. O. Jahn, of East Bridgewater, it leaves nothing to be desired.

Penn's, on Bromfield street, had their big show window devoted to Princess of Wales violets and Golden Spur narcissi, with the necessary plants to show these off effectively. Business here continues good.

W. E. Turner, of Woburn, is in the market with a fine cut of pink and white stocks. These are more abundant than is usual at this season.

Philip L. Carbone, on Boylston street, is showing a fine lot of well flowered prunus, also camellias, lilacs, ericas and other seasonable plants. This firm is planning an extensive exhibit at the national show in the form of an Italian garden.

The committee on the S. A. F. show met January 14 at Horticultural hall and found everything progressing favorably for the big exhibition. More trade exhibitors are taking space every week.

Everett E. Cummings, of Woburn, continues to bring in a superb lot of single violets, thousands daily. Others at the Boston Coöperative Market whose flowers are noteworthy for quality are George W. Ayer and Dobbins & Shannon.

Visitors last week included F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; L. J. Reuter, Westerly, R. I.; W. R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; William J. Fosgate, of Santa Clara, Cal.; C. W. Brownell, Walden, N. Y.; Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and Arthur Zirkman, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia.

The rose Lady Hillingdon is highly thought of by Alexander Montgomery, of the Waban Conservatories, who considers it the finest yellow forcing rose ever introduced.

Donald Carmichael, of Wellesley, has a fine lot of well flowered cyclamens, which are selling well. Carnations are Mr. Carmichael's leading specialty.

J. Leach & Sons have some of the finest sweet peas seen at the Boston Coöperative Market. In February they will commence cutting their valley, which has acquired an enviable reputation for quality.

January has lately given us an unusual number of dark, damp and foggy days, which have greatly reduced cut flower supplies. Ice men are hoping for cold weather, little ice having yet been cut in Massachusetts.

W. N. Craig.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There has been a lessening during the last few days in the supply of roses, and prices have steadied accordingly but have not advanced. Killarney still dominates the rose market. American Beauties are abundant and the top price is only obtainable for the choice ones, 40 cents being about the limit. Some improvement in values all along the line seems to be reasonably expected during the present week. The best of the Bride, Maid, Maryland and Killarney have reached 8 cents, but few have held at this, and most of the rose stock arriving has sold at a lower average than ever before in January. The supply of Richmond is light and the best sell readily at 15 cents, as do Chatenay and some of the new varieties.

The increase in the carnation supply is excessive and, while shipments maintain their superb quality, prices have declined discouragingly from the grower's standpoint. At times last week 3 cents would buy the finest of them, novelties included. Anything not top grade sold at 2 cents, and in large lots as low as $10 per thousand.

Violets, in special bunches of 100, did not go above 50 cents. From that down to as low as 20 cents to the street men gives a fair estimate of the seriousness of the situation. The demand for a full count seems universal. Lilac is of fine quality and quite abundant. The finer grades of sweet peas are becoming more abundant and sell rapidly. The medium and poorer grades are almost unsalable. High grade valley holds at 3 cents. The market is flooded with the poorer quality. The best gardenias command $5 to $6 per dozen, but many of poor quality are coming in, with no outlet but the street. Paper Whites are down to 10 cents a bunch, an unheard-of decline, with supplies far in excess of any possible demand. Freesia also is abundant and lower than usual at this date. The Purity alone is in general demand. There are plenty of Easter lilies and $10 per hundred buys the best of them. The best callas hold at $15 per hundred and the supply still is limited. Daffodils, tulips and pansies, harbingers of an early spring, are here. There are more hyacinths than the market can digest and, last but not least, there is a surfeit of orchids. It is remarkable how many of the wholesalers are handling them. They are here in great variety, and of cattleyas there seems to be no limit. Fine stock has been disposed of as low as $25 per hundred. It would seem reasonable to expect a greater demand from the retailers now, with society in thousands daily at the auto show, and dinners and banquets by the dozen every night. There is no change in the green goods situation; plenty of everything.

Various Notes.

March 15 is the date announced by the Elliott Auction Co., and by the MacNiff Horticultural Co., for the opening of the auction season. Mr. MacNiff is installing a seed department.

A good many New Yorkers attended the dinners at Morristown and Tarrytown this week.

For the annual dinner of the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association, February 2, the committee appointed consists of Julius Roehrs, Jr., Herman Steinhoff and Louis Dupuy. Secretary Siebrecht says a large attendance is already assured.

M. A. Bowe says the new store at 60 West Thirty-third street is all right and business continues good. A unique farewell was a path of rose leaves from the old store to the new, and a fine bit of advertising it proved to be. Mr. Bowe makes large use of the big dailies for his publicity.

Retailers say that the sensible custom of sending plants or cut flowers to friends on St. Valentine's day is likely to be observed again this year, even more generally than last. This is a most sentimental village at times, and the old Saint provides an outlet for the pent-up affections that the "wise guys" have learned to use to their advantage.

Reed & Keller say business is in a healthy condition and collections more satisfactory than usual.

Fortunately for Hart, the loss in his fire last week was covered by insurance. The destruction was complete. A new store will be erected on the same site. Temporary quarters have been secured close at hand.

The exodus to Twenty-eighth street between Sixth and Seventh avenues continues. A. H. Langjahr has secured the ground floor at 130 West Twenty-eighth street. There is a possibility of the large building opposite Traendly & Schenck's becoming available, and if so, every inch of space on the ground floor will be snapped up by the wholesalers.

The Kervan Co. has completed removal to the new and convenient store at 119 West Twenty-eighth street, where the entire building is utilized.

The seedsmen are all hustling through their representatives, or personally, for the spring trade. Marshall, Rickards, Sperling, Gloeckner, Burnett, McArdle and others are visiting their patrons and at the same time taking in the gardeners' societies' banquets. All the seed houses are unusually busy for so early in the season.

J. K. Allen is recovering from a rather severe case of thorn poisoning that confined him to his home for a week.

J. J. Coan, of the Growers' Co., says there is not likely to be any shortage of carnations this season.

Charles Weiss & Sons report excellent satisfaction with their progress since opening their wholesale store.

Kessler Bros. say they are having their first rest in two months, and that the plant demand is continuous.

J. P. Smith is on duty again after his fight with rheumatism, lasting since Christmas.

The Gould wedding is the coming event in house and church decoration. Alexander McConnell has the contract. Already the preliminary work of the decorators has begun.

The market project, at Fifty-ninth street, is now a certainty. W. H. Siebricht says all objections are now removed and even more ground than was first promised will be placed at the growers' disposal. April 1, he says, will be opening day. Let us hope the date is not unpropitious.

Henry C. Siebrecht, father of W. H. Siebrecht and Henry Siebrecht, of New Rochelle, died Monday, January 16, at the age of 91. He was born in Germany and came to America about forty years ago.

W. G. Saltford and son, Arthur, of Poughkeepsie, have been here as the guests of George Saltford.

R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, will lecture before the New York Florists' Club February 13.

F. H. Traendly and H. A. Bunyard are in Boston for an S. A. F. meeting.

The annual dinner of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society, January 15, was a great success. About 100 were present. Interesting addresses were made by Wm. Turner, Harry Bunyard, C. H. Totty, A. Herrington, Wm. Duckham, and Messrs. Murray, Everett, Woodcock and Larson. At 10:30 Toastmaster O'Mara turned over the balance of the evening to Mr. Duckham, and speech and song and recitation and colored minstrelsy enlivened the occasion.

The stork visited the home of W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., at Astoria, January 15, with a baby girl.

Store of Kusik-Eckhardt Co., Minneapolis, Destroyed by Fire.

Bowling.

The Alex. D. Shaw prize, a bottle of champagne, was won Friday, January 13, by the bowling club's secretary. Another bottle goes to the top scorer January 20. The following week a handicap game, arranged by Chadwick, will have as a prize, given by an old bachelor friend of the club, a pair of lady's shoes. The last scores were:

Player.	1st	2d	3d	4th	5th
Watkins	94	96	...	...	...
Kunkel	104	131	...	...	...
Berry	139	109	...	...	...

A special meeting of the club will be held at the alleys January 27.

J. Austin Shaw.

Wertheimer Bros. have designed a gold and silver sprinkleproof chiffon which they will distribute as an Easter novelty.

The greenhouses of Valentine Hamann, Summit, N. J., were destroyed by fire January 11. The range sheltered 18,000 carnation plants. Mr. Hamann estimates his loss at $12,000.

Chas. F. Meyer, Inc., has been organized to deal in bulbs, plants, seeds and nursery stock. The authorized capital is $50,000, and the incorporators are C. F. Meyer, Chas. Schwake and E. A. Marxsen.

C. W. Ward, of Queens, who was taken ill in New Orleans, is reported to be improving rapidly.

At a recent meeting of the council of the Horticultural Society it was decided to hold exhibitions in conjunction with the monthly meetings, that more frequent opportunity might be provided for those having choice plants and flowers to exhibit and for lovers of such things to enjoy them. The first three of these monthly exhibitions will be held at the American Museum of Natural History, on the second Wednesday in February, March and April. The following meetings, during the summer, will be held at the New York Botanical Garden. A number of prizes will be offered at each exhibition. The first of these occurs February 8. This will be devoted primarily to orchids and roses. Premium lists, etc., may be had by addressing Geo. V. Nash, Secy., Bronx Park.

CRINUMS NOT FLOWERING.

I have some crinums in my house and cannot get them to bloom. I wish you would tell me how to get them in bloom in Ohio. H. W. R.

Some crinums are evergreen when grown under glass; others are not. Possibly you have either C. Moorei or C. Powellii. These showy flowering bulbs are popular outdoors in the warm states and some will winter as far north as New York, when in a sheltered spot and well protected. In Ohio indoor culture would be necessary. Give the plants an abundant water supply until early fall; then keep cooler and drier. When growth recommences in January, afford more water and heat. Perhaps your crinums need repotting. It requires quite large pots, or even tubs, to get strong flowering bulbs. Use coarse fibrous loam, lumpy dry cow manure, charcoal and coarse sand for compost. An animal top-dressing will suffice for several years once your plants are in good-sized pots or tubs. C. W.

NEWS, NOTES AND COMMENTS

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

St. Johns, Nfd.—J. McNiel is putting up a new house to add to his plant. This is 22x100 feet. Business is booming.

Kingston, N. Y.—Valentine Burgevin's Sons are having an excellent bulb season. Holiday business showed a considerable increase.

Ilion, N. Y.—E. C. Baker says the call for floral designs has used up all the stock he could lay his hands on ever since the holidays.

Herkimer, N. Y.—W. D. Snell found his branch plant at Mohawk quite handy during the holiday season. The extra output was sold at sight.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Gustave Bartholme made up an extra number of baskets of plants for the holidays and found the bright colors sold at sight. The new show house was filled and emptied on short notice.

Augusta, Ga.—Balk's Nursery reports that the two big resort hotels have opened for the season and that this always means an increase in business, frequent orders coming from out of town for local delivery.

Calais, Me.—Ernest G. Young has purchased a half interest in the business of J. R. Sederquest, who has been conducting a flower store and undertaking establishment at 172 Main street. The new firm will be known as the Ernest G. Young Co.

Dallas, Tex.—Charles C. Chollar, well known to the trade in the southwest, who recently took charge of the cut flower department of the Texas Seed & Floral Co., has had some excellent orders for decorations and the firm is well pleased with the business that is being done.

Middletown, N. Y.—The stork paid the home of F. X. Dienst a visit recently and left a New Year's gift. The visitor was thoroughly welcome, as Mr. Dienst says there is nothing like having one's own help to rely on. The report that Mr. Dienst took all the premiums at the county fair recently was incorrect; the honor belongs to E. A. Lorentz, who staged a fine collection of stock.

Newburgh, N. Y.—That holiday trade beat all previous records is the general report. Caldwell & Jesperson cut an enormous quantity of narcissi and a good crop of carnations, the bulk of which were shipped away at wholesale. Schaefer's did a big business in greens and cut flowers. George Chadborn said it was their best season all around. The Yuess Gardens Co. taxed the whole building to carry the stock sold during the holidays. They are now busy with seed stocks that are now in, and are working overtime with early mail orders.

Johnstown, N. Y.—Thomas Barson reports a most satisfactory holiday business. The demand for pot plants showed a decided increase.

Beaumont, Tex.—The Beaumont Floral Co., of which Mrs. Bessie O. Weissinger is proprietor, has an attractive store at 319 Orleans street and greenhouses at 426 Sabine Pass avenue.

Burlington, Vt.—W. E. Peters, for many years identified with the flower trade in this city, recently opened one of the handsomest flower stores in New England in the Walker block on St. Paul street. Everything is strictly modern and up-to-date.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—H. F. F. Thorup, proprietor of the Southeastern Nursery & Floral Co., says that florists here had a broad smile on their faces when the holiday rush was over, for nearly all available stock was sold out early. The weather was excellent. Holly, he says, was fine this season and was all sold.

Paducah, Ky.—Schmaus Bros., who are favorably located opposite Wallace park, have built up a prosperous, high-class business during the ten years that have passed since the organization of their firm. They grow all the stock that is needed for their own local trade and also send considerable shipments to other towns.

Bar Harbor, Me.—John H. Stalford has purchased some ground at the rear of the Malvern hotel, off Mount Desert street, and has erected there a fine, modern greenhouse, 200 feet long, with concrete walls. The houses Mr. Stalford has been using belonged to the Malvern property and have for a long time been inadequate.

Norwich, Conn.—Otto Geduldig had, as a caller, Conrad S. Schultz, of Westerly, R. I., who brought samples of carnations Dorothy Gordon and Ruby. It was agreed they were the finest yet seen, and, to convince his friends he had as good at home, he produced a sales slip just received from his commission man, containing a statement of a big shipment that made the boys' eyes bulge, especially at this time, when good stock is scarce.

Rochester, N. Y.—Colin Ogston, superintendent of the Kimball conservatories, has perfected a nozzle that is called the Automatic and Positive nozzle. He has been experimenting with this for some time and is positive he has the most perfect nozzle yet invented. It can easily be adapted, he says, to any spray, from the heaviest to the finest. Samples have been sent to several leading growers for demonstration and opinions. It will shortly be placed upon the market.

Summit, N. J.—Fire at the greenhouses of Valentine Hamann, January 11, caused a loss which was estimated at $12,000.

Lee, Mass.—A greenhouse containing 4,000 feet of glass was recently erected by the King Construction Co. at Highlawn, the estate of W. B. O. Field.

Elm Grove, W. Va.—John Dieckmann & Co. are making extensive improvements about their greenhouses, including the erection of an addition, 40x200 feet.

Hinckley, Ill.—F. E. Graves recently suffered a loss of several hundred dollars in frozen stock, owing to the bursting of a pipe, which put out the fire in his boiler.

Haverhill, Mass.—W. F. Eaton, of the firm of Tabor & Eaton, at North Parish, has purchased his partner's interest in the establishment, and Mr. Tabor has gone into other business.

Penn Yan, N. Y.—The Comings greenhouse property, on Head street, has been sold at public auction. It was foreclosed by the Rochester Trust & Safe Deposit Co. and was bid in by George L. Barden, of this village.

Rapid City, S. D.—Reimers Bros. have begun business here as growers of greenhouse vegetables and have named their establishment the Sunnyside Nursery and Gardens. The members of the firm are Aug. F. and Charles Reimers.

Rome, N. Y.—Edward Kipp had a house of poinsettias just right for the holidays and sold every plant at a good figure. The prices ruled higher than usual. W. Rogers is the able plant grower; James Watkins, formerly of the Dale estate, is the carnationist.

South Hadley Falls, Mass.—The greenhouse of O. A. Judd & Son, market gardeners, was damaged by fire early in the morning of January 11. As the firm has a strong water supply on the premises, the flames were extinguished without the aid of the fire department.

Norfolk, Va.—Frank Brunton, manager of the Fox-Hall Farm, reports that the firm is now building a Lord & Burnham greenhouse, 25x300, for vegetable forcing. He also states: "We cultivate a truck farm of 300 acres, growing strawberries, melons, lettuce and other vegetables, peonies, iris and phlox, besides gladioli for wholesale cut flowers. We are also building a model concrete dairy for fifty cows, largely for the purpose of supplying us with fertilizer. We intend to select and improve types in the vegetable line suitable for this locality." Mr. Brunton was formerly manager of T. W. Wood & Sons' Kenbrook Seed Farm.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Special convention and National Flower Show, Boston, Mass., March 26 to April 1, 1911.

Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18, 1911.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

The exchange of orders between florists in distant cities is heavier this season than ever before. It will never grow less.

The secretary of the S. A. F. has made application to the passenger associations for the usual special rates to the Boston convention in March.

Growers complain that the carnation plants are not now producing cuttings any more freely than they produced blooms earlier in the season.

A special meeting of the executive committee of the S. A. F. is being held at Boston this week, in connection with National Flower Show affairs.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

The editor of the Horticultural Trades Journal, London, England, is preparing to bring a party of European florists and nurserymen to the National Flower Show in Boston in March.

"Wilful waste makes woeful want." Don't let your surpluses go to waste. If you have a little more stock than your local trade calls for, you can turn it into cash by putting a three or four line advertisement in the Classified Department of The Review.

WHAT IS A GOOD RETURN?

Will you ask through your columns what growers consider a good return from greenhouses per square foot? We have a place of 13,500 square feet, growing 1,200 roses, 4,500 carnations, some 10,000 bulbs of various kinds, and a thousand mums in season. Seventy-five per cent of our trade is wholesale and our design work in about the same proportion at a discount of 20 per cent.

We have been taking usually $6,000 per year, gross. Is this as much as the place should return? In basing an estimate as to the value of such a place, what would be the value of the plants, considering them to be first-class stock in good condition? How could we compute what amount we should place on the value of the business in order to find what a reasonable per cent for interest on investment and for depreciation should be set aside in judging the return on capital?

It is our opinion that too few florists conduct business on a safe, scientific plan. The only right way to run the business, besides doing it honestly and with good stock, is to say so much is the capital invested; this per centum should represent interest on the capital; this much per centum, the allowance for depreciation; so much for owner's and owner's family's time; and so much for profit. But unless one knew how much his place actually cost or was worth, how could he figure this out? We should like estimates or basis for estimate for our place.

J. C. F. C.

Probably more often than any other comes the question, "How much money should I take in from a given greenhouse area?" Difficult as that question is to answer by rule, without the slightest knowledge of the special circumstances, it has recently been outclassed by a new one: "How much was our place worth January 1?" This comes invariably from the florist who has turned his business into a stock company. The law for the government tax on the incomes of corporations requires that an inventory be taken on January 1. But the florist never has taken an inventory on that date; he has done his annual summing up at the date when his houses were emptiest, usually July 1. How much is a carnation plant in the bench worth January 1? Or a rose plant? It is evident the J. C. F. C. has been pondering these and similar questions. If some grower who has wrestled with the special problems presented by this corporation tax law and settled them to his own and the government's satisfaction, will write out his conclusions, The Review will be glad to print them for the benefit of the many who have not been so successful.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Since last report the market has turned one of the periodical flip-flops for which it has long been famous, but which have not been so frequent since the business has attained years of discretion. The present condition has come about so regularly year after year that it merely is a repetition of what occurred at this date last season and should occasion little surprise, whatever it may do in the way of inconveniencing buyers or wholesalers.

With everyone bringing in a big rose crop right on the dot for Christmas, it is perfectly natural that everyone should go off crop at the same time a little later. The approach of this condition was apparent at the beginning of last week; the full effect of waning rose crops became apparent at the end of the week, and the present week opened with not nearly enough roses to go around. The scarcity is particularly felt in the shorter grades; it simply is impossible to find enough short roses to meet the demand. Of the medium grade the supply is larger and orders are better filled. The buyer who wants the extra long fancy stock can still be accommodated in fairly satisfactory fashion, though many buyers who do not ordinarily use them are taking the higher priced roses when they cannot get the length they want, so that everything is cleaned up. Beauties do not show the falling off that has occurred in the rose crops; with most houses Beauties went off crop directly after Christmas and supplies are now rather on the up grade. The quality of all the roses is excellent, the only complaint being of short supplies. Of course shipping demand has increased largely, as it always does when crops go off.

The advance in price which naturally has occurred with roses has turned a considerable part of the demand to other flowers. Therefore, there has been

Sweet Peas

The fancy flowers of spring are here.

Those who used our Sweet Peas last season will be glad to know that the crop is on again—with them nothing more will be needed than to say that the fancy peas are here in quantity, quite a little earlier than last year. To those who did not use our peas last season we should like to say, simply, this stock will make a hit with those you seek to please. Order some today. We ship fresh from the vines.

ORCHIDS

These are home-grown and you get them fresh from the plants. The Cattleya is a keeper—but you will see the difference.

Violets

The cream of the crops, eastern and western; the best.

Valley

Fancy stock always on hand; no limit to our supply.

GARDENIAS

We are shipping a crop of home-grown Gardenias, fresh from the plants, that are quite the finest Gardenias we have seen this season. Try some.

Killarneys

No finer stock ever was offered; specially strong on the special lengths.

Beauties

For color and size of flower this stock would be hard to equal.

CARNATIONS

We can fill all your orders with high grade stock. Our supply is large and the quality up to our usual mark—none better.

Bulb Stock

Call on us for Tulips, Jonquils, Trumpets, Paper Whites, Romans, Freesia, etc.

Easter Lilies

an improvement in the values of carnations and all the other items. Carnations are not in large supply, considering the strength of the demand, and the quality of a considerable part of the receipts is below what is required for shipping orders. The result is that there is a wide margin between what different growers are realizing.

Cattleyas have come in heavily and there is now no shortage in the orchid department. Prices have fallen to a point where retailers have no cause for complaint, but this does not go far toward stimulating the demand. Sweet peas have come in heavily and the stock is exceptionally good for so early in the year. The weather is too cold for a good clean-up in this department and in violets. For these flowers to sell out clean each day weather is necessary which will permit the wearing of flowers on the streets and their sale there. Gardenias are doing better. There now is a local supply and little eastern stock is seen. A full line of bulb stock is offered, including tulips in practically all the colors, but without much stem. Jonquils are in. The shortage of white roses has turned considerable business to the bulbous flowers suitable for funeral work, on which usual prices still prevail. There are moderate supplies of Easter lilies and callas. The greens market is quiet.

Building Project Progressing.

Good progress is being made on the project for a florists' building on Market street. A meeting was held at the office of Hoerber Bros., January 14, and another at the office of Wietor Bros., January 18, at which details were discussed. A paper has been circulated to find out how many were interested and how much space would be required in a building to house the trade. Nineteen wholesalers signed for approximately 60,000 feet of space. It is now proposed to organize a corporation to take a twenty years' lease on the entire building and sublet to the various wholesalers. The idea is for the corporation to operate the building, the lighting plant, the refrigerating plant, etc., and to accumulate a fund out of which the wholesalers are to be recompensed for the losses they will sustain on their present leases, which will have anywhere from eight months to four years to run at the date the new building is expected to be completed.

Various Notes.

Joseph Straus and Miss Hortense Polack were married Wednesday evening, January 11, at 5928 La Salle street, and are now in Jacksonville, Fla., on their honeymoon. Mr. Straus has for nine years had charge of the bookkeepdid its share toward the big increase over last year. Again we wish to thank our Customers—our friends—who made this great business possible, and in doing so, it is encouraging to know that year after year the greatest increase in our business has come from patrons who are most particular about quality. Knowledge of the superior excellence of our

is so widely extended, although a few florists, not familiar with the advantages and methods of M. Rice & Co. in buying and selling Ribbons, may quite naturally expect higher prices. On the contrary our customers know from experience that our prices are the lowest consistent with quality, as our ribbons are made specially for us to match and contrast with almost every known Flower. We do not have to depend on Ribbons only for our profits, that is why we can afford to sell them on a small margin. The more Florists will ing for the A. L. Randall Co., and the employees sent as a wedding gift a handsome buffet. His bride's home was in Cincinnati. They will be at home to their friends after February 15 at 109 East Fifty-sixth street.

The Deerfield Nurseries, at Deerfield, Ill., is the name of a cut flower establishment that is this winter devoted exclusively to gardenias and sweet peas. The proprietor is Frank Kottrasch, and the manager is Adolph Kottrasch. This is the first considerable quantity of gardenias that have been forced for the Chicago market. Excellent success has been achieved thus far. The cut is sold by John Kruchten.

William W. Smith died January 13 at the home of his daughter, the widow of the late J. A. Budlong. Mr. Smith was 89 years of age and a native of Providence, R. I. He was the grandfather of A. H. Budlong and Mrs. Phil Schupp.

John Zech says the Enchantress family holds the lead among carnations; the best selling varieties now in the market are Enchantress, White Enchantress and Rose-pink Enchantress.

A. T. Pyfer, manager of the Chicago Carnation Co., has a 4-year old son who successfully underwent an operation at Joliet January 17.

The new place that F. Stielow is building at Niles Center will require 1,200 boxes of 16x24 glass.

C. W. McKellar has had a serious time with the thumb of his right hand, which has been so seriously poisoned that he has been able to attend to business only a few hours in the last fortnight. It has been so painful that sleep has been impossible, but the doctors now have the poisoned member on the mend.

Mat Mann is adding a new flat building to his holdings on the north side.

Emil Buettner has begun his annual shipments of white lilac to the A. L. Randall Co.

George Asmus went to Boston Saturday, January 14, on S. A. F. affairs.

Mr. Beebe, of the McCormick Estate, 145 La Salle street, which owns the Atlas block, northwest corner of Wabash avenue and Randolph street, says that he has for rent a space on the second floor capable of being divided into two stores of the size used by many wholesale florists. He says that since the floor is practically all occupied by florists, he would prefer to put flower dealers in the space, rather than other lines.

E. C. Amling leaves January 24, with his family, to spend a few weeks at Orange, Cal., where they have relatives. Mr. Amling plans to return April 1 for the Easter rush.

Winterson's Seed Store reports every mail is bringing orders for Celosia Pride of Castle Gould and that they are distributing it from Massachusetts to California and from Canada to Texas.

at E. H. Hunt's after devoting a fortnight to serving his country, on jury.

Henry Van Gelder, manager for Percy Jones, reports that he recently added to his list of shippers several growers who have not previously consigned cut flowers to this market.

A. E. Hunt says most of the Evanston growers are preparing to add to their glass this spring.

A. L. Randall says his house has received a number of inquiries for large lots of carnations for McKinley day, which most wholesalers thought was dead.

E. B. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, left January 17, with Mrs. Washburn, for Arizona and California, intending to be absent until March.

Kirscht Bros., of Morton Grove, have 18,000 feet under glass devoted to carnations. The varieties are Victory, White Perfection, Winsor and Rose-pink Enchantress. They intend adding 4,000 feet of glass this spring and will give the space to Shasta and May Day, both of which varieties have done exceptionally well with them.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., predicts that the rose shortage this season will be more acute than last year, due to a larger proportion of the growers having hit Christmas just right.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. still is cutting chrysanthemums. The variety is Merry Christmas. Looks as though the mum would soon be an all-the-year-around flower.

George Reinberg's city store staff have all been wrestling with the grip or severe colds.

Two houses received telegraph orders for roses from Boston January 15. Neither filled.

A. L. Vaughan, of Vaughan & Sperry, visited Rockford and other cities in the north end of the state last week and says he found all the people who retail to be having excellent business.

Kyle & Foerster say that the really good tulips are selling well but that short-stemmed crippled yellows are a problem. Jonquils go quickly.

H. N. Yepson, who has charge of the cut flower growing at Calvary cemetery, has resigned, but intends to again locate in Chicago or vicinity.

S. G. Lubliner, brother of Harry Lubliner, has opened his store at Portland, Ore., at 109 Seventh street.

Among the week's visitors has been W. C. Ruff, of St. Paul, who grows large quantities of gladioli and dahlias for cutting for the St. Paul and Minneapolis markets. He is on his way to Florida to spend the winter. Mr. Ruff is vice-president of the Minnesota State Horticultural Society. Another visitor has been Mr. Secor, of the Forest City Greenhouses, Forest City, Ia.

MAMARONECK, N. Y.

On the call of a number of gardeners and florists, who met at the Rye Nurseries, December 28, 1910, the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was formed.

At the first regular meeting, held January 11 at the Rye Nurseries, the Royal Arcanum hall at Stamford, Conn., was selected as a permanent meeting place, and the second Friday of each month was chosen as the regular meeting day. The next meeting will be Friday evening, February 10, at eight o'clock.

The officers of the society are as follows: James Stewart, president; Alex Geddes, vice-president; Martin M. Benedek, secretary; Thos. Aitchison, treasurer. The executive committee is as follows: William Morrow, Stamford, Conn.; Chas. Adcock, New Rochelle, N. Y.; H. L. Hand, Port Chester, N. Y.; Robt. Williamson, Greenwich, Conn.; J. T. Burns, New Canaan, Conn.

All those interested in this society will kindly address all communications to the secretary, Box 136, Mamaroneck, N. Y. Martin M. Benedek, Sec'y.

Woodstock, Ont.—The Woodstock Floral Co. is contemplating building two new houses. Trade in this city is good.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The market is easy in practically all lines and prices are in accord. A considerable amount of funeral work, a number of decorations and a good shipping demand have kept the market fairly well cleaned up. The supply of roses is about sufficient to meet request. American Beauties of every size can be obtained regularly; in fact, all orders for this flower are being filled in full. Killarney, and perhaps Bride, are somewhat short, but there are enough of other good varieties to fill orders. The supply of red roses and the demand for them have both slowed up considerably.

Carnations are selling well, but at such rock-bottom prices that there is bound to be a demand for them. The quality is good. Bright weather, if it happens, will bring on a heavy cut of carnations in a short time.

A sufficiency of other lines is on hand. Single violets are cleaning up nicely and are crowding the doubles. While many of these last are sold, they bring low prices. Longiflorums and callas are holding up well. Paper Whites and Romans are a glut. Poinsettias still come into the wholesale houses and are of fine quality. Sweet peas, valley and orchids are offered. The features of the green goods market are the demands for fancy ferns and the shortness of the supply of plumosus.

Various Notes.

Wm. Murphy has installed a clock in his salesroom, the small hand of which points to $10,000 and the large one points to the rapidly increasing subscriptions toward the guarantee fund for the flower show next fall.

The writer wishes to correct an error he inadvertently made in the report of the last club meeting. The vase of carnations were of C. C. Murphy's seedling red carnation, not C. E. Murphy's, as reported.

C. E. Critchell received large lots of green sheet moss and sphagnum last week. L. H. Kyrk also received some fine green moss.

Wm. Murphy reports a good demand for carnations at present prices.

Miss Edith Kyrk had the Long wedding decoration January 14.

Julius Baer had the Seasongood golden wedding decoration.

Visitor: O. Woodworth, representing the Sefton Mfg. Co., Chicago.

Bowling.

Al. Horning is surely the real baby doll when it comes to copping bowling club prizes. At the last meet he won the substantial cash prize offered by Wm. Murphy for the high man in the fourth game, with a score of 213, and in Monday's games won the florist's knife, offered by J. M. McCullough Son's Co. for high average in the championship games, with an average of 161.

CUT FLOWERS IN CHICAGO

Not Hot Air, but the Plain Facts; Statements that You can Depend on

We have received a number of answers to our questions of last week. These answers came in the shape of trial orders. We have added the names of those who answered to our list of regular customers. Why? Because we never lose a customer. We find that everybody appreciates a square deal. We do not say our stock cannot be equaled in this country, but we DO say our stock gives satisfaction, and that we have earned the reputation of giving every customer a square deal.

The Market.

Business is moving along in a rut. There is just about enough demand to keep the market fairly well cleaned out, but there is not a large cut of flowers coming in. Things drag along and prices are gradually slipping downward. However, a change in the weather is due, and with a little colder weather we can expect a revival of prices. It has been unseasonably warm for the last two weeks, with temperatures around 45 and 50 degrees at night, with a great deal of cloudy weather.

While roses are coming in plentifully now, many growers report that they will soon be off crop, and with more cloudy, cold weather we can look for a shortage of roses within the next couple of weeks. Carnations are doing well and the supply is right up to the demand. The quality of the stock is good and the prices are satisfactory, though the tendency is downward. Bulbous stock is seen in increasing quantities and sells well. Lilies of all kinds are in demand.

Violets are exceedingly popular this season and some extra fine stock is to be seen. Singles predominate. Valley is plentiful and is hard to move, but as to quality it is hard to beat. Cattleyas and cypripediums are in fair demand. Mignonette and lavender sweet peas in the fancy grades are quickly taken up, but the shorts hang fire.

This market is well fixed on green goods, with a good demand.

Md., has installed his new 100 horse-power tubular boiler, which is doing excellent work, as Mr. Hamilton's range of glass is a large one. His cut of roses and carnations is the finest he has had for some time.

G. A. Lotze, of Glenburnie, Md., has two houses of single violets which are worth going a long way to see. The stems are about seven inches long. He has just finished a propagating house, 14x75, for carnation and mum cuttings, which are looking fine. He has two acres of sweet peas planted outside and covered with pine branches. Q.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

A decided change has come over the cut flower market. Perhaps it may be most clearly described by dividing the account into two parts. In the first period, comprising Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, business was something like the weather, dull and featureless, with a fair market at the close. In the second part, comprising Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of the present week, business has been brisk, the weather invigorating. The supply of roses is diminishing and in their place other flowers are being used. The demand has not yet extended to bulbous flowers, the slowest on the list. Violets, too, have been rather dull.

American Beauties have been better in the long than in the medium grades. A fair quantity of stock is offered; prices are firmer. Richmond and Killarney are in only moderate supply; the shorter grades have advanced in price. Maryland is scarcer than Killarney. While there is a good demand for pink roses, white is selling even better. There are no fancy whites in the market. All grades of White Killarney and of Bride are in demand.

Carnations gave a lot of trouble last week, during the depressingly damp, warm weather; they would not keep when subjected to strain. Conditions have greatly improved with the colder weather and carnations are now in request, the better grades particularly so. Violets have been unsatisfactory, but there is an improvement both in quality and in popularity. Sweet peas are in fair demand; really fine flowers everybody wants. Cattleyas have fallen lower than at any time this season, influenced by heavy supply. Gardenias, too, have dropped, though the supply of gardenias is shortening. Valley from the new pips is extremely fine, demand good. White lilac is selling better than at any time this season. Easter lilies go slowly. Callas continue better stock, partly, perhaps, because scarcer. Daffodils have dropped a point and are selling freely. Not so tulips. Paper Whites and Romans continue to worry the wholesalers; they will accumulate, though, when it comes to a concession in price to move. Paper Whites are always stronger. Freesia has made its appearance. Of the greens, smilax is dull, adiantum and asparagus active. Hardy ferns sell well.

Mr. Towill's New Rose.

I am indebted to Edward Towill, of Roslyn, for two blooms of his new rose, a seedling raised from a cross between Richmond and J. B. Clark. Edward Towill, who may be fairly termed the "great Towill," to distinguish him from several brethren who are likewise ornaments to our profession, has made his mark with the camel's-hair brush in the past. To judge this rose as it came today would be to place it in the front rank of our forcing roses. There were two blooms, both showing magnificent size, as large as the finest American Beauty, beautiful, rich red color, delicious fragrance, heavy stems of medium length, clothed with excellent foliage. One of the blooms, cut four days before the other, was a little lighter in color, but with not a trace of magenta, the purplish tinge that mars the fading Beauty. The color scarce seemed as bright as Richmond, yet an excellent red, and the flower of substance of which Richmond never dreamed. Mr. Towill has ten plants of this rose, so it is not in the debutante class—just in the nursery—to be watched with keenest interest as it develops. Another seedling, a deep hued cross between Killarney and Rosalind Orr English, is a fitting foil for the other.

Various Notes.

The principal business at the January meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was the discussion of the plan for improving the society's shows. It will be remembered that J. Otto Thilow, chairman of the essay committee of the Florists' Club, invited Edward A. Stroud to prepare and read a paper on how to improve our shows. The result of this paper, read before the Florists' Club December 6, was the appointment of a committee with power to act. This committee met a committee of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society; together they organized, with Mr. Stroud as chairman and Mr. Thilow from a southern trip this week that was particularly happy because the southern florists had all enjoyed most prosperous holiday business. Conditions in the south today are most encouraging.

George Anderson has been cutting some Bridesmaid roses that an expert judge asserts are as fine as any of that old-time rose ever seen in this city.

Ribbons have gained ground among the fashionable florists, who are using them more freely, instead of chiffon, believing that the latter has been overdone.

John W. McIntyre reports activity in white lilac. There is a good supply and an excellent demand. Phil.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

Business moved evenly last week. No rush, but just a steady, healthy condition that kept pace with the supply of stock that was offered. Several weddings and receptions and about the usual number of funerals occupied the attention of the florists. Prices are now settled to normal and there is practically a sufficient supply of everything.

Johnston Bros., Dorrance street, had a wedding Monday, January 16, for which all the decorations and bouquets were yellow roses. They had to call on Boston and Philadelphia for the supply.

Joseph King, gardener for Benjamin Barker, of Tiverton, has been confined to his home with grip for several days.

George Kelley, of Waterman street, who recently broke his ankle by falling down the cellar stairs at his greenhouses, is slowly improving.

SEFTON CORRUGATED SHIPPING CASES

STRONG, LIGHT AND CONVENIENT

WHY use heavy wooden Boxes for Shipments of Flowers and Plants when you can get a box better adapted to your needs, weighing about one-half as much?

Our Boxes are made to fold flat; thus insuring economy in storage space and enables the commission merchant to knock them down and return them in bundles, reducing return charges--they can be used over and over.

Our Patented K. D. Tin Corner is the only satisfactory K.D. corner ever adapted to a Corrugated Shipping Case. It gives you a perfectly flat box. Costs no more than set up corners.

Standard Mail Tubes

Did you see the article headed

"THE PLANT MAILING RADIUS"

on page 16 of the January 12th number of The Review? It's rather interesting—A severer test could hardly be made. We have done some testing ourselves, but this test, which was made without our knowledge with a regular stock tube, is certainly the hardest test we ever heard of. Evidently our tube meets every requirement. Have you used them? Samples on request.

At the annual meeting of the New Bedford Horticultural Society, held in the board of trade rooms, officers were elected as follows: President, Frank C. Barrows; vice-president, John P. Rooney; secretary, J. M. Taber; treasurer, Walter A. Luce; executive committee, James H. McVicker, Richard Parkinson, W. D. Hathaway, H. A. Jahn, Edward E. Shaw. The following additional members will be appointed on the committee by the president to act in the interest of the annual flower show: John P. Rooney, Edward E. Pierce, Andrew J. Fish. The executive committee reported that twenty new members have been added to the society during the year, and the total number who have paid their dues is sixty-nine, an increase of thirteen over last year. It was decided that the society continue to coöperate with the home garden movement.

Utica, N. Y.—Chas. F. Seitzer is reported to be contemplating retiring from business shortly, when the lease of his place expires. He is a veteran in the business and has had a successful career.

OBITUARY.

Edward Aleon.

Edward Aleon, of Texarkana, Ark., died in that city January 5, at the age of 35 years, after an illness of nine weeks of heart trouble and dropsy. He was formerly in business at Evansville, Ind., from which he removed about seven years ago. His body was taken to Evansville for burial. He is survived by his wife and two children, and also by three brothers and two sisters.

John W. Remagen.

John W. Remagen, a florist and market gardener of Lima, O., died January 1 after a long illness, at his home, 1124 North Main street, at the age of 62 years. He was born in Richland county, Ohio, the son of Peter and Elizabeth Remagen, who came to this country from Germany. Mrs. Remagen and two children, C. H. Remagen and Mrs. G. G. Diehl, all of Lima, survive.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Business is good and stock is scarce. The latter is especially true of Beauties and Richmonds, and of all kinds of greens. Merckel Bros., of Mentor, O., are shipping in some good adiantum, but the supply is limited in the commission houses. There is still a good demand for party decorations, corsages and cut flowers, though the annual exit to southern resorts is well along.

Cleveland's new federal building opened last week in a "please omit flowers" sort of way, and one hardly realized the change from the old building to the new. However, it is to be hoped that some stir will be created at the formal dedication in March.

Various Notes.

The Sayles-Ayre wedding last week was an elaborate affair, and the First M. E. Church and Colonial club were both beautifully decorated for the occasion. The bride carried a shower bouquet of valley, the maid of honor a shower of white violets, the six bridesmaids bouquets of Mrs. Aaron Ward roses, and the two flower girls carried old-fashioned bouquets of pink rose buds. Smith & Fetters Co. had the decorating and bouquets for the bridal party.

Frank Smith, formerly of the Smith & Fetters Co., is in Texas.

The Jones-Russell Co. is displaying in one of the windows "the first wedding wreath used or shown in Cleveland." It is being carried by Julian Eltinge in "The Fascinating Widow," which is showing at the Opera House this week.

James Petter, of the J. M. Gasser Co., is spending a few weeks in California.

The weather has turned exceedingly cold during the last few days, but the sun shines brightly every day, which should bring in some nice stock.

C. D. F.

AUBURN, N. Y.

Alfred Patrick was the first in the field with Trumpet Major narcissi and Mon Tresor tulips. The colors took well.

Thos. Hicks & Son make a specialty of box trade and find a ready sale for assorted boxes of flowers for presents.

Dobbs & Son had difficulty during the holidays in filling orders for cut flowers and in many cases substituted flowering plants satisfactorily.

Mose Patrick is launching out into the seed business, and, judging from his ideas, he will make it a go. M.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—John Kluge has leased the Pendell greenhouses, on Violet avenue, formerly conducted by J. H. Stoutenburgh, and is growing violets. Mr. Kluge learned the florists' trade in Germany.

Geneva, N. Y.—W. & T. Cass furnished the large palms for a big society function January 12. W. Cass, Jr., is taking a store course in the employ of Charles Dards, of New York city, and interests the folks at home with reports of the way things are done at the big metropolitan store.

Six Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand. If you are the only florist in your city represented here, you get the orders coming into your territory from other florists. If you are not represented and "the other fellow" is—we can leave it to you what becomes of these desirable orders.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

The business last week was considered good, judging from the various reports of the leading retailers throughout the city. There was a good deal of work turned out for the social set, and this kind of work kept the uptown florists pretty busy all of the week. There was also a good run of funeral work put up by all of the retailers, which created a big demand for white stock.

The wholesalers were well supplied the early part of last week with good stock of all kinds and a fair demand, but the latter part of the week stock became somewhat scarce and they reported clean-up sales.

Long fancy Beauties sold well, also all other roses. Carnations were in fair supply and in great demand. At present violets are plentiful, but the sale for them consumed the consignments nearly every day, but at cheap prices—not over $5 per thousand for the choice. Romans, valley, Paper Whites and lilies are plentiful, but the scarcity of other stock created a demand for them. Sweet peas sell well and all greens have a good demand.

Club Meeting.

The Florists' Club held its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon, January 12, with an attendance numbering twenty-five, including all the officers. The bulletin committee reported that the publication is on a paying basis. Chairman De Wever was not present, owing to sickness, and the report was read by the secretary. Quite a discussion was caused by the question of how to celebrate the club's twenty-fifth anniversary, and on a final vote the trustees were instructed to select a place of celebration and report at the February meeting.

The free scholarship of the Missouri Botanical Garden, which is at the disposal of the club, was conferred on young Mr. Grossart, who is the son of our fellow member, Gust. W. Grossart.

The secretary was instructed to extend the club's sympathy to the bereaved family of the late Fred Dorner.

The following were elected to membership: Jules Bourdet, John Houlihan and John Held, all three being greenhouse men. On recommendation of the trustees, it was decided to hold the club's annual carnation show during the next meeting in February, when the entire afternoon will be taken up in discussions on carnations. Growers of new carnations are invited to send new blooms for inspection by our local carnation growers, who will be out in full force at this meeting.

J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., was present, and his invitation to the members to attend the Illinois State Florists' Association's meeting at Champaign, Ill., February 8 and 9, was accepted with thanks.

The next regular meeting will be Thursday afternoon, February 9.

Various Notes.

Ostertag Bros. will furnish the decorations at the Coliseum for the Bowling Congress, which will be in session after January 21. They have also entered a team named Ostertag Bros. Other local florists who will enter in the tournament are Charles Kuehn, George Schrifer, Carl Beyer, A. Y. Ellison and J. J. Beneke.

Fred Ammann is showing a fine gold-headed umbrella which was presented to him by his employees as a Christmas gift.

Some of the members from out of the city who attended the club meeting were: A. S. Halstead, E. W. Guy, Gust. Grossart and Henry Emunds, of Belleville; Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, Mo.; W. J. Pilcher, of Kirkwood; J. M. Connon and Joe Hansen, of Webster Groves.

The Retail Florists' Association held its first banquet at the Marquette hotel, Monday, January 16. Plates were laid for the entire membership. The four wholesalers accepted invitations to be present.

The Ladies' Home Circle met Monday, January 9, and spent a pleasant afternoon at Trimps hall. The report of the committee on a social night, which will include the men folks, was laid over until the next meeting.

The St. Louis Seed Co. has started preparations for handling a big seed trade this spring. Martin Moran, who has charge of the florists' end of the business, says trade in all lines has been good with them since the close of the holidays.

All four of our wholesalers have been handling great quantities of California violets.

The downtown retailers, the Riessen Floral Co., Paris Floral Co., Otto Sander, Grimm & Gorly and Alex. Siegel, say that they had a splendid week in transient trade. Violets and carnations sold well. All are making pretty show-window displays, which attract the buyers.

J. Dilloff, representing Schloss Bros., New York, spent part of last week calling on the local trade. J. J. B.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Market conditions have not changed a great deal in the last week. Funeral trade is fairly heavy, as is the counter trade. Spring flowers, jonquils, freesias, sweet peas, tulips, hyacinths, lilacs and Paper Whites are plentiful and are favorites. Owing to the arrival of a few days of bright weather, the carnation supply is equal to the demand; the quality is also good. In potted plants Lorraines, cyclamens, azaleas and primroses comprise the principal stock offered.

Tomlinson Hall market is well supplied with flowers, but trade has been reported quiet of late.

State Florists' Association.

The annual meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held at the Commercial Club, January 10. The meeting was well attended, there being about fifty members present. Much important business was transacted.

The report of the secretary showed the society healthy and growing. About twenty-five members were admitted last year. The society death list was large during the year, three of its members, Mrs. Vesey, A. Wiegand and Fred Dorner, having passed away.

It was decided at this meeting to renew the invitation to the American Rose Society to hold its 1912 meeting in Indianapolis. The Indiana delegates to the meeting in March were instructed not to come home without securing the 1912 meeting for Indianapolis.

The committee which was appointed to confer with the State Board of Agriculture to improve the exhibits at the state fair reported satisfactory progress. Among the concessions granted for the coming exhibition was a liberal increase in the premium list.

The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: George P. Gause, of Richmond, president; Herman Junge, of Cumberland, first vice-president; Ernest Rieman, Indianapolis, second vice-president; A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, secretary; Homer L. Wiegand, Indianapolis, treasurer. There was a spirited contest for the position of second vice-president between Ernest Rieman and Fred Hukreide, the former winning by three votes.

Considerable interest was shown in the exhibits of cut blooms. Among them was a vase of the new carnation Washington, shown by the Chicago Carnation Co. and scoring 82 points. Baur & Smith had a vase of a new seedling, No. 668, of the dark pink Enchantress variety, which scored 87 points, also a vase of fine Pocahontas, which was awarded 87 points. Henry Rodenbeck and Stuart & Haugh showed vases of some excellent single violets. Albert Pettit brought a vase of his new seedling sweet pea, which elicited much favorable comment. Bert Stanley made a hit with the tobacco users, bringing a sample of the kind of tobacco that he has been growing; it certainly looked good and, as E. A. Nelson got the sample, he can tell us more about it. The Pahud Floral Co. showed a vase of the new double poinsettia. Harry White brought down two vases, samples of the kind of carnations that he grows; his stock is first-class. Harry Temperly also showed a vase of Rose-pink Enchantress.

The meeting was followed by a banquet, Alfred Brandt acting in the capacity of toastmaster. After numerous toasts were responded to, the meeting adjourned, being pronounced one of the best ever held by the association.

Among the out-of-town members attending were: J. S. Stuart, J. E. A. Haugh and Ralph Meeks, all of Anderson; Charles Knopf, George Gause and James Jones, of Richmond; Harry White, North Manchester; Mr. Maximan, Alexandria; Ira Clark, Greensburg; C. S. Barnaby, Columbus; Herman Junge and Robert Ellis, of Cumberland; A. Rasmussen and V. Bettman, of New Albany; Harry Nicholson, with the Chicago Carnation Co., and Bert Stanley.

Various Notes.

A. F. J. Baur is the proudest man in Indianapolis today. At 2:45 p. m., January 11, Francis Adolphe Baur made his way into this world. At last reports, mother and son were doing well.

John Rieman has been confined to his home on account of sickness for the last week.

Alfred Brandt is building a small conservatory in the rear of his residence on Talbott avenue. He expects to heat this greenhouse directly from the steam boiler in the residence. He says that he will grow ferns and small potted plants for the present and later put in a stock of palms for decorative purposes.

Will Roepke has signified his intention of getting married January 26. He had intended to spring a surprise on his friends, but it was too good to keep.

Carl Groener, with A. Wiegand & Sons, was called to Chicago on account of sickness in the family. H. L. W.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres, E. L. Page, Greene, N. Y.; First Vice-pres., L. H Vaughan, Chicago; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Twenty-ninth annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 20 to 22, 1911.

MILWAUKEE seems to be, after all, more famous than East Aurora.

FOR one thing, the European seeds are in on time this season and orders can go out much earlier than last year.

W. H. GRENELL, Saginaw, Mich., says the pea growers' principal troubles at the moment are with the supply of stock seed.

AT Philadelphia the firm of Gt. van Waveren & Kruijff, Sassenheim, Holland, has established a branch in charge of Louis Berger.

THE P. A. L. Ferguson Seed Co., of Minneapolis, Minn., has purchased 1,600 acres of ground at Gilman, Wis. This firm operates several other seed farms in the northwest.

RAIN rescued the California growers January 8 to 10. Given an average precipitation for the balance of the season and they hope to pull through, though the deficiency still will be large.

THE Texas Seed and Floral Co., Dallas, is just mailing an edition of 60,000 catalogues, the largest general seed list ever issued in the southwest. R. Nicholson says that over a carload of paper went into the book and that otherwise it is Dallas-made throughout.

THE American Breeders' Association will hold its seventh annual meeting at the National Corn Exposition, Columbus, O., February 1 to 3. Seedsmen who have places on the program are J. Dwight Funk, Bloomington, Ill.; C. R. Keeny, Le Roy, N. Y., and W. W. Tracy, Washington.

THE following item comes via New York: "It is understood that California farmers who grow mustard seed and all varieties of seed beans have organized a selling company, to be known as the Lompoc Seed Growers' Association. The organization controls seventy-five per cent of the California mustard crop and practically the whole output of California seed beans of all varieties. The association was organized by John Houck, A. G. Balaam and F. O. Harris, who are the principal seed growers of California, and they are the officers, Mr. Houck being president, Mr. Balaam secretary and Mr. Harris treasurer."

THE Holland bulb growers are hoping for steady winter weather. Thus far snow fall has been deficient and the freshly planted bulb fields, while under winter cover, have not had the protection that only nature can give.

THE specific duties on seeds under the new tariff are not proving, this season, so great an advance over the old ad valorem duties as was at first figured. With advanced values the duties would have automatically advanced under the old schedule, while now the duty is the same, be seeds cheap or dear.

RAIN IN CALIFORNIA.

Writing from Livermore, Cal., January 10, David Nicol, grower of flower seeds, says: "Rain has at last come to California, which is a most important event at this season of the year. Never has there been such an anxious time, both with farmers and seed growers. People in the cities at the coast were complimenting each other on the delightful weather they were having, little dreaming that the seed grower and farmer were quietly looking at the preacher with an appeal that was almost pathetic; in fact, I haven't the slightest doubt that many of us were trying to remember our early training."

MILWAUKEE NEXT.

The executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association held a short session at the Hotel Pontchartrain, Detroit, January 11, and voted to hold the next annual convention, in June, at Milwaukee. Those present were: President E. L. Page, Greene, N. Y.; Secretary C. E. Kendel, Cleveland; J. C. Robinson, Waterloo, Neb.; C. N. Page, Des Moines, Ia.; S. F. Willard, Wethersfield, Conn.; S. F. Leonard, Chicago; K. B. White, Detroit, constituting the full board; also Watson S. Woodruff, chairman of the committee on legislation; Albert McCullough, chairman of the committee on membership, and also representing the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association; W. H. Grenell, of Saginaw; Mr. Smith, and others. The subject of federal seed legislation came in for considerable discussion. The association will be represented at Washington, February 2, to which date the public hearing on pure seed bills has been postponed by the committee on interstate and foreign commerce.

DUTY ON FLAXSEED SCREENINGS.

In a letter to the collector of customs at St. Paul in regard to the duty which is to be exacted on flaxseed containing foul seed and other impurities, the Treasury Department has ordered that the screening from such seed should be assessed under paragraph 479 of the tariff act as waste, not specially provided for, at ten per cent ad valorem. Otherwise, it would be classed as non-enumerated unmanufactured articles at the same rate of duty under paragraph 840.

THE LOMPOC VALLEY.

A subscriber at Lompoc, Cal., writes as follows: "As you are probably aware, W. Atlee Burpee & Co. have quite extensive (for this place) propagating houses and grounds about three miles from Lompoc, between here and the ocean. It is understood that on Mr. Burpee's visit here in June he was much pleased with the locality and increased the firm's holdings. Burbank gives this valley the praise of being unquestionably the best valley in the state of California, barring none. True, the farmers and others, with few exceptions, have not yet got beyond the raising of beans, mustard and sweet peas for seeds, most of this being under contract at from 4 to 4½ cents per pound for Kentucky Wonder beans; small whites, etc., less; 6 to 12 cents for sweet peas, depending upon mixture or straight. But we think the valley in another year will have other products in this line, as we have seen quite extensive seed raising in other localities, but few where seed bearing plants seem to reach such fullness and quality as here."

NEW AND RARE DAHLIAS!

New and Dwarf Mignon Dahlias, offered for the first time

This valuable novelty is an entirely new strain among the species of Dahlias. Its early flowering and very dwarf habit (15 inches) make it one of the finest bedding plants ever introduced. It commences to bloom in June and keeps on flowering until frost starts in. We can offer it in six shades. Habit of growing and flowering reminds one of Anemone Japonica (Japanese Windflower), as every plant of the Mignon Dahlia produces in great profusion, well-formed, single flowers of medium size and magnificent color, which stand erect above the foliage and are, as cut flowers, excellent for table decorations.

The flower committee at Amsterdam awarded this race, on account of its great merits for bedding and cutting purposes, 5 First-Class Certificates and 5 Awards of Merit.

Price for strong field-grown tubers,

Each	$ 0.50	F. O. B. Holland
Two of each shade, per doz.	5.00
Per 100	35.00

We have also in connection with these Mignon Dahlias some very fine new Peony Dahlia varieties, which you will find in our Special Dahlia Catalogue, which will be mailed to anyone who wishes same.

Order now, so that we may book your order for these Dahlias.

We still have about 15,000 of the beautiful pink Queen Alexandra Spiraea left. Can ship at once. Ask price.

We are also booking orders for Bulbs and Spiraea to be shipped in September and October. Let us have your order early. Prices quoted upon request (state whether you want prices quoted f. o. b. Holland or f. o. b. Philadelphia Branch House). A postal received in time will bring one of our American salesmen from the Philadelphia House upon their semi-annual trip.

Our Catalogue for Bulbs and Plants is now ready for 1911. Do not delay in asking for one of these. Learn to buy direct from the nursery, as our prices will surprise you. Goods can be sold F. O. B. Philadelphia if so desired.

ENGLISH SEEDSMEN'S NEW PLACE

The business of James Carter & Co., seedsmen, has been conducted at Holborn, London, since it was founded by the late James Carter in 1836. But with 1911 the firm's headquarters have been transferred to Raynes Park, a suburb close to Wimbledon. Several disadvantages existed in having the main establishment in the metropolis, the principal difficulty being that of obtaining sufficient space for extending the premises. Moreover, the trial grounds, so important an adjunct in conducting a business of this nature, were of necessity detached from the central organization. The firm, therefore, decided to build a new warehouse, with accommodation for all the various branches of a great seed business. A site of about twenty-five acres was selected at Raynes Park. The new structure does not in the least resemble the orthodox seed warehouse, but, on the contrary, is an imposing building, that may be likened somewhat to a large orangery. It is built on a raised terrace, and forms a conspicuous object to travelers on the main line of the London & South-Western Railway. The

THE OSTRICH PLUME CELOSIA "PRIDE OF CASTLE GOULD" is an entirely distinct type of the Celosia Pyramidalis Plumosa, and surpasses by far anything thus far placed on the market. This strain has through constant culture and careful selection and hybridization proven its superiority to anything similar ever offered.

The following four strong points speak for themselves:

HABIT OF PLANT. Pyramidal, compact growth of from two to three feet, with immense, extra fine-feathered heads, gives the plant a most striking and unique appearance.

MARKET VALUE. The flowers being of such bright and intense color, and the plant of erect growth and beautiful foliage, it creates the greatest admiration, wherever shown, and establishes a demand for itself that every plant-lover must appreciate.

COLOR. The following distinct colors are among these hybrids: Blood-red, real Carmine, Golden Yellow, Salmon, Deep Scarlet, Dark Orange and Wine Red. However, by variation, there will be found many more shades; the self-coloring will be surprising.

DECORATIVE VALUE. As a pot plant, with its quick-growing habit, we believe there is no finer plant known at the present time, wherefrom in the course of six months a most excellent stock of salable plants in every size can be obtained. As a bedding plant, it cannot be equaled by any other annual for its profusion of flowers and variety of striking colors, and we consider it the queen of all decorative annuals where showing groups are desired, and when given a fine, sunny exposure it will develop to its highest perfection.

We offer seed for the first year strictly from pot-grown plants, furnished by the introducers, Messrs. Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.

All packets we send out will contain mixed seeds.

Begonias, Single in Separate Colors. Scarlet, Crimson, Rose, White, Yellow and Orange, 40c per doz.; $2.50 per 100; $22.50 per 1000.

Begonias, Single in Choicest Mixture. 35c per doz.; $2.25 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

Begonias, Doubles in Separate Colors. Scarlet, Rose, White and Yellow, 60c per doz.; $4.50 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Begonias, Doubles in Choicest Mixture, 50c per doz.; $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000.

Begonias, Frilled in Separate Colors. Scarlet, White, Pink and Yellow. These are with wavy and frilled petals like some of the newer Petunias, $1.00 per doz.; $7.00 per 100; $60.00 per 1000.

Begonias, Dwarf Hybrid, Duke Zeppelin. Rich scarlet, 85c per doz.; $6.00 per 100.

Begonias, Dwarf Hybrid, Frau Helene Harms. New yellow, $2.00 per doz.

Begonias, Dwarf Hybrid, Lafayette. Crimson-scarlet, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

Gloxinias, in Choicest Mixture, or in Separate Colors, as Blue, Red, White, Red with white edge, and Blue with white edge, 60c per doz.; $3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000.

Gloxinia, New Emperor (Gloxinia Hybrida Imperialis). A new type, a cross between Sinningia Regina and the best types of Hybrid Gloxinias. This not only covers a full range of colors as in the ordinary type of Gloxinia, but the foliage also is very ornamental, the leaves being of a rich bronzy red color, with strong projecting white veins. The flowers all stand erect, thus showing to best advantage. We offer in choice mixture, $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100.

FANCY LEAVED CALADIUMS.

We have the largest stock in the world. Over 400 varieties, including not only all the good standard sorts, but many new varieties never offered in quantity before.

This is one of the most valuable plants for decoration of the Florists' store window during the summer months and during recent years we have sold many thousands for this purpose. We especially recommend the choice rare and new varieties at $15.00 per 100 for this purpose.

We offer special selections according to variety as follows:

Choice Standard Varieties. The finest collection ever offered at the price, $1.75 per doz.; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Choice Rare and New Varieties. A splendid assortment, especially valuable for the retail florist, $2.25 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

Rare New Varieties. The most recent introductions, $3.50 per doz.; $25.00 per 100.

Choice Mixture, $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100; $80.00 per 1000.

Our New Quarterly Wholesale List, issued January first, contains a full list of seasonable Plants, Seeds, Bulbs, etc. Write for it if you have not already received a copy.

THE WHITE FLY.

Please inform me in regard to a white fly that infests my greenhouse. It is about half as large as a white lettuce seed. It does not confine itself to any particular variety of plants, but is all over the house. I cannot see that it does much damage. I fumigate the house thoroughly every week with tobacco and spray with Nikoteen once a week, according to directions. A. W.

You have the common greenhouse white fly, and there is only one way to get rid of it and that is with hydrocyanic acid gas. It is an extremely small insect and does less damage than most insects, but finally increases so greatly in numbers as to do much harm.

Get some ninety-eight per cent cyanide of potash at your druggist's and have it wrapped in 2-ounce packages. Take some half-gallon stone jars and put a pint of sulphuric acid and an equal amount of water in each jar. Place the jars in the walks in the greenhouse. Then go to the farthest one and drop in a packet—paper, string and all—and move quickly to the next one. When you get to the last one, at the entrance to the house, get right out, lock the door and stay out until toward morning, as the fumes are exceedingly poisonous. A second dose, about ten days later, will usually get all of the flies, which are easily killed by this kind of fumigating, even if light. Three jars to a house 100 feet long and twenty feet wide will do the work well.

Have the doors all secured, the pipes set for the night, the vents closed and any pet animals outside. What fumes may escape will do no damage outside. The house and the foliage should be dry when using cyanide. Early the next morning you can go in safely and open the vents a little. Later empty the jars of acid on the cinder pile or bury the stuff. H. G.

ALBANY, N. Y.

At the last meeting of the Albany Florists' Club, held at 73 State street, the officers for 1911 were installed, as follows: President, F. A. Danker; vice-president, Edward P. Tracey; treasurer, Patrick Hyde; secretary, Robert Davidson; trustees, J. H. Snyder, J. J. Berberick, C. Sanders, W. Newport, L. Menard, Sr., and W. C. Gloeckner.

One new member, Arthur Zirkman, was admitted, and applications for membership were received from Allen J. Jenkins, of Lenoxville, Mass., and Stephen Green, of Philadelphia. There was discussion during the evening on the cultivation of roses and carnations, and various matters of technical interest.

Livingston's Famous Tomatoes

fill the bill with the most particular planters. Even size, shape and color, heavy yielding and good eating qualities are bred into all our sorts. We grow tons of the best tomato seed every year to fill the steadily increasing demand.

Livingston's Globe makes many southern planters rich. First early large, round, purple. Of highest quality. Pkt., 10c; ⅛ oz., 20c; oz., 35c; ¼ lb., $1.00; lb., $3.60, postpaid.

Livingston's Beauty is still the standard purple market tomato. Early, productive, solid, best quality. Pkt., 5c; oz., 20c; ¼ lb., 50c; lb., $1.85, postpaid.

Livingston's Stone is the greatest canning tomato known today. Our "headquarter" stock is absolutely unequaled. Oz., 25c; ¼ lb., 75c; lb., $2.60, postpaid.

Free Booklets You Need

To make your work in greenhouse and garden a better success we have published the following helpful booklets—free for you.

"Tomato Facts," tells all about our money-making sorts, how and where we grow tons of high-class tomato seeds every year, how to raise prize fruits by staking and pruning. Profusely illustrated.

"Profitable Onions," explains our method of growing the finest onions in the world. Tells when to plant, how to plant, how to harvest the crop. Describes our unequaled strains. 16 pages, illustrated.

"Annual" and "Blue List," for 1911, should now be on your desk. They'll help to solve your seed problems. Honest prices, truthful descriptions and illustrations from photos make the books dependable guides. Write for any or all of above free books today.

The Crego Aster

"The Best in the Market"

After having demonstrated, by actual competition, in the open market, that it has fully earned its title as "The Best in the Market," the CREGO ASTER is again offered to the trade, with the positive assurance that it has again "made good."

A SATISFIED GROWER

Near St. Paul, Minn., under date of September 15th:

"The germination of the seed purchased from you last spring was the best I ever saw; apparently every seed producing a plant. I gave the best possible cultivation and saw the results about the first of September, when they commenced to bloom. They were perfectly magnificent. At our annual flower show I entered the CREGO ASTER in seven different classes, and took first prize in every instance. My asters were in a class by themselves, and a local florist, who was one of the judges, said they were the finest he had ever seen, and he offered to buy my crop at from $5.00 to $7.00 per 100."

This Aster has been given a fair trial in nearly every part of the United States and Canada, also in Europe, and has proved itself to be exactly what every florist needs: an aster which finds instant favor with his customers, for which they are willing to pay the highest price, and which gives him the highest return for his time and labor. It costs the grower no more to produce flowers of that grade than to grow the common run of asters which sell for but little more than enough to pay express charges. I am offering the CREGO ASTER in four colors, viz.: shell pink, pure white, rose-pink and violet blue. The latter color is offered for the first time. It is fully up to Crego grade, immense fluffy blossoms of splendid color.

If you are interested in getting the highest possible returns from your aster crop next summer, I shall be pleased to hear from you at an early date. Late orders will probably find the supply of seed exhausted.

The price of CREGO ASTER seed is as follows: ¼ oz., $1.00; ½ oz., $2.00; ounce, $4.00; cash with order. Full directions for growing the largest and finest Asters will be sent to each purchaser of ¼ oz. or more.

Seedsmen, write for liberal discounts.

There is one thing certain about cold storage lily bulbs and that is, that the best quality is an absolute necessity to successful results. Poor bulbs may bring some returns if planted when they arrive from Japan, but they will not stand the cold storage strain. Now, good cold storage Giganteum Lilies are not only profitable, but a very handy flower to have for funeral work, and you can depend upon them if you get good bulbs. A good cold storage Gig will flower regardless of cloudy days, when your carnations look like pistache nuts or green almonds and you need flowers. No grower should be without at least a few cold storage Giganteum at all times of the year, because they are one of the most useful and ornamental flowers produced. Horseshoe Brand Cold Storage Giganteum are of superior quality. The prices for various sizes are reasonable and we will supply them in any quantity, and at any time of the year. Order early and we will reserve them for you. Your business needs them whether you like to handle them or not, and you must attend to your business or your business will not attend to you.

PACIFIC COAST.

Meadow Lake, Wash.—John Maas has just completed a new house, 16x40, to be used for lettuce and a few plants.

Los Angeles, Cal.—After an illness of three weeks' duration, Frederick Haussmann was removed to the hospital December 23, for an operation. During his absence the business will be conducted by his son, Milton, and the rest of the family.

Seattle, Wash.—Wm. R. Gibson, manager of the Hollywood Gardens, who suffered a severe accident in November, was taken to his home at Philadelphia January 3 by his brother. He will remain in the east until he has fully recovered.

Santa Barbara, Cal.—A. Verhelle and E. Lejeune, proprietors of the Exotic Nurseries, have dissolved partnership. The business will be continued by Mr. Lejeune, under the old name and at the same location, on State street. Mr. Verhelle has established a separate business and has named his grounds the Kentia Nurseries, as he intends to make a specialty of kentias. However, he will also carry a large stock of other varieties of palms.

McMinnville, Ore.—S. H. Maris, proprietor of the Pioneer Greenhouses, says that the winter here has been particularly mild, with no lower temperature than 30 degrees above zero prior to January 1. Greenhouse plants and flowers are fine and sell readily at good prices; in fact, the quantity of stock lately has not been sufficient for the demand. The year 1910, Mr. Maris says, was a profitable one for both florists and gardeners.

Santa Monica, Cal.—Fashionable outdoor feasts in midwinter may not be common throughout the United States, but on the afternoon of December 30 the managers of the Golden State Plant & Floral Co. entertained a party of twenty-five friends at an elaborate outdoor dinner. Among those who sat down to the feast, spread beneath the pepper trees, were Mayor Dudley, several of the councilmen and city officials, bankers and nurserymen from Pasadena.

McMinnville, Ore.—Herbert & Fleishauer report as follows: "This winter has been the best that Yamhill county has enjoyed for some time. Up to this date, January 5, there have been only three or four slight frosts and most of the winter has been free from storms, except frequent showers of the Oregon type. S. H. Maris, one of McMinnville's ambitious greenhouse men, has his new house partly covered with glass, and we notice he is changing from the north and south idea and running his new house east and west, so as to face the light we so much need in the short days of December."

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The long looked for and welcome rain is at last with us and, although it hinders business for the time, it is bound to make things much better than they have been. Advices from interior points in the state seem to indicate that the downpour is general, and a quick resumption of trade should follow.

Owing to the mildness of the prevailing elements, there is a great plethora of flowers of all kinds, and a few good stiff frosts are needed to make stock scarce. Carnations are selling at a lower price than is usual at this time of the year, and almost similar comments could be made on everything else. As usual, however, good roses are holding their own, and from present indications they will continue to do so for some time to come. Violets are a drug and bulbous stock is fast getting to be in the same shape. Freesias and daffodils, valley and narcissi and other stock of that nature do not move as quickly as is usual at this time. Chrysanthemums are still alive, but they are on the wane. Other kinds of outdoor stock, with the exception of the bulbous flowers, are over for the season.

Various Notes.

F. J. Lockyer, formerly propagator for the Orange County Nurseries, at Fullerton, Cal., is in town and will probably locate here.

W. W. Saunders, of Cloverdale, Cal., and formerly of San Francisco, is in town on a visit.

The California Seed Co. reports a heavy trade in all kinds of spring flowering bulbs. This firm has the largest

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business has been spasmodic, a few hours of activity and then a lull for a few hours; funeral work and club decorations, with an occasional wedding, about cover the scope.

Carnations are becoming more plentiful, but the percentage of splits is appalling, although, of course, this does not cause an entire loss. White Killarney is showing elegant form, far superior to the pink variety in this section, as it is not subject to mildew. Maryland is the principal pink rose; Carnots and Kaiserins are back numbers. Valley is plentiful, but short of demand, and cattleyas seem to be entirely out of the market. Cypripediums are hardly salable, as there is rarely a call for them, but they make effective window displays. Easter lilies are plentiful and move readily, while callas are just commencing to produce and always move at top prices.

Shipments of field grown roses are being received, as the nurserymen expect an early opening of spring weather.

Various Notes.

A. J. Currie, of Milwaukee, Wis., called on the trade last week in the interests of the bulb industry.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to Eugene O'Hara, of the Portland Seed Co., on the recent death of his wife, after a lingering illness.

An especially severe snow storm, the first of the season, visited this section recently and kept the greenhouse forces busy cleaning glass. The temperature, however, was slightly above freezing and was not hard on the coal and wood piles. E. R. C.

MUSHROOMS WITH SWEET PEAS.

Can you tell me whether mushrooms growing around sweet peas are injurious to the peas? Mine are turning yellow and wilting off. The soil seems full of spawn, so I am anxious to know if it is the cause of the trouble. Would the mushrooms, which look nice, be safe to use? M. J. W.

It is no uncommon thing to find mushrooms growing in various beds or benches in greenhouses. Frequently the manure used contains some of the mycelium or spawn from which the mushrooms come. There should be nothing in this manure to cause your sweet peas to turn yellow, and, not knowing the cultural and other conditions, it is difficult to suggest a reason for the trouble. If you will state the nature of your house, the kind of soil used, the temperature given, the distance apart the plants are in the rows and how far the rows are apart, I can perhaps help you.

Without seeing one of the mushrooms, I cannot hazard an opinion as to whether you have the edible sort or not. Probably they are all right. You might ask someone in your neighborhood about them. The old and sure test—that after eating, if you are alive, it is a mushroom, if not it is the other variety—will hardly appeal to you. C. W.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June, 1911.

FIRE at the Evergreen Nursery, near Sturgeon Bay, Wis., destroyed the packing shed and office January 5.

WM. A. PETERSON has been reëlected a director of the State Bank of Chicago, one of the most prosperous financial institutions in the Garden City.

THE Universal Nurseries, of Geneva, N. Y., have been incorporated, with a capital of $5,000. The directors are Frank J. Conboy, T. J. Buckley and Thomas J. Bolger.

THE Kelsey Nurseries, of St. Joseph, Mo., have been incorporated, with a capital stock of $50,000, by Edward S. Welch, Ida A. Welch, George L. Welch and others.

THE H. E. Merrill Nursery Co., of Geneva, N. Y., has been incorporated, with a capital of $40,000. The directors are Harry L. King, of Geneva, and Howard Merrill and Eugenia H. Merrill, of New York city.

THE fifty-sixth annual meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society will be held at Rochester January 25 and 26. The membership now exceeds 1,500. Wm. C. Barry, of Ellwanger & Barry, is president and practically all the nurserymen of the state will attend.

FREDERICK WELLHOUSE, known as the apple king, at one time said to be the largest apple grower in the world, died January 11 in Leavenworth, Kan., aged 82 years. In 1890 the yield from the Wellhouse orchards was 80,000 bushels and it required 200 cars to ship his fruit. Mr. Wellhouse was a native of Wayne County, Ohio, and went to Kansas in 1859.

NURSERYMEN near the Gulf coast of Texas were somewhat alarmed by the cold weather of January 3, when thermometers at Victoria, Tex., registered 18 degrees above zero, the lowest temperature there for the winter. The Victoria Nursery Co., however, was authority for the statement that the nursery stock of the locality was not injured. R. H. Bushway, of the Alvin Fruit & Nursery Co., at Algoa, Tex., also stated that stock was undamaged, with the exception of tender lemons.

HOW THE PROSPECT LOOKS.

The only clouds on the nurserymen's horizon are those with a silver lining, according to much of the correspondence that is reaching The Review. Here are extracts from some of the letters:

W. C. Reed, Vincennes, Ind.

Trade this season has been the best since we have been in business. While prices on cherry have been a little low, the demand has been good, having sold 250,000 cherry alone last season. The supply of cherry at Vincennes for spring is less than usual, and I look for same to be cleaned up closely before the season is over. There will be little surplus in other lines; in fact, there seems to be quite a shortage all along the list and prices are satisfactory. Stock has made fair growth and the prospect for the coming fall is good.

J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.

We see no reason why the season of 1911 should not be quite satisfactory from the nurserymen's standpoint over

Roses for 1911

DARK PINK KILLARNEY

A sport of Killarney, similar in habit, but more highly colored than Killarney at its best. When Killarney is pale, Dark Pink Killarney is bright and cheerful.

Grafted Plants only, from 2¼-in. pots, $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000.

LADY CROMWELL

A shell-pink sport of My Maryland that for pleasing color is unsurpassed. A wonderful producer, and a color that sells.

Grafted Plants only, from 2¼-in. pots, $30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000.

DOUBLE PINK KILLARNEY

Originating with Robert Scott & Sons, who supply us the wood for grafting. Stronger in growth than Killarney, and with at least ten more petals. A wonderful improvement.

Grafted Stock only, $30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000.

PRINCE DE BULGARIE

The best prices for cut flowers should be the standard for judging Roses, and this Rose has been the money-getter. Strong and vigorous in growth, and with its beautiful shell-pink bloom, it has sold on sight. One of the best Roses grown.

Grafted Plants, $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000.
Own Root, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

MRS. AARON WARD

By far the most pleasing of the Yellow Roses now on the market. A general favorite, and one which will be widely grown, for yellow Roses are in demand.

Grafted Plants, $25.00 per 100, $200.00 per 1000.
Own Root, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

MELODY

We have reserved for our orders own-root plants of this choice novelty. No grafted plants.

From 2¼-in. pots, $30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000.

RADIANCE

Strong in growth, and making plenty of stem. Cerise pink in color.

Grafted Plants, $18.00 per 100, $150.00 per 1000.
Own Root, $10.00 per 100, $90.00 per 1000.

KILLARNEY, WHITE KILLARNEY, RICHMOND, MY MARYLAND, KAISERIN AUGUSTA VICTORIA

These are the old standards, and we are headquarters for young stock.

Grafted Plants, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.
Own Root, 2½-inch, $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

A GRAND NEW CARNATION BRIGHT SPOT

outclasses everything heretofore grown in the dark pink section. Won first honors in the 100 class for best dark pink at the A. C. S. meeting, Pittsburg, January, 1910, also at the Chicago Flower Show, November, 1909.

It is a pure, bright, dark pink of even shade, size 3½ inches, an early and continuous bloomer, brings fully 25 per cent more flowers to the plant than Lawson at its best; flowers well shaped on long, wiry stems; calyx does not split. It is a good shipper, and the cuttings root easy.

Price, per 100, $12.00; 25 at 100 rate; per 1000, $100.00; 250 at 1000 rate; per 5000, $400.00.

much in print concerning diseases, is, of course, led to believe this question is more serious than it really is. In this connection, our live publicity committee of the State Nurserymen's Association is endeavoring to keep the nursery interests favorably before the planter, hoping thereby to counteract, to some extent, at least, the erroneous impressions prevailing among planters as it pertains to diseases. The facts in the case are, we have so far nothing to fear from injurious tree diseases except in isolated cases.

Our state is in a prosperous condition, having marketed the most valuable cotton crop ever produced, and we again say we see no reason why the season of 1911 should not be a fruitful one for the nurserymen.

E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.

The prospects for the nursery trade are excellent, on the whole. Business with us to date is up to last year's average. We are having a good inquiry for stock and booking a good line of orders for winter and spring shipment. Cherry trees, Concord grape vines and California privet are apparently in surplus and selling low. We are in hopes that the low prices for these items will stimulate the demand and clean up the stock in the country.

I do not think the total business for the United States will, however, equal last year's. Late freezes in some states, drought in others and the drop in prices of some of the farm products will have a tendency to lessen the demand.

KOKOMO, IND.

Walter W. Coles, one of the most widely known florists in Indiana and one of the most successful, has practically decided to change his base of operations to the vicinity of Houston, Tex. Mr. Coles recently made a visit to Texas and was much impressed with the possibilities of that locality. He bought a tract of twenty-nine acres near Houston and will plant it to oranges and figs in the near future. Ill health in his family was the principal reason for his seeking a new location; the family doctor advised removal to a milder climate. Mr. Coles is planning to sell out his greenhouse interests here. He has about 70,000 feet of well-built and well-equipped glass, with a trade that extends throughout this section of Indiana.

NEWCASTLE, IND.

The greenhouses of P. J. Olinger, east of the city, had a narrow escape from serious damage on the morning of January 9, when the west gable of one of the houses, which is used for growing smilax and carnations, was blown in by the force of the wind. Two hundred and seventy-five panes of glass were smashed and there was imminent danger of the roof blowing off. Men hung on the rafters inside the house and the roof was wired down. Meantime the furnaces were kept filled and the temperature kept as high as possible. The result was that only a small amount of the growing stock was damaged.

Little Falls, N. Y.—J. O. Graham reports an increasing demand for flowering plants. Owing to the scarcity of carnations, he made up an extra number of baskets for holiday trade.

We have decided to disseminate our new Crimson Carnation

POCAHONTAS

We have grown this variety four years and have found it highly profitable. Our local retailers assert that crimson carnations with quality, such as Pocahontas possesses, will sell as well as any other color, the main trouble having been in getting crimson blooms with quality equal to the standards in other colors. Pocahontas has size and all the other qualities that make up a strictly first-class carnation, and it gives you enough bloom to pay you to grow it. Every visitor will substantiate this claim. Our stock is in fine condition, but limited. So get your order in at once.

Rooted Carnation Cuttings

WHITE WONDER (Dorner). A white carnation for all growers; leads any white; a greatly improved White Perfection; makes twice the size plant, thereby increasing its productiveness one-third. $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

GLORIOSA (Dorner). A magnificent shade of light pink, somewhat darker than Pink Delight. A great improvement over Pink Delight, early and free and easy to root. $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

BRIGHT SPOT (Zweifel). A grand new deep pink carnation. One that is sure to fill the want in the dark shade of pink that we all want. Won high honors wherever shown. Easy to root and handle in every way. $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

LAST SEASON'S VARIETIES

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY. The very best pure yellow. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

DOROTHY GORDON. One of the grandest carnations ever sent out. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

CANARY BIRD. A large yellow with a slight pink marking. Extra fine. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

SANGAMO. Brighter than Winona. Very free. One that pays well to grow. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

SHASTA. The freest white ever sent out, fine form, filling a long felt want. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

CONQUEST. The best variety of the Prosperity type; free as Lawson, good stem and easy to grow. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

ADMIRATION. A grand variety, much deeper than Enchantress. Free and a good keeper and shipper. One of the very best of last season's varieties. $5.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

SCARLET GLOW. An exceptionally bright scarlet; very free and good grower. Bound to find a place with the standard reds. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

TORONTO.

The Market.

The lack of good growing weather certainly is being felt in this part of the country. For the last month there has been little sun, often not for days at a time. On this account stock has been scarce, but to offset this the demand has fallen off. The weather has turned cold, and coal is in more demand than flowers. Bulbous stock is quite plentiful, though not of extra good quality. Good carnations and roses are scarce. Funeral work has been plentiful.

Various Notes.

A. E. Moore, the wholesaler on Bay street, reports good business, but, like the retailer, is complaining of the great scarcity of stock. He did a bigger business than ever during the holiday rush.

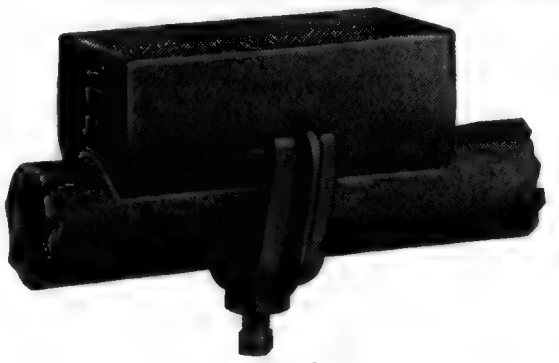
The new pavilion and horticultural building in the Allan Gardens is completed and is far ahead of the old one, which was destroyed by fire some years ago. It is built in the shape of a dome, with the roof and sides entirely of glass.

Fretwell & Atkinson recently opened a new flower store on College street, near Grace street.

Harry Martin, formerly in charge of the flower stand in the Hennessy drug store on Yonge street, has opened a stand of his own in the drug store at 2 King street east. Business has been fair.

Geo. H. Geraghty, of J. H. Dunlop's, reports good business.

S. A. Frost, of College street, states he is getting his share of the trade in design work and decorations for receptions, etc. Although stock is scarce, he manages to get enough to supply his wants by buying outside of Toronto.



Mr. Bakewell, also on College street, reports a good business at both his stores. E. F.

Hartford, Conn.—A new store, known as the Quality Flower Shop, was recently opened in the Times building, 722 Main street, with Page F. Potter in charge.

Dorothy Gordon, the Carnation that LASTS

CARNATION DOROTHY GORDON. FULL SIZE

THE substance of Carnation Dorothy Gordon when cut is one of its very special advantages—and from now on, for several months, that's a feature that will count big with your trade. You simply cannot do much with some Carnations; but the flowers of Carnation Dorothy Gordon keep their fine form, color and fragrance. Here is one example—we could tell you of many others:—

A lady wore a Dorothy Gordon—not a select specimen, but just an average run-of-bench flower—on Tuesday evening. She kept it in water until Sunday, then wore it to church; put it back in water, and it kept in good shape for a day or so more. You don't know of many other Carnations that would stand such treatment as that, do you? WE don't, and we've been growing commercial Carnations for years!

Then there are a lot of other strong points to consider—Carnation Dorothy Gordon is not bad about bursting at the calyx—a feature that has spoiled many an otherwise good sort. It is a tremendously free bloomer, with large flowers; is a little darker than Pink Enchantress, and is borne on long, stiff stems.

With us this Carnation has proved a great money-maker. Let it make money for you, too—we offer a fine but limited stock of rooted cuttings for immediate delivery, at $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

Orders are coming rapidly, and as all will be filled in rotation, we recommend that you specify your wants early. Dorothy Gordon is not an experiment and we are confident that it will fully justify our claims whenever tried.

Pink Boston Market

A seedling of Boston Market and Harlowarden that has been under test for the past five years and which has shown up so well under all conditions that I now feel confident it is one of the best commercial varieties and have pleasure in offering it for the first time for spring delivery 1911.

The color is a shade lighter pink than Lawson; form high built, much like Boston Market; stem long and graceful; healthy grower; blooms freely from November all through the season.

This new variety I am confident will prove a money-maker—a pink Boston Market—only much larger and better and destined to be one of the most popular commercial varieties.

Come and see it growing, and would advise you to get early rooted stock, which is now ready. I guarantee same to be in perfect health.

FINE FERNS

Ready For Immediate Retail Sale

We have an exceptionally fine and large stock of Ferns in the following varieties—first-class plants of exceedingly good value—plants that will please the most critical buyers, both in regard to quality and value.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima (improved). The finest of this type—never showing a Boston frond; has not reverted in the last four years. Fine plants, 4-in. pots, $2.50 per doz.; 6-in., $6.00 per doz.; 8-in., $12.00 per doz.; large specimens in 12-in. pans, $3.00 to $5.00 each.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima Compacta. This bears the same relation to Elegantissima that Scottii does to Bostoniensis. It is a dwarf, compact plant, especially fine in the small sizes. Fine plants, 4-in. pots, $3.00 per doz.; 6-in., $6.00 per doz.

Nephrolepis Scholzeli. Fine plants, 3½-in. pots, $2.50 per doz.; 6-in. pans, $6.00 per doz.; 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis. Extra strong plants, 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

Nephrolepis Scottii. 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

Small Ferns for Fern Pans. Best and hardiest varieties, assorted: Pteris Mayii, Wimsetti, Adiantoides, Aspidium Tsussimense, Crytomium Falcatum, etc. Strong plants, 2¼-in. pots, $3.50 per 100.

CROTONS. Nice assortment, well colored, 5-in., $9.00 per dozen.

DETROIT

The Market.

Trade was pretty lively all last week, with an additional spurt the last few days.

Roses are remarkably scarce, although the few available ones are of excellent quality. Carnations are in fairly good supply and bulbous flowers are coming in larger quantities as the season advances, thus relieving the market. Tulips were not of much account last week, but have improved so as to be all that could be desired. Daffodils also are fine and narcissi, Romans, valley, lilies, callas, etc., are available in quantity and the quality is A 1.

Various Notes.

August Von Boeselager, of Mount Clemens, left that city for Germany shortly after New Year's.

Herman Knope, foreman at Breitmeyer's greenhouses, is again suffering from a nervous breakdown. He has been ailing for some time and, although not confined to his bed, he is compelled to stay at home.

Much favorable comment was bestowed by the carnation growers who daily visit the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange upon four varieties sent by F. Dorner & Sons, of Lafayette, Ind. The varieties were White Wonder, Scarlet Glow, Gloriosa and Pink Delight.

The Wayne pavilion has been beautifully decorated for the auto show this week. Over 100 cases of smilax were used, being supplied by the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange. A large group of plants in the center of the fountain, and ferns surrounding it, were furnished by B. Schroeter.

Bright Spot, the beautiful new dark pink carnation now being disseminated by Nic Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, was highly complimented at the meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club, Monday, January 16.

W. B. Brown is contemplating the purchase of an automobile to take the place of his horse and wagon for delivering.

The annual dancing and card party given by the Detroit Florists' Club was scheduled for Thursday evening, January 19. This has always been a most enjoyable event for the florists and their families, and there was every reason to believe that this year would be no exception. H. S.

PELARGONIUMS.

PANSY GERANIUM, MRS. LAYAL.
This beautiful pelargonium is of the easiest growth, dwarf in habit, and literally covered with flowers all the time; and as it requires little or no attention, it is invaluable as a window plant. The coloring and marking of the flowers are most extraordinary, light pink, white, dark purple, black, etc., almost rivaling the pansy in uniqueness of flower. It is this combination of coloring which obtained for it the popular name of pansy geranium. Strong plants, $5.00 per 100.

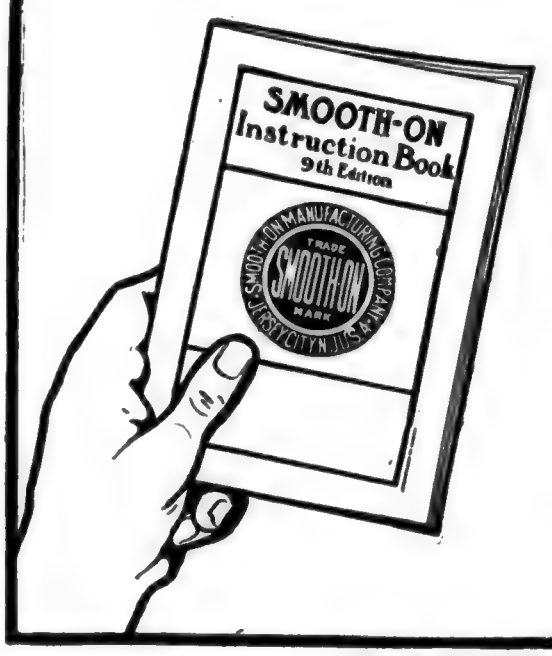
Greenhouse Heating.

CONNECTING A GENERATOR.

I should like to ask which is the better way to connect a Honeywell generator, on the flow or on the return.

I have in my heating system one 3-inch pipe to the far end of the house. The highest point of this pipe is five feet higher than the top of the boiler. This is near the boiler, and it drops at the rate of eight inches in twenty feet. At the far end of the house there is a 3-inch pipe across the house, which divides into four 2-inch pipes, each feeding five 2-inch returns. These returns drop fourteen inches in each twenty feet and feed into a 2½-inch pipe to the boiler. The generator is on the highest point of the flow pipe and the expansion tank is over the generator. I get plenty of heat in the coldest weather, but think it takes too much coal. G. H.

For a system arranged as described, it will be better to have the generator upon the flow pipe rather than attached to the return. Provided the piping is properly adjusted to the size of the house and is correctly arranged, it will be found, whether a generator is used or not, that the fuel consumed will be nearly in proportion to the heat obtained.



EQUALIZING THE TEMPERATURE.

I have two even-span greenhouses, running north and south and parallel. One house is 30x130 and eighteen feet to the ridge; the other is 10x130 and ten feet to the ridge. They are separated by a partition six feet high, four feet of which is cement and the upper two feet glass.

In the large house the night temperature is 54 degrees; in the small house, 44 degrees. I should like to have the temperature as nearly even in both houses as possible and wish to ask whether, if I remove the two feet of glass from the partition, I can raise the temperature in the small house without putting in more pipe? H. S.

The removal of the glass in the partition wall would have a slight effect toward equalizing the temperature in the two houses when the wind is favorable, but with little or no motion of the air the result would be hardly noticeable and the change would be along the wall only. In the case of a strong wind from the side of the small house, instead of the temperature being equalized the tendency might be to make that house actually colder than with the partition in place, as the cold air might gain entrance into the house and force the warmer air which it contains into the other house, thus leaving the temperature of both houses lower than it would have been had there been no

WHAT THE USERS SAY

Test at 8° below zero—No. 8 Kroeschell Boiler carries 20,500 square feet glass.

Our heating system works to perfection. To our surprise the new No. 8 Kroeschell Boiler mastered the whole plant, consisting of 5 houses, 20x150. We only deemed it necessary to start our second boiler when the temperature went down to 8° below zero.

We had expected to use both boilers in cold weather, but the one boiler did such excellent work that we did not run the two boilers until the very cold weather set in. It was a very easy matter to keep the temperature up in the very coldest weather and stormiest nights. The 5 houses have 20,500 square feet of glass; the No. 8 boiler is rated at 16,500 square feet of glass.

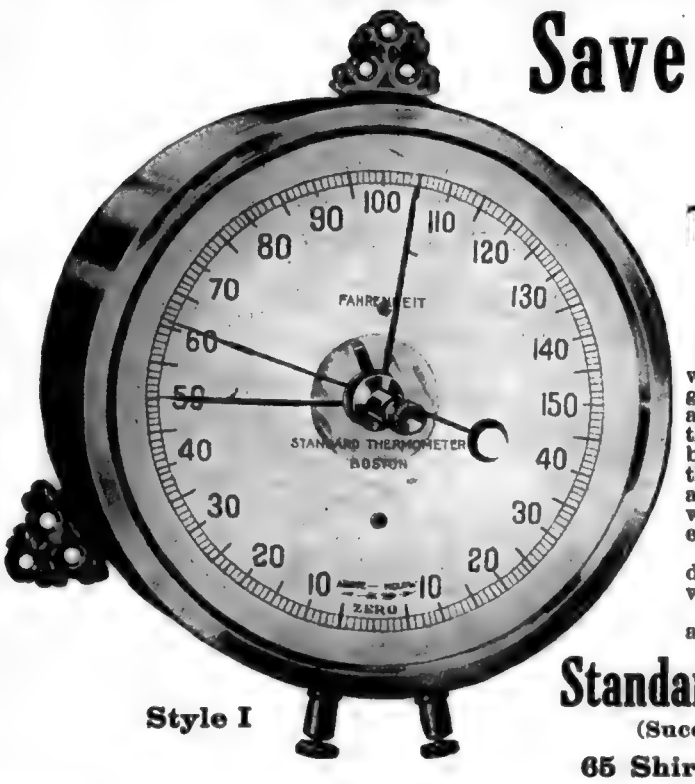
chance for its escape into the other house.

WATER DOES NOT BOIL.



I have a house 16x30 feet, four feet to the plates and nine feet to the ridge, with eighteen inches of glass in the sides. I am heating it with a hot-water tank heater. I have three 2-inch flows, running overhead to the farther end of the house. There they drop into manifold and each flow returns through six 1¼-inch pipes under each of the three benches. I have a generator.

I can hardly get the returns hot enough to burn the bare hand near the boiler. The water never boils; in fact, I cannot make it boil. I have no great trouble in keeping the house warm, but can get no bottom heat. Have I too many pipes and too much water for the boiler? If so, how should I change it? The house is air-tight. I am located in central Indiana. R. F.

From the data given, it would seem that the heater is too small to bring the water to the boiling point, but, as there is nothing which indicates the size of the heater, this can not be definitely stated. If this is the case the generator will not be of any assistance in heating the house, as it is only effective when the boiler is large enough to raise the temperature of the water above 212 degrees.

If the present system is not sufficient to maintain the desired temperature, the size of the boiler should be increased, as, provided the circulation is good and the water in the heater does not boil, there is no other change that would do any good. However, it should be stated that the house contains twenty-five per cent more radiating surface than should be required to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees, with an open tank. With a closed system and with a heater of ample size, it should be possible to take out one-half of the pipe in the coils, but, if the circulation is good, anything of the kind would only tend to increase the fuel consumption without affording more heat, unless the size of the boiler is increased.

The statement is made that no bottom heat can be secured. Of course the amount of heat given off by the pipes would be materially increased if the water could be carried at 200 degrees or more, but if to obtain this the number of the pipes has to be lessened, nothing would be gained. At best there is little bottom heat unless the sides of the benches are at least partly enclosed, so as to confine the heat. If it is merely desired to get more bottom heat, this might have the desired effect.

What E. N. Kroninger Thinks

OF OUR IRON FRAME HOUSES

THE things we know about and are enthusiastic about, are the things we take pleasure in thoroughly endorsing. That's the way I feel about the Iron Frame Houses that Lord & Burnham Company erected for me two years ago. I was slow in buying them. But now I am sure the buy was a right one.

The houses are straight at the eaves and ridge. The roof strong. I am sure they will stand. The man with good houses grows good stock—one, I am sure, influences the other.

They are our shadeless ridge type, 57 feet wide, 400 feet long and 23 feet 6 inches at the ridge. The sides are concrete, capped by a cast iron sill. The Wrought Iron Posts are bolted to the Rafters by a special gusset plate. These posts are imbedded in the concrete sides, and extend into concrete footings 2½ feet below grade.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

With the weather bouncing up and down between 10 and 70 degrees above zero, with sometimes a little sunshine and sometimes a little rain, what you would expect is what we are getting. Stock is short along most lines and business has been good, several good, big funerals helping to clean up stock nicely.

The retail stores are all taking things easy, with no excitement of any kind; in fact, the business is just in keeping with the weather. Among the growers the conversation is not so much about the size of the cut as the size of the coal bill.

Various Notes.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. has made a large purchase of glass. The price was right for about six carloads.

Oh, say! To Mr. and Mrs. Ben L. Elliott there came a baby girl, Thursday, January 12. There is Grandpa Bader, too, to receive congratulations.

Paul Berkowitz is calling on the trade.

A. W. Smith, Jr., is being persuaded to get up a paper to be read before the club on "What the Florists' Club Owes the City."

Fred Burki is doing time as a juror in the criminal court.

Uncle John Wyland would like to dispose of his plant and get into a warmer climate.

One of the wholesalers who made a trip among the carnation growers around Allison Park reports the baby crop as being much better than the carnation crop. Hoo-Hoo.

Fremont, Neb.—C. H. Greene recently suffered a small loss by fire at his greenhouse office in the Sampter-Keene building.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

AMHERST, MASS.

The short course in floriculture at the Massachusetts Agricultural College opened January 3, with a smaller attendance than had been expected, the registration being eleven. The first talk was given by Mr. Cobb, sales manager of Lord & Burnham Co., who showed a large number of drawings by means of the reflectoscope, of private and commercial ranges which his firm had built. He also spoke of the details of construction to which they attach especial importance and he gave a clear idea of the important factors to be considered in greenhouse construction. January 6 R. O. King, of the King Construction Co., spoke on their construction. Mr. King's talk emphasized the original ideas which have been brought out in the King construction, and he showed by lantern slides a large number of commercial ranges which they have constructed. Mr. King spoke especially of their iron frame truss construction and explained the theory on which their houses are built. January 7 the observation trip was to the large range of the Montgomery Rose Co., in Hadley, which was built last year by the King Construction Co.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Columbus Florists' Club held its regular meeting Tuesday evening, January 10. There was a good attendance and the following were elected to membership: Robert Munk, B. Griffith and Frank Verrick.

The question of giving a flower show here this fall was taken up and the following committee was appointed to work it out: Sherman Stephens, H. M. Munk, Charles Jones, C. P. Torrey, C. A. Roth and Otto Ackerman. All the club members think the time is ripe to put on a good show, and no doubt they will all lend their support.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

VALENTINE PREPARATIONS.

The Valentine and Its Wrappings.

The valentine must be daintily gotten up within and without. A clumsy box with dainty contents will be ranked as coming from a second-class place, and tells plainly that somebody about the institution is working against heavy odds—which, being interpreted, means good taste without proper equipment. We cannot be too careful to have the valentines attractive from the outside, for the number who see the outside of the closed package is greater than the few who are privileged to peep within.

But somebody will say, "We must have a substantial box, to bear handling and protect the contents from the weather." Yes and no. If the weather is severe, the box and extra wrapping are unquestionably necessary. But that need not prevent our taking pains to place an attractive face upon our packages. After all the layers of protectors first in a snug roll of oil paper, protecting the ends with a double or treble thickness. Tie securely with baby ribbon, and seal. This may be easily done if you have made some small stickers resembling those used so much at Christmas; only, instead of the Santa Claus head, have a Cupid or your trade-mark or firm name on them.

Having secured the inside package, cut the bark the proper size and roll the package within. Tie the bark with cord to match the flowers and seal with stamp and wax. This latter is another item of small expense and good advertising quality. Have a small stamp made with your trade-mark or firm name and seal all good packages. This sealing process not only gives a character to your packages which little else could do, but it ensures delivery to the proper person without any tampering on the part of the messengers or servants.

Style and Individuality.

This kind of package calls for something better than string for wrapping. A suitable tie may be found in fiber ribbon, baby ribbon or fancy cord. Have a tie of your own style and use it exclusively on boxes and packages of this kind, for city delivery. This, with the stamp, will individualize your packages. This kind of outfit calls for a good address tag and neat writing. Kinds of bark suitable for this style of package are found in cedar and birch. A roll of cork bark might be used for American Beauties or mums.

Occasionally a book is brought in to be decorated as a gift. First it should be wrapped in dainty paper and tied with cord or ribbon; then a slender spray of valley, violets or a few roses should be drawn through the tie, over the front cover. Gertrude Blair.

ing material are on, the same finish may be given as is described in the following substitute for a box.

A Covering of Bark.

If the weather is mild, there are other receptacles which can be devised for the best trade. A roll of bark, with a dainty lining of moss green or gray, or of silk, lace or chiffon of a tint to harmonize with the flowers, may be used as a carrier. Enclose the flowers first in a snug roll of oil paper, protecting the ends with a double or treble thickness. Tie securely with baby ribbon, and seal. This may be easily done if you have made some small stickers resembling those used so much at Christmas; only, instead of the Santa Claus head, have a Cupid or your trade-mark or firm name on them.

CUPID AND THE FLORIST.

St. Valentine's is Their Day.

One by one the retail florists are coming to appreciate that they should not leave everything to their allies—Cupid, the Stork and the Reaper.

Not many business men as a class are so blessed as are the flower dealers, with the aid of a trinity that brings to their doors men moved by the strongest emotions that sway the human family. Flowers a luxury! Forsooth, 'tis nothing of the kind. What could be more necessary?

But why not lend a helping hand to our allies? There is a power ready at our command, capable of reaching far into the recesses of the minds of the multitudes and planting there the seed of suggestion in the well tilled ground prepared for our coming by the God of Love.

What is this power?

Advertising!

Suggest the suitability of flowers for valentines and thousands will eschew the frilled paper monstrosities.

Try It This Season.

If you haven't pushed for St. Valentine's business, why not do a little something this season and note the results? It's a ten-to-one shot that if your effort is well planned you will put on more pressure next season. Those who have tried it out seem never to stop advertising. Perhaps it's because they like to see their names in print, but it's more likely because they like the way the business grows.

How It Works.

Reproduced herewith are some St. Valentine's day advertisements published last year in widely separated cities—Washington, where florists use a lot of newspaper space; Indianapolis and Kansas City. These are well displayed advertisements; almost any paper nowadays will help its advertisers get up copy and cuts. Of course, the reproductions are much reduced in size. This is the way these worked:

"We never had so good a Valentine's day business," said Z. D. Blackistone, just after the event last year. "The general public as yet knows little of the uses of flowers or of their values. It is one of our missions to tell the people how to use the things we have to sell, and to disabuse them of the idea that flowers can be afforded only by the wealthy; that's the reason for the prices in the advertisement."

"You don't have to hit a man with a club to make him see your point; the strongest advertisement frequently is the one that merely throws out a hint and leaves something for the reader to figure out for himself," said Alpha Elberfield, of Kansas City. "The psychologists have figured it out. Anyway, advertising pays—it pays at any time, but it pays best of all at such times as St. Valentine's day. It is a day of possibilities long neglected by the florists. We have so great an advantage over the candy man, or the dealer in the tissue paper contraptions, that all you have to do is to suggest a corsage bouquet in a nice hamper and the young man, or the old one, says, 'Why didn't I think of that before?' St. Valentine's day business is growing rapidly; the more it is advertised the more it will grow.''

''Advertising for St. Valentine's day in 1910 brought an excellent business,'' said Homer L. Wiegand, of A. Wiegand & Sons. ''Flowers fit exactly with the sentiment of the day and all you have to do is to give the people the idea to have them recognize the fact. In time it will come to be one of the big flower days. It is the day of the small flower, however, for nearly all purchasers last year wanted corsages, of violets or sweet peas, with valley, orchids or gardenias.''

''We have used a great deal of space in the Washington papers,'' said W. F. Gude, ''and have increased our advertising expenditure steadily almost from the day we first tried it—because it paid. It pays best for special days, of course, because at a holiday a large part of the population is looking for something to buy; only the right suggestion is needed to turn that ready-made demand into a fine run of extra business. There are few days with the sentiment of which flowers fit so well as with the sentiment of St. Valentine's day. Our business showed a big increase last year. Many people called specially for the sweet peas featured in our advertising.''

Don't Be Hasty.

Advertising is one of the things that should be gone about deliberately. It must be well planned or there will be waste. Use only the best paper and probably you can afford space enough for a strong display, and, besides, your order will be worth enough so the newspaper can afford to go to some pains to see that you get a first-class showing. Why not call in now the solicitor for your best local paper and put St. Valentine's up to him? Then back up the advertising he plans for you.

AS TRUE AS PREACHING.

Grimm & Gorly, the St. Louis florists, have recently been using as their motto the following rash-sounding but strictly truthful and conservative quatrain:

We give the earth with every plant—
With every plant the earth;
We furnish flowers for the dead,
As well as for a birth.

THE PRIMROSES.

Primula Obconica.

Each year we hear of a number of cases of poisoning from handling Primula obconica. Some retailers will not handle it for this reason, but its culture does not seem to decrease. It is one of the most generally useful and satisfactory of plants for window boxes and few plants are so persistent in flowering in the house. Now, while last season's plants are just at their best, is the proper time to sow seeds to produce blooming plants for next Christmas sales. Purchase the grandiflora type. Never mind if you do not get so many seeds; the flowers are a vast improvement over the old type and are now procurable in half a dozen distinct shades of color. Sow in pans or shallow flats in a warm, moist house, covering the seeds lightly. Lay sheets of glass over them and over this a sheet of paper, which should remain until the seedlings start to germinate. Never allow the soil to become anything like dry, and if your seed was good few should fail to grow. Of course, this primula may be sown as late as April, but that is not the time to sow for early flowering.

If you chance to have a quantity of small plants in 3-inch or 4-inch pots, which are not moving as rapidly as you wish, make them up into 6-inch or 8-inch pans, a single color to each, and they will sell much better.

Primula Sinensis.

This ever popular primula should also be sown as early as possible. If secured in nice flower for Christmas, it always moves well. Do not purchase cheap seed or mixtures. They always give a large percentage of plants carrying small flowers, often of undesirable colors. At Christmas the brilliant Crimson King always moves quickly. A few other good sorts are: Covent Garden Red, Rosy Morn, Reading Pink and alba magnifica. The white stellata varieties are also decorative. They are taller and more wiry than the old type and free flowering. Sow the seeds in a mixture of leaf-mold and sand, in shallow pans in a warm house. Move to cooler quarters when the seedlings have made their second leaf. A shelf well up to the light, but protected from bright sunshine, will keep them stocky.

Primula Kewensis.

When well flowered, Primula Kewensis is easily the most beautiful of all the tender primulas. It is naturally a vigorous grower, and, even if sown as late as the end of March, strong plants may be had before winter. P. Kewensis appeared originally as a chance seedling in a batch of P. floribunda, but is believed to be a hybrid between that variety and P. verticillata, combining, as it does, the free flowering habit of P. floribunda with the larger and deeper yellow flowers of P. verticillata. It is a persistent bloomer and will flower as long as P. obconica. It supplies just the color most needed in primulas for winter decoration. It has in addition a delightful odor, similar to that of the English cowslip, P. veris. This primula germinates sooner and grows faster than any of the other indoor varieties. Plants in 8-inch pots are easily grown if seed is sown early, but as a rule 6-inch will be found a more salable size. The treatment differs little from that advised for P. obconica, only P. Kewensis takes kindly to a rather stronger compost and requires more water and feeding when the pots are filled with roots. When in flower, if the fading flowers are picked off twice or thrice a week the appearance of the plants will be improved. For a table centerpiece a few plants turned out of pots will make the most charming and spring-like arrangements possible.

Hardy Primulas.

The common English primrose, P. vulgaris, meets with a considerable sale, both in the form of plants and cut flowers, in the large markets each season. In order to get a good batch of plants, which will flower a year hence, sow the seed now with the indoor primulas. Transplant into flats when of sufficient size to handle, and plant outdoors in well manured ground early in May. In sections where long droughts occur, a better plan would be to plant out in a coldframe where they can be watered.

Neat and Tasteful Display.

In addition to the common English primrose, the giant white and yellow polyanthus is fine for bunching. There is also a white primrose polyanthus, producing milk-white flowers. All of these hardy primroses succeed well in a violet house temperature, or can be held in coldframes for spring flowering if preferred. In small bunches these primroses are popular, and all up-to-date retailers are glad to secure them.

TUBEROUS BEGONIAS.

Please tell us how to grow tuberous rooted begonias. J. W. R. & C.

Seed sown now in shallow pans in a temperature of 65 degrees at night will produce good flowering plants by August. The seed is fine and should not be covered at all. Water the surface of the pans, then scatter the seeds over it evenly. Cover with glass and paper until the seeds start. Prick out into flats when big enough to handle. Then place successively in 2½-inch, 4-inch and 6-inch pots. The latter they will flower in. Begonias like a cool, airy house and must be protected from bright sunshine.

If you prefer to purchase tubers, start a quantity of these in shallow flats. When they are well sprouted, place in 5-inch pots and later move into 7-inch. A suitable compost for begonias consists of one-half fibrous loam, one-fourth each rotted cow manure and flaky leaf-mold and a dash of sharp sand and fine charcoal. They like occasional waterings with liquid manure when well rooted in their blooming pots. C. W.

FIGURING THE PROFIT.

While I have had no experience in making inventories for corporations January 1, I have had the experience that most firms seem to lack when they get puzzled by this proposition. I have kept track of every item of expense and charged it where it belonged. I pay myself a fixed salary, the same as anyone else. This was started when I commenced to build. Growing was started while the building was being finished, and during this time a separate account was kept of the labor on each, so I know just what the place cost and what the running expenses are.

When I bought stock for the place, I charged that up to plant investment, along with the greenhouses, heating plant, etc. I consider stock as a permanent part of the plant, just the same as the heating plant. It is my business to keep up this stock, so that at the end of each year it is as valuable as at the first. Then I consider that the stock inventories at the same figure any day in the year, just the same as the heating plant does. From year to year, however, the heating plant will depreciate, while stock, if properly kept up, will not.

When surplus stock is produced and sold, that is a product, the same as cut flowers, and does not affect the stock investment. If stock must be bought during the year to make up a deficiency of production, that should be charged to running expenses. If new varieties or more valuable items of stock are bought, then the difference between what the new stock is worth, and what the old it supplanted was worth, must be charged up to stock. Then the place is that much more valuable and should produce more money in proportion to the additional investment. Of course, this has been easy, because I started to keep track of everything from the first, which I realize is not done by most firms.

A year ago I assisted another firm in starting a new set of books. They were then in the same shape that I judge J. C. F. C. is in now, as told in The Review of January 19, page 18. They knew how much they had sold in a year, but they did not know how much the place was worth or what the running expenses were. We made an inventory of the place, putting the land at its market value and the greenhouses at what it would have cost to build them, minus a certain amount for depreciation, varying with the style of house and the length of time it had been built. To figure depreciation, we guessed the probable life of the house, and the value of wreckage above the cost of wrecking, at the time the greenhouse must be torn down. Thus, if a house is good for fifteen years and the glass, pipe, etc., at wrecking time are worth twenty-five per cent of the original cost of the house, there is a depreciation of seventy-five per cent to be distributed over fifteen years, or five per cent per year. The stock for producing cut flowers, greens, etc., was put down at its value at planting time, for the reason already stated. Blooming plants, and pot plants for sale as such, were put down at their actual wholesale value.

Then provision was made for keeping track of the various running expenses—labor, fuel, water, supplies, etc. At the end of the year the running expenses were subtracted from the gross receipts, which showed the amount of profit. This, in proportion to the value of the place, showed the percentage of profit, which is what is wanted in this business, as well as in any other. The amount produced per square foot means nothing except in proportion to the running expenses per square foot. If J. C. F. C.'s running expenses are not abnormal, I would judge he is making a good percentage of profit, but I believe that he and hundreds of other florists would do better if they would find out what their places are worth and keep track of expenses, so they can actually know what they are doing.

TIME TO SOW PRIMROSE SEED.

Will primrose seed planted by the last of January bloom by Memorial day? J. H. N.

Such primulas as Sinensis, obconica and Kewensis, if sown now, will not bloom sufficiently to be salable until next December. The earliest date at which you can get them in good condition will be Christmas, but they are naturally at their best early in February. There are some other seeds you could sow for flowering at Memorial day, including sweet peas, ten weeks' stocks, antirrhinums, candytuft, calendulas and annual larkspurs. C. W.

CARNATIONS

MORE ABOUT CHLORIDE OF LIME.

Wishing to get all the information possible on the subject in hand, I have interviewed two chemists whose opinions I would be inclined to accept as authoritative. One is the chemist of a large fertilizer concern. The other is the chemist in charge of the laboratory of our local water company. Both agreed on the following points: That if chloride of lime were put into the water in sufficient quantity to injure plants, it would be unfit for domestic use; that it would be a waste of the material to put into the water more than a certain quantity, in proportion to the quantity of water treated, and that the quantity necessary to free the water of typhoid germs would not be sufficient to cause injury to any living thing.

I also learned that, since September, 1909, the Indianapolis Water Co. has been using chloride of lime to clarify and purify its water. We have been using this water exclusively on our plants, and if E. M. will visit our place I believe he will agree with me that it has not injured our carnation plants. I also learned that in about 150 of our leading cities this material is employed for the same purpose. So I feel sure that, like ourselves, many a successful carnation grower has unknowingly been watering his plants with water treated with chloride of lime.

Now, having satisfied myself, at least, that the water may not be to blame, I naturally cast about for another source of E. M.'s failure, if it is to be considered as such. He says the plants have not seemed to thrive during the last four or five months. Four months would take us back to October 1. The growth is not as vigorous and rapid as it should be. Has it occurred to him that that was the beginning of the period when development is naturally at the lowest point, and also that carnations throughout the land seemed slow in rounding into form this year? In all the large flower centers there was an unusual shortage of carnations all the fall.

There may be plenty of other reasons for E. M.'s losses in the propagating beds, besides bad water. His failure with roses, too, might have its source in poor soil, improper feeding or watering, etc. Possibly that hog manure which he mentions is the cause of his failure with the roses, and also with the carnations, if they have really been injured. Hog manure is a most concentrated manure and, like sheep manure, should be applied sparingly.

A. F. J. Baur.

BOTH HAVE STIGMONOSE.

Enclosed you will find a diseased carnation leaf. Can you tell what the disease is? It seems to affect all varieties. My house is ventilated from the ridge. It is 22x75, is located in central Texas, and is heated by stoves. The plants seem to be vigorous, growing well and producing nice, large blooms, with stiff stems. I am afraid it may be stigmonose. They have been free of all insects, so far as I can tell, but I notice that the sweet peas and the German ivy have these light spots on the foliage. C. L. S.

I enclose some foliage of carnations that are diseased. They are in a light house and are planted in rather heavy clay loam, with the addition of rotted cow manure. They get plenty of air. The temperature runs sometimes a little high, but never over 55 degrees. Some of the plants are healthy and on others the foliage is like what I enclose. Can this be caused by too much water? D. R.

The specimens forwarded by both these correspondents are affected with stigmonose, which subject was discussed in The Review of January 19, page 10. As stated in that article, the bacteria which cause the disease are introduced through the punctures of insects. It does not follow, however, that because your houses have been free from insect pests this season, your plants must necessarily be free from this disease. If the disease was in your stock last year, and you did not select your cuttings carefully, you would be sure to have it reappear among your plants this year. The young plants apparently grow out of it in the spring and remain healthy looking as long as the weather is bright and warm, but when the long wintry days come, with a lack of sunshine, the disease shows up again. If the growth has been rank and soft, the disease will be worse than if the growth had been moderate and well matured. Careful selection of cuttings and moderate growing conditions are the only remedies. Keeping down insect pests is the preventive.

MILE A MINUTE VINE.

I would like to know the botanical name of a vine that is used around Wilkinsburg, Pa., for porches. It has a leaf like the oak, about one and one-fourth inches wide. They call it "Mile a Minute," but I never see it advertised by that name. G. H. P.

I do not know the plant known as "Mile a Minute." Perhaps, however, some Pennsylvania subscriber can supply the needed information. One or two other quick growing climbers you may like to try are: Balloon vine, Cardiospermum Halicacabum; cypress vine, Ipomœa Quamoclit; hop, Humulus Lupulus; moonflower, Ipomœa grandiflora alba, and the various forms of morning glory, Ipomœa purpurea.

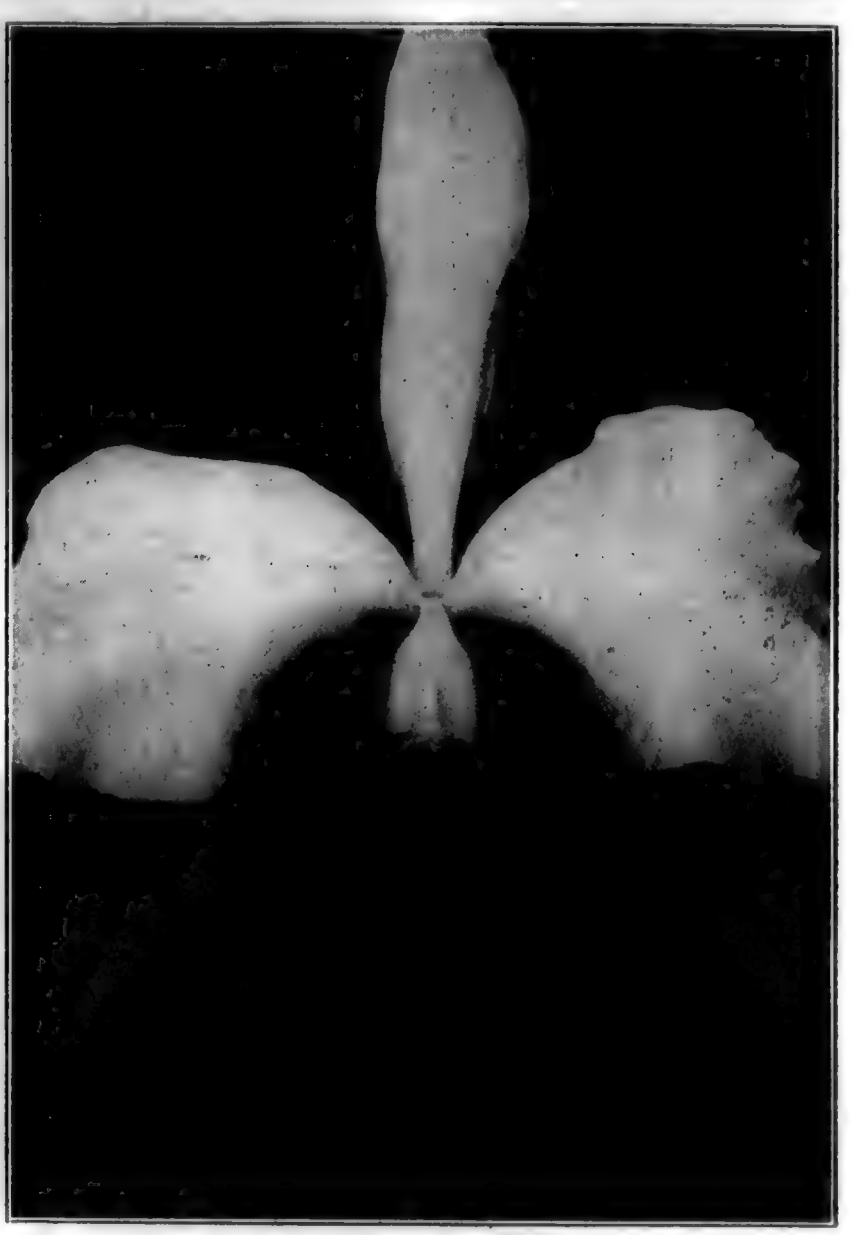
ORCHIDS

THE COMMERCIAL CATTLEYA.

Trianæ Is the Favorite.

The immense quantities of Cattleya Trianæ that were imported last year from Colombia prove the popularity of this, the most useful of all cattleyas. That will be a sad day for the lovers of these flowers when the Andes do not furnish any more of what has appeared to be the inexhaustible Trianæ. There is no fear of an immediate shortage of this orchid; the immense range of mountains that produces it has not been all worked, although the best type of it is nearly extinct and the poor type will have to be collected soon to supply the demand.



Perhaps there is not in the florists' business any other plant that yields such abundant returns for the investment, and perhaps there is not another plant that is as much abused as C. Trianæ. I have heard of a firm that has grown a beautiful house of this cattleya for one or two years and then, when the neglected plants became infested with the cattleya fly, has thrown them out and burned them. They got their money from the first crop of flowers and then did not care what became of the plants; it is so easy to replace them at a small expense that this wanton destruction of such gems seems to pay. I do not agree with this policy, but that is another story; I may take it up later.

"Grand Varieties."

Trianæ furnishes the grandest and most valuable varieties of the species, with the exception, perhaps, of Cattleya Mendellii. Whenever one of these gems flowers among the usual commercial stock shipped to this country, some of the English firms or some of the specialists buy them in order to sell them in England, where a market for such beauties is found. With one or two exceptions, there are no lovers of orchids in the United States who are willing to pay anything like what the English gentleman pays for the "grand varieties." There are some persons who like these grand varieties, and who are buying them at the rate of $60 or $70 per case! Some of the collectors offer to these orchid lovers to go into the woods and pick the grand varieties especially for them, at so much a case. The order is secured, and a few tags, generally written in French, "grand varieté," etc., tied to "any old plant," make the case of gems that the orchid lover expects to get for a few dollars. Perhaps these buyers think the collector does not know the price of the grand varieties, and that if they find a $500 plant they will put it in the $50 case! When the buyer discovers that the collector has been making a fool of him, he drops that one and another steps in with the same story, secures the order, and works the grand variety scheme for two or three years.

The Cut Flower Orchid.

Cattleya Trianæ is not imported for other purposes than the cut flower business. Well grown, and with the right plants, it is expected to get from it half a crop of flowers the first winter after it has been planted. These flowers that come before the bulk of the crop is cut bring the best prices, and in this way the investment pays amply for the coal and labor. The second crop is undoubtedly the best the plants will ever produce, and spikes of five and six flowers are not uncommon, while the bulk of them ought to be of three and four blooms. Should the prices of the flowers happen to be $1 per bloom, as it was in the latter part of 1910, every plant pays its happy owner three or four times what he paid for it. This high price demoralizes the business and does great harm to the trade, making people believe that the orchid is the flower of the millionaires.

Prices of orchids vary as with every other flower, but it is a peculiar fact that orchids hold better than any other flowers. The long period of excellent prices this season still is fresh in everyone's mind. Although there have been times when orchids sold at 15 cents, these prices seem to be gone for good, unless another panic appears.

Where the Industry Centers.

The growing of orchids is concentrated around New York. Boston and Philadelphia have a supply about equal to the demand, but the other big cities do not grow enough for their local supply. Chicago has started in earnest, but the more it grows, the higher the prices and the scarcer the blooms. The east supplies Chicago, but they do not get the best blooms or none at all when they are scarce in New York. San Francisco has orchids in quantity and that market is generally well supplied; no doubt it comes after New York as the next good market in the country. The California growers of orchids are far ahead of the eastern growers, if we are to judge from the reports we hear. Phalænopsis and other valuable orchids are grown there in quantities, and they grow them magnificently. The other big cities are not in it. St. Louis has no orchids to speak of, and we doubt if in a city like Salt Lake City an orchid has ever been seen.

We may expect this year an immense number of Trianæ flowers, as more plants were imported last year than in the four or five previous years put together. If the demand will absorb all the flowers is to be seen, but whatever happens, the increased production will increase the demand. The only trouble is the concentration of the growers around New York. If the plants were well distributed, there would never be a glut and prices would become normal.

Florists, as a whole, are conservative. It takes people like Joseph Heacock, Young, Peirce, Poehlmann, Carbone and others of their style to break away from the routine and start ahead of the others. Eventually many will follow. We will never see the day when orchids will be as plentiful as mums are in autumn. By the time the popularity of the cattleyas requires immense quantities to be grown, they will be extinct in their native habitats, and the florists will be struggling to raise from seed enough for the supply. Those who have had some experience in this work know how difficult it will be to furnish a few flowers from home grown plants.

In my next article I will take up the question: "Does Orchid Growing Pay?" I will show what can be done with orchids, and the results they bring.

CARNATIONS

MORE ABOUT CHLORIDE OF LIME.

Wishing to get all the information possible on the subject in hand, I have interviewed two chemists whose opinions I would be inclined to accept as authoritative. One is the chemist of a large fertilizer concern. The other is the chemist in charge of the laboratory of our local water company. Both agreed on the following points: That if chloride of lime were put into the water in sufficient quantity to injure plants, it would be unfit for domestic use; that it would be a waste of the material to put into the water more than a certain quantity, in proportion to the quantity of water treated, and that the quantity necessary to free the water of typhoid germs would not be sufficient to cause injury to any living thing.

I also learned that, since September, 1909, the Indianapolis Water Co. has been using chloride of lime to clarify and purify its water. We have been using this water exclusively on our plants, and if E. M. will visit our place I believe he will agree with me that it has not injured our carnation plants. I also learned that in about 150 of our leading cities this material is employed for the same purpose. So I feel sure that, like ourselves, many a successful carnation grower has unknowingly been watering his plants with water treated with chloride of lime.

Now, having satisfied myself, at least, that the water may not be to blame, I naturally cast about for another source of E. M.'s failure, if it is to be considered as such. He says the plants have not seemed to thrive during the last four or five months. Four months would take us back to October 1. The growth is not as vigorous and rapid as it should be. Has it occurred to him that that was the beginning of the period when development is naturally at the lowest point, and also that carnations throughout the land seemed slow in rounding into form this year? In all the large flower centers there was an unusual shortage of carnations all the fall.

There may be plenty of other reasons for E. M.'s losses in the propagating beds, besides bad water. His failure with roses, too, might have its source in poor soil, improper feeding or watering, etc. Possibly that hog manure which he mentions is the cause of his failure with the roses, and also with the carnations, if they have really been injured. Hog manure is a most concentrated manure and, like sheep manure, should be applied sparingly.

BOTH HAVE STIGMONOSE.

Enclosed you will find a diseased carnation leaf. Can you tell what the disease is? It seems to affect all varieties. My house is ventilated from the ridge. It is 22x75, is located in central Texas, and is heated by stoves. The plants seem to be vigorous, growing well and producing nice, large blooms, with stiff stems. I am afraid it may be stigmonose. They have been free of all insects, so far as I can tell, but I notice that the sweet peas and the German ivy have these light spots on the foliage. C. L. S.

I enclose some foliage of carnations that are diseased. They are in a light house and are planted in rather heavy clay loam, with the addition of rotted cow manure. They get plenty of air. The temperature runs sometimes a little high, but never over 55 degrees. Some of the plants are healthy and on others the foliage is like what I enclose. Can this be caused by too much water? D. R.

The specimens forwarded by both these correspondents are affected with stigmonose, which subject was discussed in The Review of January 19, page 10. As stated in that article, the bacteria which cause the disease are introduced through the punctures of insects. It does not follow, however, that because your houses have been free from insect pests this season, your plants must necessarily be free from this disease. If the disease was in your stock last year, and you did not select your cuttings carefully, you would be sure to have it reappear among your plants this year. The young plants apparently grow out of it in the spring and remain healthy looking as long as the weather is bright and warm, but when the long wintry days come, with a lack of sunshine, the disease shows up again. If the growth has been rank and soft, the disease will be worse than if the growth had been moderate and well matured. Careful selection of cuttings and moderate growing conditions are the only remedies. Keeping down insect pests is the preventive.

MILE A MINUTE VINE.

I would like to know the botanical name of a vine that is used around Wilkinsburg, Pa., for porches. It has a leaf like the oak, about one and one fourth inches wide. They call it "Mile a Minute," but I never see it advertised by that name. G. H. P

I do not know the plant known as "Mile a Minute." Perhaps, however, some Pennsylvania subscriber can supply the needed information. One or two other quick growing climbers you may like to try are: Balloon vine, Cardiospermum Halicacabum; cypress vine, Ipomœa Quamoclit; hop, Humulus Lupulus; moonflower, Ipomœa grandiflora alba, and the various forms of morning glory, Ipomœa purpurea.

ORCHIDS

THE COMMERCIAL CATTLEYA.

Trianæ Is the Favorite.

The immense quantities of Cattleya Trianæ that were imported last year from Colombia prove the popularity of this, the most useful of all cattleyas. That will be a sad day for the lovers of these flowers when the Andes do not furnish any more of what has appeared to be the inexhaustible Trianæ. There is no fear of an immediate shortage of this orchid; the immense range of mountains that produces it has not been all worked, although the best type of it is nearly extinct and the poor type will have to be collected soon to supply the demand.

Perhaps there is not in the florists' business any other plant that yields such abundant returns for the investment, and perhaps there is not another plant that is as much abused as C. Trianæ. I have heard of a firm that has grown a beautiful house of this cattleya for one or two years and then, when the neglected plants became infested with the cattleya fly, has thrown them out and burned them. They got their money from the first crop of flowers and then did not care what became of the plants; it is so easy to replace them at a small expense that this wanton destruction of such gems seems to pay. I do not agree with this policy, but that is another story; I may take it up later.

"Grand Varieties."

Trianæ furnishes the grandest and most valuable varieties of the species with the exception, perhaps, of Cattleya Mendellii. Whenever one of these gems flowers among the usual commercial stock shipped to this country, some of the English firms or some of the specialists buy them in order to sell them in England, where a market for such beauties is found. With one or two exceptions, there are no lovers of orchids in the United States who are willing to pay anything like what the English gentleman pays for the "grand varieties." There are some persons who like these grand varieties, and who are buying them at the rate of $60 or $70 per case! Some of the collectors offer to these orchid lovers to go into the woods and pick the grand varieties especially for them, at so much a case. The order is secured, and a few tags, generally written in French, "grand varieté," etc., tied to "any old plant," make the case of gems that the orchid lover expects to get for a few dollars. Perhaps these buyers think the collector does not know the price of the grand varieties, and that if they find a $500 plant they will put it in the $50 case! When the buyer discovers that the collector has been making a fool of him, he drops that one and another steps in with the same story, secures the order, and works the grand variety scheme for two or three years.

The Cut Flower Orchid.

Cattleya Trianæ is not imported for other purposes than the cut flower business. Well grown, and with the right plants, it is expected to get from it half a crop of flowers the first winter after it has been planted. These flowers that come before the bulk of the crop is cut bring the best prices, and in this way the investment pays amply for the coal and labor. The second crop is undoubtedly the best the plants will ever produce, and spikes of five and six flowers are not uncommon, while the bulk of them ought to be of three and four blooms. Should the prices of the flowers happen to be $1 per bloom, as it was in the latter part of 1910, every plant pays its happy owner three or four times what he paid for it. This high price demoralizes the business and does great harm to the trade, making people believe that the orchid is the flower of the millionaires.

Prices of orchids vary as with every other flower, but it is a peculiar fact that orchids hold better than any other flowers. The long period of excellent prices this season still is fresh in every one's mind. Although there have been times when orchids sold at 15 cents, these prices seem to be gone for good, unless another panic appears.

Where the Industry Centers.

The growing of orchids is concentrated around New York. Boston and Philadelphia have a supply about equal to the demand, but the other big cities do not grow enough for their local supply. A CHECK IN GROWTH.

I am sending you under separate cover a branch from one of my Bridesmaid rose bushes and also a small quantity of soil. The plants were placed on the benches about September 1. About October 1 I burned some sulphur in the house and got the fumes a little too strong. Some of the plants lost most of their foliage, while others were not affected. All of them grew well for about two weeks afterward, but since that time they do not seem to grow or bud. Some plants have had only one or two buds on them and some not any. The temperature in the house is from 58 to 62 degrees at night and about 70 to 75 degrees in the daytime. The house is new. This is my first year with them. If you can tell me the cause of the trouble and a remedy, I shall greatly appreciate the favor.

W. S.

The sample sent appears to have suffered from some shock, possibly caused by the sulphur fumes. The plants will require great care to bring them back to good condition. Reduce the temperature 5 degrees for a time, and also reduce the quantity of water until the leaves regain their dark green color.

The soil is rather light and poor. It will be well, therefore, when your plants regain their vigor, to feed them by giving half an inch of mulch, composed of two parts cow manure and one part loam. This should be renewed once a month. Ribes.

RAMBLER ROSES.

The so-called baby rambler roses, including red, pink and white varieties, make neat pot plants, and as they can be grown profitably at a moderate price it is not surprising that they are more used each year. For some years the Crimson Rambler had a tremendous Easter sale, and while it still is sold in considerable numbers, the pink and white varieties are increasingly popular; so it is with the dwarf ramblers. The call for the original variety will not be so good as for the other shades. At Easter white flowers sell the best, and next to them pinks. If the small ramblers were fall potted and have been stored in a cool pit, they will by this time have made quite a few roots and will force and bloom much better than if potting were delayed until now. Cut away merely the weak and dead wood, and as a starter a temperature at night of 45 degrees will suffice. They are of much better quality when not hard forced.

There should be no delay in starting any of the climbing ramblers if they are wanted in flower at Easter. Every year we see batches of fine plants being subjected to suffocating heat in an effort to force a few flowers open. Such plants fall an easy prey to mildew and will give nothing but discouragement to those who purchase them. Spray all roses until they break nicely. Then hold off the water, or you may easily start mildew. If you maintain a genial atmosphere and leave no dry places on the floors or benches, there will not be much likelihood of red spider getting a foothold.

A START IN ROSES.

We wish to grow roses to supply our retail trade and should be pleased to have you advise us about trying to grow them in a house 20x100, four feet to the eaves, and running north and south. If, in your judgment, this can be profitably done, what varieties would you recommend? Our location is southern Wisconsin. L. B. T. W.

In such a house as you describe, you might, if you can keep a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather, grow Killarneys, White Killarneys, Brides, Maids, Ivorys or Marylands. I would advise you to grow not over three varieties. By care in culture these can be grown profitably, either for retail or wholesale. Ribes.

COST OF MAKING A LAWN.

Will you kindly state what you consider the average cost per acre of making a lawn, after the ground is plowed and dragged? It would include seed, seeding, raking and rolling. The ground in question is sandy and easy to work. N. N.

To properly seed a new lawn requires four bushels of seed per acre, which is worth $5 per bushel at retail. If you get it at wholesale rates, the total cost may be reduced to $16. The seed sowing, raking and rolling, if well done, should be worth an additional $25, and the sum of $50 per acre, including seed, would not be at all unreasonable. This cost might be reduced by using less seed per acre, or cheaper and coarser grasses, but if you use such seed as Kentucky blue grass, red top, Rhode Island bent, fine-leaved fescue and hard fescue, with an addition of one-half pound of white clover per bushel, you will have a mixture suitable for your soil, one which will resist drought better than the average grasses and be well worth $5 per bushel. Fifty dollars per acre will do the work well and leave you a fair profit. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Sweet-Scented Verbenas.

There is always a good call for young plants of the sweet-scented verbena. It is of easy propagation at this season. The best way to secure suitable cuttings is to place in heat one or two old plants, which have been kept cool and on the dry side. Head them in a little. They will soon produce a good crop of cuttings if kept warm and sprayed over occasionally. Rub these off with a heel and few will fail to root. They need a warm propagating bench, and when potted off they should still have a good heat to keep them growing.

Gardenias.

Gardenia plants, which flowered freely early in the winter, are now making some excellent propagating wood, and if you have a brisk bottom heat under part of your cutting bench and keep them simply saturated with water, few will fail to root. It makes little difference whether the cuttings are taken off with a heel or not. The main essentials are plenty of bottom heat, sand of good porosity and a copious water supply. Most of the failures to root gardenias, and, for that matter, many other cuttings, are due to an insufficient water supply. From the cuttings taken now you will have strong plants in 4-inch pots to bench next June.

The old plants will flower more freely as the days lengthen. Maintain an even night temperature of 65 to 70 degrees for them. Mealy bug can be kept in control if the spray nozzle is properly used once a week. Guard against too much water at the root, as that would cause a heavy loss of buds.

Spiræas.

The early part of February is a suitable time to start such spiræas as Gladstone, grandiflora compacta and astilboides floribunda. The beautiful pink variety, Queen Alexandra, should also be placed in heat at once if wanted for Easter. Its flowers should be opened in a moderately cool and shaded house, to make them retain their delightful pink cclor. A night temperature of 60 degrees will be found about right. Spread the plants out as they grow, and if they are found to be coming on a little too fast it is easy to give them a cooler house. Never neglect the water supply and use great care in fumigating, as the foliage is easily damaged. If the old S. Japonica is started by the middle of February, it will be in time for Easter. The other varieties are, however, so much superior that they have largely usurped its place. For cutting for Memorial day trade the old variety is, however, still useful.

Dutch Bulbous Stock.

After the end of January the tulips will not require drawing up in a dark case in order to give them a sufficient length of stem. A warm house will produce stems of a good length. Lay sheets of newspaper over the flowers while the sun strikes them directly. All the trumpet narcissi open better and have a great deal more substance where the night temperature of the house runs from 50 to 55 degrees than when it is higher. Hyacinths should not be placed in the light until they have growths two to three inches long, or they will be inclined to be squatty. Such plants as ixias, sparaxis and tritonias will not tolerate anything like forcing; 45 degrees at night is sufficient. Spanish iris and small flowered gladioli of the nanus type are better if the minimum of 50 degrees is not exceeded. Bulbs intended for Easter should be plunged outdoors, in order to hold them back as late as possible. The late date will make it difficult to retard some varieties without a cold cellar or cold storage facilities at command.

Double Feverfew.

Double feverfew makes a useful addition for Memorial day, a time when flowers of all kinds are in demand. Its perfume is not particularly pleasing, but for a cheap, easily grown flower it has its uses. If the plants are not yet benched, no time should be spared in getting them in. A compost such as you would plant mums or violets in will be found all right. A cool house, 45 to 48 degrees at night, is what the feverfews like.

Ten Weeks' Stocks.

Ten weeks' stocks are an invaluable Memorial day crop. Sow a good batch of seed at once in flats of light and sandy soil. The bright colors are always in special demand, but any shade will sell. The giant strain of ten weeks' is as good as any. Purchase the best imported seed, as it will insure a vastly larger proportion of doubles. By the time the violets are out the stocks should be ready to take their places. They in turn can give place to a crop of chrysanthemums, which, if cleared early in November, will allow single violets to be planted, thus insuring three crops a year.

FUMIGATING WITH SULPHUR.

How do you burn sulphur for fumigating? There is no stock in the house and I wish to kill every living thing. How much would you use for a house 20x50 and eleven feet to the peak? I have never used any; hence this inquiry.

E. C. L.

When fumigating an empty house with sulphur there need be little care exercised in the quantity of material used, only be sure you have enough. In a house of this size, if the roof and walls are tight, four pounds ought to be plenty.

A more effective cleaning can be had by using cyanide of potassium. This, if used with moderate care, is the most effective of fumigants. Ribes.

George R. Gause.

G. R. GAUSE.

George R. Gause, of Richmond, Ind., who has just been elected president of the State Florists' Association of Indiana, was born September 29, 1867, at Waynesville, O., where his father operated a small fruit farm. After receiving a part of his education at a country school in that state, he removed to Indiana and located near Richmond.

Not being inclined to engage in fruit growing or farming as a life work, and being passionately fond of flowers, he decided to learn the florists' business. Accordingly, he secured a position with the McGregor Bros. Co., wholesale florists of Springfield, O., and later with the E. G. Hill Co., of Richmond, Ind.

In the year 1890, with a partner, he launched into the retail plant mailing business. Afterward, when this partnership was dissolved, he removed the greenhouses to their present location, in West Richmond, near Earlham College and opposite Earlham cemetery. Abandoning the mailing department of the business, he now began the establishment of a local retail trade in plants and cut flowers, growing such stock as the market demanded. He has a prosperous business, making a specialty of funeral work. His wife is an able assistant, devoting much time to the work, and to her much of the credit is due for the success of the enterprise.

Mr. Gause is a member of the S. A. F., the American Carnation Society and the Indiana State Florists' Association. Besides giving sedulous attention to business, he takes much interest in fraternal work and is a member of the following bodies: Webb Lodge, A. F. and A. M., having been W. M. of the same for the last two years; King Solomon Chapter, R. A. M.; Wayne Council, R. and S. M.; Richmond Commandery, K. T.; Thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason; also a member of the Knights of Pythias and Odd Fellows.

MUSA ENSETE FROM SEED.

Will you kindly tell me the proper way to start Musa Ensete from seed? Does the hard shell need any filing after being soaked? E. W. H.

If the seeds of Musa Ensete are soaked in lukewarm water for about forty-eight hours, there is no need of filing the hard outer shell. The seeds should be covered to a depth of half an inch, either with light, sandy soil or with a mixture of chopped moss and sand, and kept moist and warm. The seed pans or boxes should be placed in a warm greenhouse, lightly shaded, and, if possible, given a bottom heat of 75 degrees.

The young seedlings are rather tender, and require warmth to keep them in a good growing condition.

DOINGS OF THE SOCIETIES

ILLINOIS FLORISTS TO MEET.

The Illinois State Horticultural Society, with the coöperation of the Illinois State Florists' Association, the Cook County Truck Growers' Association, the Illinois Outdoor Improvement Association, the Lake Forest Horticultural Society, and the Horticultural Department of the University of Illinois, will hold a ten-day horticultural institute at the University of Illinois, Champaign, Ill., beginning Tuesday, January 31, and ending Friday, February 10, 1911. The last two days will be devoted to the annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association.

The program for the meeting of the State Florists' Association is as follows:

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 8.

10:00 a. m. Preliminary Session. Appointment of Judges and Committees.
2:00 p. m. President's Address. Report of Secretary. Report of Treasurer. Report of Advisory Committee for the Experiment Station. Question Box. Business Session.
Evening. Banquet.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 9.

9:00 a. m. "Live Issues for the Florist," J. C. Vaughan, Chicago. "Some New Things," E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind. "Work at the Experimental Greenhouses," H. B. Dorner, Urbana. Reports of Committees. Miscellaneous Business. Election of Officers. Adjournment.

Exhibits are to be staged by noon, February 8, and to remain until 12 o'clock, February 10. Write J. F. Ammann, secretary, Edwardsville, for particulars.

During the ten days' institute there will be many features of special interest to those in the trade. Some of them are as follows:

"Insects of the Greenhouse and Their Extermination," John J. Davis, Assistant to State Entomologist, 10:30 a. m., February 1.
"The Nursery Business as Related to a Demand Created by Professional Landscape Gardeners," A. M. Augustine, Normal, 2:00 p. m., February 2.
"Packing and Shipping Plants and Flowers," J F. Ammann, Secretary, Edwardsville, 3:30 p. m., February 2.
"How to Plan Home Grounds," illustrated lecture by W. N. Rudd, Blue Island, 7:30 p. m., February 2.
"Methods of Plant Propagation," with demonstrations, H. B. Dorner, University of Illinois, 1:30 p. m., February 3.
"Fertilizers for Use of the Florist," H. B. Dorner, 10:30 a. m., February 4.
"Illinois Greenhouses and Their Products," Philip J. Foley, Chicago, 7:30 p. m., February 4.
"Floral Decoration," with practical demonstration, Miss Emily Dorner, Lafayette, Ind., 3:00 p. m., February 6.
"Greenhouse Management," C. L. Washburn, Hinsdale, 9:00 a. m., February 7.
"The Home Garden," Edward O. Orpet, Lake Forest, 10:30 a. m., February 7.
"Native Trees, Shrubs and Flowers, Their Usefulness for the Embellishment of Home and Public Grounds," E. Bollinger, Lake Forest, 7:30 p. m., February 7.

NEW ENGLAND DAHLIA SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the New England Dahlia Society was held in Library hall, of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, Boston, January 11, at 2 p. m., for the purpose of electing officers for the year, and to listen to the annual report of the secretary and treasurer. The meeting was called to order by President Henry W. Kendall, of Newton, Mass.

After listening to the reports of Secretary Loring M. Bates and Treasurer Willard D. Moon, the election of officers for the year 1911 was held, with the following result: President, J. K. Alexander, East Bridgewater, Mass.; vice-president, N. Allen Lindsey, Marblehead, Mass.; secretary, Prof. G. W. Bullard, Medford, Mass.; treasurer, Loring M. Bates, West Bridgewater, Mass. Executive committee, H. L. Winters, Medford, Mass.; W. C. Brady, Wollaston, Mass.; A. L. Brown, Marblehead, Mass.; Edward F. Dwyer, Lynn, Mass.; Geo. L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I.

The meeting was one of the largest in the history of the society and many interesting subjects were discussed.

The amendments which had been presented at the previous annual meeting were acted upon and voted to be placed on file, with the exception of Article IX, which was adopted, and which reads as follows: "The society shall publish once a month a paper called the Dahlia News, for the dissemination of information on the dahlia, which paper shall be for sale by the society at $1 per annum."

The following amendment, to be added to the by-laws, was presented, to be voted on at the next meeting: "If, after due hearing, a majority of the executive committee shall be of the opinion that any member has acted in a manner detrimental to the interests of the society, such committee may recommend to the society expulsion of such member. The society may legally expel such member at any meeting legally held." J. K. A.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Eber Holmes, of Montrose, Mass., has been selected as manager of the American Rose Society's exhibition in connection with the National Flower Show at Boston in March. The schedule has been issued and may be had on application to Benj. Hammond, secretary, Fishkill, N. Y. Because of the week's duration of the show, Division B, calling for display of roses to occupy 200 square feet, premium $100, will be staged Friday, March 31. The exhibits in all classes except Division B will be staged March 25 and will continue Saturday, Sunday and Monday. The days of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, the space occupied by the Rose Society will be used by the Carnation Society.

Rev. Spencer S. Sulliger, of Vancouver, president of the society known as the Rosarians of the State of Washington, who visited the last year's show of the National Society in London, will read a paper at the Rose Society's annual meeting. R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, was at the international exhibition at Brussels, Belgium, and will furnish a paper on "Roses of Europe."

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that the Jackson & Perkins Co., of Newark, Wayne county, New York, offers for registration the rose described below. Any person objecting to the registration, or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date. Raiser's description: Abelle Weber-Pate (Thalia x Mlle. Eugenie Verdier), Lambert x Rugosa America (Harvard Gardens, '94); seedling from Herr Peter Lambert, Trier, Treves, Germany; citron-yellow, to deep orange center; dwarf polyantha; foliage and habit like Mrs. Cutbush. Name: Yellow Baby Rambler.

H. B. Dorner, Sec'y.

January 19, 1911.

Additional President's Appointments.

A committee on school gardens has been appointed, as follows: Wm. R. Smith, Washington, D. C.; C. L. Seybold, Lanvale and Fremont avenues, Baltimore, Md.

The following additional state vice-presidents have also been appointed:

Colorado, I. E. Johnson, Colorado Springs.
Connecticut, Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell.
Florida, C. D. Mills, Jacksonville.
Kentucky, H. G. Walker, Louisville.
Maine, William Miller, Bar Harbor.
Nebraska, John J. Hess, Omaha.
New Jersey, Ant. C. Zvolanek, Bound Brook.
New York, West, S. A. Anderson, Buffalo.
Texas, Eugene Corley, Dallas.
Wisconsin, J. E. Matthewson, Sheboygan.

H. B. Dorner, Sec'y.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

A meeting was held in Horticultural hall, Boston, January 17, of the board of control, the show committee, and a number of the guarantors and representatives of the various societies interested in the great National Flower Show which will be held in Boston in March.

Representatives were present from the S. A. F., the American Rose, the American Carnation, the Gladiolus, Sweet Pea and Massachusetts Horticultural Societies, and the National Association of Gardeners, all of whom will hold their annual convention during the progress of the exhibition. This gathering represents the largest combination of the florists' interests ever brought together on such a project and gives positive assurance that the exhibition itself will be the most stupendous affair of its kind ever held.

The entire Mechanics' building has been engaged, and, as it contains over 100,000 square feet of exhibiting space, ample room seems assured, but so many applications for space are being received that there is little doubt that when the doors open Saturday, March 25, it will all be filled. Many of the members from a distance who had never before seen the building were loud in their praise of its desirability for such an affair. The large banquet halls, as well as the two consecutive halls, which will permit of all business of the societies being transacted under one roof, were especially interesting to the representatives. They were particularly pleased with the brilliant prospects and the large number of firms who have already taken space, as reported by Chester I. Campbell, the business manager for the show committee. It is called a National Flower Show, but it is really international in scope, as exhibits will be sent from England, Holland, Denmark, Italy, South America, New Mexico, India, China and Japan, and it is creating a world-wide interest.

Among those who attended the meeting were: George Asmus, of Chicago, the new president of the S. A. F.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y., chairman of the board of control; F. H. Traendly, New York; Wm. J. Stewart, Boston; Harry Bunyard, New York; John K. M. L. Farquhar, Boston; W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.; W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J.; Wallace Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass.; Thomas Roland, Nahant; W. H. Elliott, Brighton, Mass.; E. Allan Peirce, Waltham, Mass.

It was a most enthusiastic meeting and the various societies are coöperating in a most hearty manner to make the affair a gigantic success from every point of view.

FRED H. WEBER.

Fred H. Weber is a native of Germany, having been born in Wildbad, not far from Stuttgart, May 8, 1875. Coming to this country in 1890, he continued his journey directly to St. Louis and entered the employ of his uncle, Fred C. Weber. In 1903 he began business for himself at his present location, at Boyle and Maryland avenues, where he has a first-class establishment and has achieved much success. He is an active member of the St. Louis Florists' Club, and recently was appointed state vice-president of the S. A. F. for eastern Missouri.

Fred H. Weber.

HAERENS' AZALEAS.

August Haerens, of Somergem, Belgium, has named one of his new azaleas for the late W. W. Edgar, of Waverley, Mass. Souvenir William Edgar is described as "free, in full bloom January 1 with a temperature of 57 to 62 degrees for six weeks; almost like a double Mme. Vander Cruyssen, little smaller, slightly fringed, with strong branches; a good keeper; always three, often four, and sometimes five flowers to the bud, like camellia buds in general effect."

At a January show at Somergem, with Souvenir William Edgar, the Haerens concern showed several other novelties that soon will be seen in America; among them Winfried Haerens obtained the most success, for its large, vigorous, deep red flowers, shaded with shining purple, in full bloom from January 1, within six weeks only, with 57 to 62 degrees. Tricorolle, or Christmas Bells, the flowers of which are like bells, is said to be an early variety of which the most good is expected for the trade. It is the color of Hexe, a little lighter, free, a good forcer and keeper.

POTASH IN GREENHOUSE SOIL.

Kindly give us full information concerning the application of potash to growing crops in greenhouses; also in the compost heap, and in the preparation of field soils for greenhouse use. Our soil is a leachy loam. E. N.

Regarding the use of potash for greenhouse crops, some kinds of crops require a good deal more than others and, again, some kinds of soil require it in stronger doses than other soils. A good proportion for carnations, roses and sweet peas is one pound of muriate of potash for each 100 square feet of bench. In the preparation of field soils for greenhouse use, this quantity can be exceeded by one half.

Unleached wood ashes, which contain from twenty-five to thirty-five per cent of potash, constitute one of the best forms in which this can be applied.

Ribes.

ONE REDUCTION IN RATES.

The principal companies of the country have completed an arrangement which will effect many reductions in rates. Previously, whenever a package has been shipped over the lines of two or more companies, the gross rate has been the sum of the local rates of all the companies. Hereafter the charge will be the same as if one company carried the package from shipping point to destination.

The new rate was agreed to after a number of conferences at which the principal express companies operating in the United States and Canada have been represented, among them being the Adams, American, Pacific, Southern, United States, Wells-Fargo, and Western. The new rule will effect a radical reduction in express charges on all shipments to or from what are known as exclusive offices—that is to say, a city or town where only one express company is represented.

The announcement made at the close of the conference follows:

"Instead of two companies which may handle an express package making a separate charge on each line, the charge will be the same as if one company had carried the package from the shipping point to its destination. Necessary details are now being perfected, and as soon as legal requirements are complied with this plan for through service at through rates will take effect generally, between all express offices in the United States."

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business was better last week than in a long time. There was a good clean-up all around. The long spell of dark weather, followed by a cold wave, greatly reduced supplies, and, while stock is now a little more plentiful, the present week opens with an excellent demand. Roses have been scarce and a week ago were almost unprocurable, growers being besieged with orders from the retailers. Prices, in consequence, have advanced. About all growers are now off crop, but such flowers as are coming in are of good quality, Killarney remaining in the lead. Good Richmond are scarce. Mrs. Aaron Ward still sells well. Carnations are selling better than since Christmas, Pink Delight being in especial favor, but some growers have Enchantress which is equal to any of the newer sorts. Even whites are selling well. Violets are selling a little better, but prices are lower than they should be. Sweet peas are in heavy supply and quite inexpensive.

Easter lilies are in good supply and a good many speciosum rubrum are also seen. Valley is of better quality than a month ago. Bulbous stock is quite abundant, but so far has sold well. Some double Von Sion and poeticus ornatus are included among the narcissi. Freesia is good and quite popular. Mignonette is extra fine and selling well. Callas are more abundant. Marguerites continue in active demand, especially the yellow shades. Quite a few calendulas, dimorphotheca, myosotis, pansies, wallflowers and other miscellaneous flowers are seen. Stocks come from several growers. These do not sell well, however, except for Memorial day. There is now a plentiful supply of Cattleya Trianæ, also quite a variety of other orchids, such as dendrobiums, phalænopsis and Lælia anceps. Adiantum, smilax and asparagus are each selling well.

Various Notes.

F. P. Putnam, of Tewksbury, is this season first in the market with Dimorphotheca aurantiaca, which is a good seller. Mr. Putnam has excellent stocks, in addition to his fine line of fancy carnations.

The King Construction Co. has secured the contract for a house 35x100 feet for E. H. Borowski, of Roslindale. Their contract includes benches and heating.

David Duncan, of Arlington, is marketing fine shipments of tulips and narcissi.

Eber Holmes, of the Montrose Greenhouses, has been appointed by W. H. Elliott, manager of the American Rose Society's exhibition at the National Flower Show in March.

George O. Buckram, of Stoneham, grows carnations in quantity, including fine Beacon, Fair Maid and Enchantress, and says they are in active demand.

O. A. Knight, of the Central Greenhouses, West Roxbury, is marketing a fine line of Primula Sinensis, P. obconica and cyclamens, also carnations and callas.

A. A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, is one of our newer but successful growers of sweet peas and carnations. Especially fine are his Ruby, White Perfection, Beacon, Enchantress and White Enchantress. Mr. Pembroke has orders booked for 60,000 carnation cuttings and turned an order away for 21,000 last week.

D. F. Hutchinson & Sons, of Lexington, grow Beacon heavily, also White Lawson, White Perfection and Enchantress.

Peirce Bros. are cutting a fine lot of Lilium speciosum rubrum.

A good audience assembled at Horticultural hall January 21 to hear a lecture from Prof. H. H. Whetzel, of Ithaca, N. Y., on the "Local Plant Doctor." The midwinter flower show will be held February 24 to 26.

E. J. Rogean is handling extra fine campernelle jonquils, double Von Sion and French poeticus from H. W. Vose. The wallflowers and freesias he receives from A. G. Hanna, of Holbrook, are also extra fine.

Daniel Iliffe will do the heating for a new greenhouse 20x80, being built for Oliver Ames, of North Easton, where Edward Parker is manager.

Good smilax is selling well at present, and that coming in from Thomas Cox, of Dorchester, is about the best I have seen. His adiantum also is excellent.

E. C. Rogers, of Roslindale, and Carl Everburg are among those receiving fine consignments of bulbous stock.

The W. W. Edgar Co. will make a large exhibit at the coming National Flower Show, including a number of new azaleas. They report business as good.

W. F. Coolidge, of Cambridge, has extra good nephrolepis, palms and azaleas, and William Cleary, of Newton, well flowered azaleas in quantity.

Good double violet growers are not numerous in and around Boston. A few who are handling extra fine stock are H. F. Calder, Norwood; W. B. Goodenow, Stoughton; John T. Gale, Tewksbury, and H. F. Wood, Brookline.

Charles J. Harvey, of Needham Heights, is having extra success this season with mignonette and wallflowers. He also grows lupines and other annuals.

Welch Bros. report business in cut flowers as active, with a scarcity of roses and some other lines of stock.

W. N. Craig.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Business was fair last week. The supply of stock slackened considerably and as a result the market was at times rather tight. Had the demand been anyway brisk there would have been a decided shortage of flowers in the market.

Roses have been cleaning up every day at normal prices. The general quality is good. In Beauties, the short and medium grades sell faster than the choice long ones; all, however, clean up. In other roses, all sizes move quickly. Carnations are short in supply and the prices during the latter part of last week and the early part of this week have shown advances. The white and lighter shades are especially in demand.

The market is fairly well supplied in other lines. Single violets are coming in nicely, although some growers have stated that theirs are letting up. A more than sufficiency of New York doubles are offered to meet all requests. Lily of the valley, too, is plentiful. There is a good call for longiflorum and callas. Narcissi and Romans find a good market because of the shortage of other stock. Some few jonquils have made their appearance and are tolerably good. They are naturally grabbed up at once. Sweet peas sell readily.

The supply of decorative greens of all kinds is now ample. Asparagus plumosus, which for a while has been on the short side, is again plentiful. The supply of Sprengeri, too, is sufficient for demands.

Club Meeting.

The Cincinnati Florists' Society held a special meeting at the club rooms Monday evening, January 23. The attendance was large. Wm. Murphy gave a report for the flower show committee, consisting of himself, E. A. Forter, chairman, R. Witterstaetter, E. G. Gillett and Max Rudolph. The report stated that $13,050 had been subscribed to the guarantee fund for the show up to Monday evening and that some others were still to be heard from. The week beginning November 13, 1911, was decided on as the date for the event. At the next regular meeting of the society the committee will have a complete list of schedules to submit.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell, the vice-president of the S. A. F. for southern Ohio, asks all local florists who wish to become members of that body to give him their names.

Wm. Gardner was in town for a few days last week. While here he bowled with some of the local florists. He says that when the recent storm broke so much glass at P. J. Olinger's greenhouses he did 100 yards with a heavy tarpaulin on his shoulders in less time than a trained sprinter could have done it.

George Staff, of New Castle, Ind., is organizing a florists' bowling club in that city.

Thomas Windram has returned from Leesburg, Fla.

Louis Pfeiffer recently had a fire scare at his home in the Highlands. Fortunately, the blaze was extinguished before it had done serious damage.

C. E. Critchell reports an order for 3,000 wire hanging baskets.

Miss Margaret Weiland, of Evanston, Ill., is visiting her brother, Peter Weiland, at New Castle.

Mrs. Henry Glins left last week for a fortnight's visit in Boston.

Wm. Speck has been cutting some fine Lilium longiflorum.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Berkowitz arrived January 23. Mr. Berkowitz is, of course, talking Bayersdorfer's goods. Other callers include H. Nicholson, representing the Chicago Carnation Co., and Mr. and Mrs. Lester F. Benson and family, of Indianapolis.

C. H. H.

PITTSBURG, PA.

The Market.

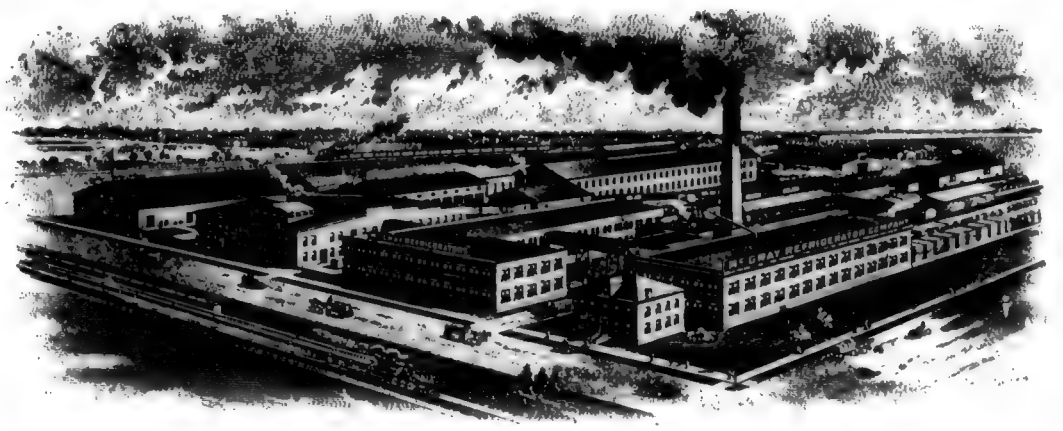
The cut flower people have been having a bad week, as it is almost impossible to get anything they want in any quantity. The wholesale men also came through a trying season, trying to satisfy their customers by dividing up the stock among them, but did not succeed particularly well, and the end is not yet, as the weather is miserable. The sun does not deign to show itself for even a few minutes.

Various Notes.

Henry Eichholz, of Waynesboro, Pa., sent in a bunch of Princess Charming, the new pink carnation, and it was fine, both in form and color, with strong stems, just what is wanted in an Enchantress-colored carnation.

The committee having in charge the entertainment and lecture to be given the Pittsburg Florists' Club and their friends has announced Tuesday, February 28, as the day and invites all to attend, and promises a pleasant and instructive evening.

Glass, which was down in price for a few days, has advanced nine cents a box over last week's price, with promise of further advance.



Harry Baxter, who had greenhouses at Aspinwall and who was known to the trade, dropped out several years ago and all track of him was lost until his death was announced January 13, from his home in Bellevue.

Miss McDowell, who has charge of Miss A. L. Wells' store in Steubenville, O., has been a victim of tonsilitis for the last week.

John Bader recently sold his business to Ben L. Elliott, who has had the active management of the business during the last five years. Mr. Elliott will continue the business under the name of the John Bader Co. Hoo-Hoo.

Gentlemen:-

In looking over our advertising records for the last few years, we find that your publication has made a remarkable record. Since we began to advertise with you in 1907, for every dollar we have spent we have received $8.74 in direct sales. This leaves out, of course, all the indirect influences which our advertising has had, which, no doubt, amounts to a great deal.

We think it only due you to let you know these facts and we will be glad at any time to testify to the value of your publication as a medium for reaching high grade florists.

Thanking you for your many favors, we are

Yours very truly,

DENVER.

The Market.

Almost everyone had a big crop of cut flowers at the holidays, and, as a consequence, every one is short just now. The Christmas prices are a great temptation to the growers, and they cannot be blamed for wanting to cut more at that time; but it would be such a relief if some kind and generous man would allow his crop to come just a little later.

Business has been good, and everything has been sold daily. There are not nearly enough carnations or tea roses to go around, and it might be well to include medium and short Beauties. Long Beauties are up to the demand, and so are violets. We still have the California violet peddlers on the streets, and while they stay the violet business is apt to be slow. The call for callas is unusual, and mignonette is growing in favor. Bulb stock is beginning to come, but not yet in large quantities.

Various Notes.

The Colorado Florists' Club had an interesting meeting January 10. Owing to some misunderstanding in regard to the T. M. A. hall, where the meetings have been, this one was held at the store of the Park Floral Co. It is the intention hereafter to have the meetings in the new store of the Park Floral Co., the exact date to be decided later. D. M. Andrews, of Boulder, read a most interesting paper on "Native Shrubs." The various pottery men were there with samples and arguments, but they failed to convince the skeptical, and the question, "Are western made pots as good as those of eastern manufacture?" is still unanswered. It will probably be taken up at the next meeting.

Mrs. R. Mauff has returned from an extended visit in California.

F. X. Goeschl has opened up a flower stand in the entrance to the Symes block. It is a small place, but Mr. Goeschl expects to do some business.

The Greeters' Club had a banquet at the Brown hotel last week, the decoration and favors being furnished by the Elitch-Long Flower Store.

At the last meeting of the Colorado Florists' Club, it was suggested that at the opening of the new Chamber of Commerce building it would look well if the florists of the city would donate the flowers for the decorations. The suggestion met with approval, probably on account of the surplus on hand just at that time, and 3,000 carnations and three or four cases of wild smilax were promised. The day after the promise was made, the demand for flowers increased, and by the end of the week there was not a flower to be bought at wholesale. Some of the florists nearly cried their eyes out when they found it necessary to go and buy stock at high prices just to give away, but they all kept their promises. The decoration was under the supervision of B. E. Gillis, of the Park Floral Co.

March & Johnson, florists at Sterling, Colo., are figuring on a large decoration for Washington's birthday. Their representative was in the city last week looking for stock to use at that time, as they have only a small amount of glass.

The new store of Cooper & Berry at 833 Fifteenth street is quite attractive, and although the painters and other workmen were quite bothersome during their opening week they did a rushing business, and are thoroughly satisfied.

Leo Grimes, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Grimes, and Miss Catherine Scheideman, were married Saturday evening, January 21, at the home of the groom's parents on West Thirty-second avenue.

Two of the Park Floral Co. employees, Frank Sauerwald and E. P. Neiman, were on the sick list for a few days, but are now able to be around.

Denver florists are now well represented in the Chamber of Commerce. J. A. Valentine and N. A. Benson, who have been members for some time, were selected as a membership committee, and succeeded in getting E. S. Kennedy, C. L. Gross and Bernhard Boldt to join. W. H. Grimes is also a member, he having joined several years ago.

Nearly every florist in the city sent something to the funeral of the late Senator C. J. Hughes, Jr., but the Park Floral Co. had the greater part of the work. E. P. Neiman was at the residence several hours before the funeral and received and arranged all the flowers.

When Emil Glauber went to the theater one night last week, he left his automobile standing outside and it was gone when he returned. He immediately reported the matter to the police, hired the fastest machine in town and several detectives, and started a systematic search. They scoured the city for several hours, and finally located it at Third and Gilpin streets. Nothing had been disturbed or broken, and it was evidently taken by some youngsters who were out for a good time. Mr. Glauber now locks his machine when he leaves it, and hopes to prevent a recurrence.

About a dozen out-of-town florists were lavishly entertained in Denver, Saturday and Sunday, January 21 and 22. Saturday afternoon they were taken in automobiles to the different greenhouses on the north side, stopping first at Ben Boldt's, where they had lunch. Then, in turn, they visited the greenhouses of C. F. Maler, Chas. Benson, the Elitch-Long Co., and the Curtis Park Floral Co. In the evening at six o'clock there was a banquet at the Brown hotel, with forty-eight present. C. R. Root was toastmaster, and responses were made by John Berry, J. A. Valentine, Ed. Johnson, N. A. Benson, E. S. Kennedy, Ed. Potter and A. H. Bush. W. H. Grimes was excused before the banquet was finished, as he wanted to be present at the marriage of his son at eight o'clock. After the banquet there was a bowling match at the Overland bowling alleys, at which the Denver men won two out of three games. Sunday morning they visited the east side greenhouses, going to Glauber's, Hall's and Mauff's, arriving at the Park Floral Co. about noon, where lunch was served at Plant A. After lunch they went downtown to see A. C. Sinram's store on Tremont street. The following is a list of those who were entertained by the Denver florists: John Smith, Ray Vinson, J. Hagemeyer, John Berry, Ed. Potter, C. U. Fohn, Henry Monaghan, Alfred Cox and Ed. Johnson, all of Colorado Springs; Mr. Hennehofer, of Pueblo, and Mr. Rouse, of Idaho Springs.

Visitors: A. Gardner, of Greeley; C. A. Espelin, of Fort Collins; Guy Reyburn, representing A. Henderson & Co., Chicago.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Buying stock now puts one in mind of the bread line during a famine—until the bill comes in. Small flowers, such as sweet peas, Romans, La Reine tulips, etc., are good and not so short in quantity as the staple flowers, but they do not have much covering capacity in funeral work, which is the main thing in the florists' business at present.

Beauties and Killarneys are as scarce as the proverbial hens' teeth.

Various Notes.

W. P. Rock, formerly of the Flower Shop, was forced to close his store on Woodland avenue last week.

Herbert Bate, of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co., entertained several florists at his home, in Glenville, Saturday night, January 21. Although poker was the star attraction on the program, George Bate proved to those present that he can tickle the ivories in a most accomplished manner and accompanied the boys for many a good song.

Mrs. Lincoln Brown reports a better business than she had anticipated and says she is establishing a nice trade in Lakewood, where she is located.

O. C. Knoble visited in Huron last week.

F. J. Ritzenthaler spent January 21 and 22 in Buffalo.

Adam Graham and Gordon Gray, veteran florists, are noted in the Cleveland Sunday Plain-Dealer as members of the Burns Curling Club. These two worthy gentlemen have helped to make this grand old Scottish game one of the most popular in Cleveland.

John Kirchner reports business good. He is cutting lots of nice callas, La Reine tulips and Romans.

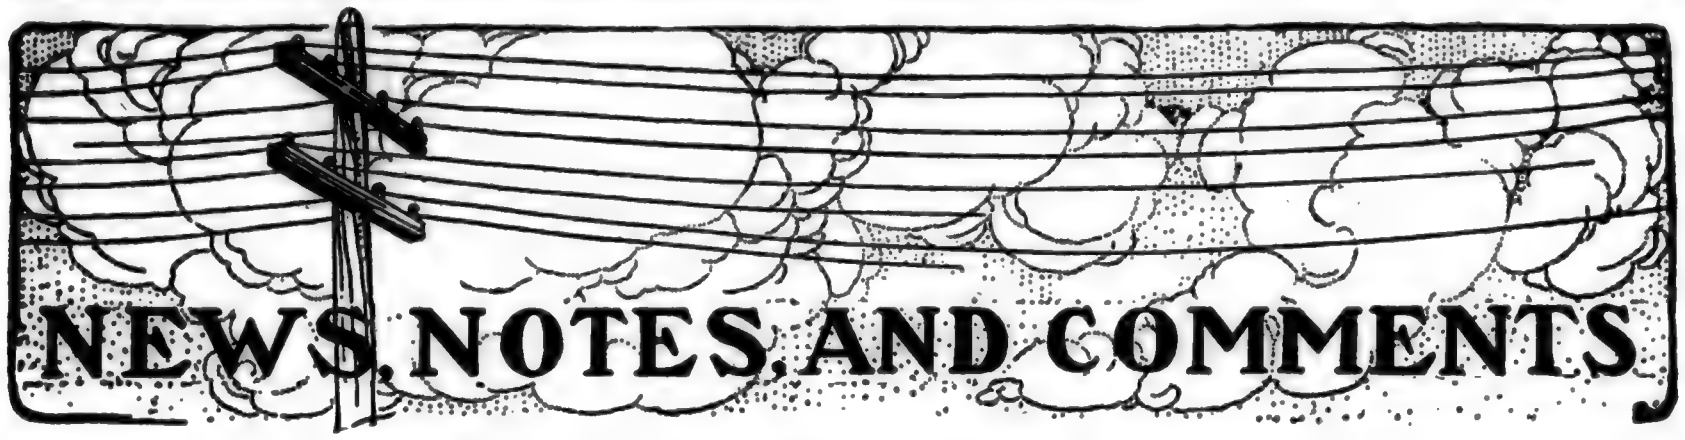
Herman Hart is marketing some fine freesia plants, and cyclamens.

C. D. F.

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

Business during the last two weeks has been unusually brisk with the retailers. A large church wedding, as well as a number of smaller functions, called for a goodly quantity of decorative material. The deaths of four of Rochester's prominent business and professional men made a call for design work.



Roses and carnations have been unusually short, and consequently prices have been high. Violets are selling at 50 cents a bunch, while La Reine tulips are offered at 60 cents a dozen. Primroses can be had as low as 25 cents, but good plants are selling for at least 50 cents.

Various Notes.

E. C. Campbell, who conducts a store and greenhouses on Chili avenue, is soon to open a new store at 15 North street. This store is not quite completed, but the plans indicate that it will be one of the best equipped flower stores in the city.

Orders have already been placed for a large quantity of carnations for McKinley day, January 29.

E. F. R.

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Maspeth, N. Y.—Herman Maenner, now in business at Collins and Mount Olivet avenues, expects to retire from the trade about July 1.

Okmulgee, Okla.—Phil Ryan, formerly of New Castle, Pa., and later at Lead, S. D., is now in this town, where he expects to go into business for himself, as he believes the opportunities here are excellent.

Salisbury, Md.—The greenhouses formerly conducted in the interests of W. H. Jackson, by a manager, are now being operated by W. H. Hillerman, in his own name, and it is generally agreed that Mr. Hillerman is making a success of the business.

Utica, N. Y.—William Mathews came near having a serious fire. It started in the boiler house just at the busiest time. Harry Mathews discovered it in time to prevent much damage. A house of stock being grown for the Masonic Home had a narrow escape.

New London, Conn.—It is reported that the John Fye greenhouse property has been traded to J. P. Hurley, of Mount Pleasant, for a 160-acre farm in Jackson township. In the negotiations the greenhouse property was valued at $9,000 and the farm at $12,500.

Madison, Wis.—The Wisconsin State Horticultural Society has elected the following officers: President, D. E. Bingham, of Sturgeon Bay; vice-president, C. L. Richardson, of Stanley; secretary, Frederick Cranefield, of this city; treasurer, L. G. Kellogg, of Lake Geneva.

Crawfordsville, Ind.—Arthur S. Pett, for some years head florist at the greenhouses of McDonald & Steele, has purchased the Vant Leven gardens and will start business on his own account. He has been succeeded at McDonald & Steele's by Ambrose Campbell, long a trusted and efficient employee of the firm.

Garrett, Ind.—Emil Hill, who instituted legal proceedings against the city on account of the fact that a city sewer was so constructed as to be likely to cause a flooding of his greenhouse grounds, succeeded in obtaining a settlement of the case before it came to trial. By this settlement the city has agreed to pay him $575 as damages.

Beatrice, Neb.—The stockholders of the Dole Floral Co. recently held their annual meeting and elected Mrs. S. H. Dole, E. W. Dole and W. A. Dole as directors. Twenty years ago the Doles started business with a hotbed made of two windows of the old courthouse and $1.75 worth of plants; now they have greenhouses containing 15,000 square feet of glass and also own a handsome double store building uptown.

Kingston, N. Y.—William Williams expects to branch out, if a deal he has on a piece of land goes through. Business necessitates this move.

Salisbury, Md.—L. & A. Hitch, eight miles out from town, report heavy sales on cut flowers, to which they are giving more and more of their time. They have had an especially large share of funeral work.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—The Grand Rapids Greenhouse Co. is now devoting to flowers much of the space formerly occupied by lettuce and radishes, and it is said that next season the firm may abandon the growing of vegetables entirely.

Owego, N. Y.—A. J. Thomas is one of the many young-old craftsmen, having recently passed the seventy-third milestone, and is as spry as ever. He is ably assisted in the business by his two sons, one of whom is a specialist in carnations and has a crop to be proud of. Their double violets are also fine.

Washington, Ia.—The greenhouses and home of Joseph Melinsky were almost entirely destroyed by fire January 10. A small section of the greenhouses was saved, but all of the stock was ruined, as the heating plant was rendered useless. The loss was estimated at $3,000.

Elmira, N. Y.—Richard King, superintendent of the United States Cut Flower Co., says the two new houses, 35x300 feet, will be used for carnations; the latest varieties will be tested. Beacon, White Perfection, White Enchantress, Winsor and Mrs. Ward are their leaders at present. Some fine roses are being cut and plans are being made for exhibiting at the big show in Boston in March.

Pontiac, Mich.—A. B. Lewis, it is said, expects to grow twenty-six acres of celery during the coming year on his farm out on Oakland avenue. For years he has been experimenting in the growing of this vegetable on an improved plan, and now he is thinking seriously of disposing of his greenhouses on North Saginaw street and devoting his entire attention to the celery business.

Fort Dodge, Ia.—Otto Hansen has sold his interest in the North Floral Co. to E. E. Nordwall and J. H. Schaffner, the other members of the firm. Mr. Hansen has been president of the concern and in charge of the greenhouses since the business was organized. He intends to stay with the firm until about June; after that time he will probably go into business somewhere in the west.

Westfield, N. Y.—J. Dann & Son report a highly satisfactory season, with business steady, stock not overplentiful and prices good.

Cotuit, Mass.—Everett L. Hoxie, who extended his glass area last spring, has just finished still another addition. Business, he says, has been fairly good.

Independence, Ia.—G. D. Black, well known as a grower of gladioli and as a nurseryman, has been at Madison, Wis., to deliver an address before the State Horticultural Society.

Lake Geneva, Wis.—The Lake Geneva Horticultural Society has been incorporated, with a capital of $10,000. The incorporators are F. J. Tyrell, W. P. Longland and A. J. Smith.

Hornell, N. Y.—Albert King notes a falling off in the call for metal designs among his customers, for cemetery use. Magnolia and galax are in good demand. He has an excellent stock for spring sales.

Westboro, Mass.—Manuel Gardner, after obtaining experience as a florist at the greenhouses of his father, William Gardner, on High street, has now secured a good position at the Walter E. Draper greenhouses, in Rochdale.

North Manchester, Ind.—The Northern Indiana Association of Florists met here January 21 with a large attendance. There was a fine display of carnations. The next meeting will be held at Muncie, the third Wednesday in April.

Youngstown, O.—John Walker purposes to start, next summer, a new range of houses in a location outside of town, to which he can eventually remove all his glass. His son, Elmer, is now associated with him in the business.

Corning, N. Y.—A. H. Woeppel is trying several of the newer varieties of carnations, but can not find any to beat the Enchantress family. Lady Bountiful and Queen show no sign of deteriorating and are exceedingly useful for design work. He has a fine house of Richmond in the third year, and finds it an easy rose to grow.

Olean, N. Y.—Dana R. Herron is inclined to give cement benches all the credit for the grand lot of carnations grown by him this season, especially one house of White Perfection, which won first prize at a friendly competition held between the local growers recently. It was one house of several that cropped heavily at Christmas and was a bonanza. The success attained since the elegant new store was opened downtown has set Mr. Herron to planning a new departure that will create considerable interest.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

INCORPORATED BY ACT OF CONGRESS, MARCH 4, '01

Officers for 1910: President, F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; vice-president, F. W. Vick, Rochester, N. Y.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Special convention and National Flower Show, Boston, Mass., March 26 to April 1, 1911.

Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18, 1911.

RESULTS.
We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE more the retailers advertise, the more flowers will be used.

W. H. CULP conducts a column, "The Home Florist," in the Wichita Eagle.

To the next electrician you meet put the question, "What is electricity?" After that you won't wonder at a florist's lack of knowledge of cause and effect.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

BEFORE there can be any reduction in express rates the grip of the railroads must be broken. For instance, the Wells-Fargo is required to pay to the St. Paul railroad sixty per cent of all it collects as a carrier.

IT always is the unexpected that happens. In the early autumn practically everyone associated with the fuel industry anticipated a famine as soon as winter set in. The reverse is the case; there is an overstock of coal. Production was forced, there has been no severe weather to hinder transportation, railroads have had no rush of other business and could move coal promptly.

OBITUARY.

J. E. Andrews.

J. E. Andrews, head florist for Mrs. Addie I. Colburn, at Gardner, Mass., died of valvular heart disease at his home, 45 Graham street, January 13, at the age of 58 years. He was born in England and leaves a daughter by a first marriage residing there. He came to this country about eighteen years ago, and carried on a successful florist and market gardening business for Mrs. Addie I. Colburn at Billerica. He was afterward employed in the Worcester Conservatories, in Worcester, and removed to Gardner only about three weeks before his death. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Wm. M. Hunt, of Canton, Mass.

J. W. Ramagen.

J. W. Ramagen, for thirty years a florist and landscape gardener at Lima, O., died January 2. C. H. Ramagen, a son, is continuing the business.

James Reynolds.

James Reynolds, a nurseryman, of Geneva, N. Y., was drowned in the Cayuga and Seneca Canal January 18. The body was recovered.

Peter H. Anderson.

Peter Henry Anderson, proprietor of the Anderson Floral Co., at St. Cloud, Minn., died suddenly at his home in that city, January 18. Death was due to pneumonia and heart failure. His sudden death was a shock to his many friends, as many of them did not know that he was ill. He was born in Sweden forty-one years ago and came to this country when a young man. Soon after his removal to St. Cloud, he bought the Campbell greenhouses and moved the plant to the present location, where he built up a successful business. Twelve years ago he was married to Miss Anna Wilson. His wife and two children, Harold and Elsa, survive him. There are also surviving him in Sweden two brothers and a sister whom he visited last summer, when he made a trip to Europe with his family. Another brother, Louis, lives in Minneapolis.

Mr. Anderson was a member of quite a number of lodges, being affiliated with the Masons, the Elks, Red Men, Modern Woodmen of America, Eastern Star, Eagles and Maccabees.

Mrs. H. B. Smith.

Mrs. H. B. Smith, for ten years a florist at Lyons, Kan., passed quietly to rest after a long illness. She was born at Linville, Ill., March 17, 1850, and lived in Illinois, near Decatur, until the family removed to Kansas a decade ago. Mrs. Smith made her start in the florists' business many years ago, in Illinois, and had built up a prosperous establishment at Lyons, which will be continued by a daughter, Miss Ruth Smith, in addition to whom three other daughters and their father survive.

WHAT IT COSTS.

The way to measure the cost of advertising is by the results. This is the way it figures out in the Classified department of The Review:

Please cut out my ad of geraniums, for the first mail brought orders for 10,000 cuttings. What will it be by the end of the week?—E. A. Muchow, Clarence, N. Y., January 23, 1911.

The advertisement cost 30 cents. The cuttings were $10 per thousand, so the one mail brought $100 worth of business.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Last week was marked by the most acute scarcity this market has seen in a year. There are many who will say that the shortage of roses was the worst ever experienced, but in these days everything is the biggest, smallest, best or worst that ever happened, and the experience of the last few days is merely a repetition of what happened one year ago, with sales, in fact, running ahead of a year ago. At that time the market was short of roses for four consecutive weeks. The scarcity this year has now lasted a little more than a fortnight. Up to the opening of the present week it was growing worse each day, but the beginning of this week found receipts a little heavier in all departments. Growers say that the rose crops are now on the up-grade. The increase will be slow for another week or ten days, but after another fortnight large crops will be on again. The development of the crops has been hastened this week by several days of exceptionally warm, bright weather. In the latter part of last week it was utterly impossible to fill all orders for roses. The scarcity has been particularly pronounced in the short and medium grades. These, when located, have commanded special prices. The scarcity of short roses turned the demand

SWEET PEAS

Long stemmed, fancy stock, all colors.

These are fine Peas—no better ever were offered at this season of the year—the best winter-blooming varieties done to perfection. These Peas made a hit last year and our growers increased the supply for this season. We ship fresh from the vines, putting the stock in your hands with all its first fragrance. Order some today.

CARNATIONS

We can fill all your orders. Our supply is large and the quality up to our usual high standard—none better. Let us hear from you on these, for we know you will increase your orders as soon as you have tried this stock.

Violets

The cream of the crops, eastern and western. Now booking orders for Valentine's day.

Bulb Stock

Call on us for Tulips, Jonquils, Trumpets, Paper Whites, Romans, Freesia, etc.

ORCHIDS

We are told that the large crops of Cattleya Trianæ about the country are rapidly approaching their end, and that Orchids will soon be scarce again—but we shall be able to fill all orders. Our supply is constant—fine, fresh cut, because home grown. Look to us for your Orchids, now for Valentine's Day, and every day.

Killarneys

A large cut of notably fine roses, and most of them are of the special long fancy grade, that all growers try for but few attain.

Beauties

For color and size of flower this stock would be hard to equal. Specially strong on the 36-inch and up. Can fill the largest orders.

Valley

Fancy stock always on hand; no limit to our supply.

Easter Lilies

We can supply Easter Lilies every day in the year, fine quality.

Headquarters for all Green Goods

Fancy Ferns that are without equal; best we ever had to offer at this time of year.

to the extra lengths, ordinarily in less request. These extra fancy roses have all season been commanding less than normal prices, but last week they got up about to last year's level. White roses are in greater demand than pink or red, though all have been short of the requirements.

During the last week there has been a material increase in the out-of-town demand for carnations. When the buyers came to realize the situation in roses they turned to carnations, with the result that they forced a sharp advance in prices in this department. There continue to be large receipts of low grade and split carnations, which pulled down the average prices. Fancy stock has been commanding a good figure. The supply of carnations is relatively large. It is only the shortage of roses which has advanced the price of carnations.

There has been a good market for bulb stock, Paper Whites getting first choice. White tulips have gone well for funeral work. Colored tulips have found little favor, except if they had long stems. Daffodils and jonquils have sold well; the supply now is large. Callas and Easter lilies are not plentiful. Cattleyas are less abundant and the prices are stiffening. Growers of these flowers say the crops are passing and that there will be no oversupply for the rest of the season. Violets have sold in quantity during the pleasant days, but not at fancy prices. Most of the stores put a gardenia in the center of each corsage of violets, and that has made a fairly steady call for these flowers. Sweet peas are less abundant than they were. The heavy crops of the winter flowering varieties are passing.

The green goods market has stiffened, in keeping with the cut flower department. Adiantum is in more request. The price of ferns is getting a boost of 50 cents, and there are predictions of fireworks in this department as spring approaches.

At Poehlmannville.

January 23 work was begun on putting up the roof for the thirteen new houses for which the Garland iron gutters were set last fall. Each of these houses is 250 feet long, and as soon as completed thirteen others of equal length will follow. There are three houses of cattleyas, but only one is producing, the other two to come into crop next season. By that time it is expected to have five houses of orchids, as two collectors are now in Central America. Concrete benches are being built for 18,200 running feet for Beauties and Killarneys and 8,000 feet for mums and sweet peas. It is a sectional bench on a pattern designed on the place. The bench legs carry a crosspiece and the crosspiece carries a stringer that runs the length of the bench, down the center, and supports the bottom slabs. One of the points commented on by nearly every visitor is the quantity of material required in a modern greenhouse establishment. For instance, the Poehlmanns have nearly fifteen cars of glass stored on the place; they used 187 cars of manure last season; iron rods for reinforcing the concrete benches are bought in carload lots, forty or more tons to the car, with cement also bought in carload lots.

Various Notes.

The committee which has been charged with the task of arranging details for the florists' joint occupancy of the proposed Great Lakes building had another meeting at the office of Wietor Bros. January 25, to consider data collected within the last week. C. L. Washburn has resigned the chairmanship of the committee and George Reinberg now occupies that position. C. M. Dickinson is secretary. It is now thought removal can be effected May 1 of 1912, and most of the wholesalers favor the postponement.

Frank Oechslin is married! It came as a great surprise to everyone, as it was a quiet affair and no one knew of it in advance. His bride was Mrs. Rosa Maier, who has been his housekeeper for about a year. The ceremony was performed Thursday evening, January 19.

Next week a ten days' horticultural institute will open at the University of Illinois, closing February 8 and 9 with the sixth annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association. February 7 C. L. Washburn is to address the institute on the subject, "Greenhouse Management." February 4 P. J. Foley is to tell of "Illinois Greenhouses and Their Products."

L. Hoeckner (Stogie) is doing jury duty, hearing railroad damage cases.

Peter Sroczynski, whose establishment at 1525 North Harding avenue is well known to the trade in and near Chicago, is looking for a buyer for his greenhouses. He expects to build a much larger range just outside the city limits, with the intention of growing for the wholesale trade only. Mr. Sroczynski has made a remarkable success of his present venture and proposes to sell the greenhouses and stock and lease the ground, store and flat building adjoining, with the privilege of buying them also at the expiration of the lease. He does not expect to make the change before June 1.

John Zech is treasurer of the Bryn Mawr Bowling League and rolls with the South Water Street team.

W. W. Randall is in St. Louis this week on a business trip for the A. L. Randall Co.

C. W. McKellar is beginning to feel like himself again. His poisoned hand is much improved.

Vaughan & Sperry received the first daffodils of the season January 23.

The Percy Jones establishment in the Flower Growers' Market now has a private phone in the selling department, with an extension to the office. Henry Van Gelder says he is receiving offers from a number of firms outside the flower trade for the space he will have for rent after May 1.

Stollery Bros. had the Bidwell-Connery wedding January 25, the decoration including St. Ita's church and the home of the bride's parents. It was one of the largest orders of the season.

F. F. Benthey says Frederick Benthey & Co., at New Castle, are having exceptional success in rooting American Beauty cuttings this season. Over 50,000 are in the sand.

W. E. Lynch says that the orders coming to E. H. Hunt's cut flower department show rose crops to be off over practically the entire country.

G. H. Pieser, president of Kennicott Bros. Co., is now able to be out.

E. C. Amling and family started for California January 25, having shipped their automobile several days previously. They have six in their party.

C. L. Washburn says he spent a good part of Sunday afternoon going through the Bassett & Washburn rose houses and that he thinks it will not be long before the rose shortage is at an end.

During the closing day of the electrical show, in addition to the Fleischman model store there was another display of interest to the trade. It consisted of some of Peter Reinberg's Beauties with a placard to the effect that he makes his plants work twenty-four hours a day by giving them electric light when there is no sun.

A. Henderson & Co. are now the local selling agents for the tagging machine used by most of the wholesale houses.

Winterson's Seed Store has received a shipment of 135,000 canna roots, making something over a carload.

It is reported that E. C. Blameuser & Bro., of Niles Center, Ill., expect to erect a new rose house during the coming summer.

The Chicago Pump Co., 1059 Fulton street, has taken another building adjoining the original quarters and reports that business has been booming. The new addition gives an increase of 100 per cent in floor space.

Lawson has been dropped by nearly all the growers, but Kyle & Foerster point with pride to the stock of a shipper for whom it appears to be doing as well as ever.

The Burlington has announced a new train to the Pacific coast, beginning February 1, that will cut the time to the Twin Cities two and a half hours and twenty-four hours to Seattle. The hour of departure will be 9:45 p. m. The St. Paul is expected to put on a competing train.

J. C. Craig is cutting stock from his new greenhouses on Wolf road, where he recently erected 7,000 feet of glass.

The Market.

Outside of funeral work, there was not much doing last week. So it was a real blessing that the supply of cut flowers was not ahead of that which has been coming in since the holidays. Especially in roses and carnations has the shortage been pronounced. While these just about go around, a few large rush orders would have caused some trouble. Still, with sunshine the last few days of last week and the first two of this week, we look forward to a greater supply of stock and—incidentally—orders. Bulbous stock is coming in more heavily from day to day; even a few light colored tulips have announced the opening of their season.

At the automobile show, which came to a close January 20, the Aug. F. Kellner Co., which had charge of the decorations, used a good lot of wild smilax, palms, cedar and purple beech sprays to good advantage.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports satisfaction with the way the shipping trade keeps up.

August Kellner and Albert Grosskopf spent Saturday afternoon and Sunday at Okauchee lake, looking for fish. But there wasn't much doing there, either.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. received the first white and yellow tulips from the Humboldt avenue place last week.

February 20 the new officers of the Florists' Club will have a chance to show what we may expect the coming season. We ought to honor them with a good attendance.

BUFFALO.

The Market.

The continued scarcity has not let up in the least and prices have been high since the holidays. Never before has this been so noticeable at this time of the year. There are no short roses to speak of, and only a few of the long ones. Beauties have been short and high in price. Bulbous stock is none too plentiful and has been held at 3 cents and 4 cents. Carnations are held at 4 cents to 6 cents and are scarce, some days only a few bunches being received at the commission house. McKinley day does not promise to be such a big affair this year, as the stock does not show any indication of being any larger by that time. Romans and narcissi have sold well, though in other years they have gone to waste by the hundreds at this time of the year.

Various Notes.

A few days ago, when we had one of the cold snaps, the fireman at L. H. Neubeck's fell asleep. When he awoke, he found that the fires were low and, in his efforts to save the stock, he fired up strongly and raised the temperature to about 80 degrees, which did much damage. Mr. Neubeck estimates the loss at about $400 to $500. Fortunately, the Christmas and holiday stock had been disposed of, which meant much.

The scarcity of stock has made it necessary for each buyer to go to the commission house and get his stock. This brought a big number out each morning and some lively times have followed. One morning Mr. Kramer had the misfortune to strike his nose against the sharp end of a counter and the result was a broken nose. It was all done in fun and frolic, but the injury is serious, nevertheless.

Miss Hazel Adams, the bright young bookkeeper for Miss Rebstock, has taken a few days to rest and is spending the time in Rochester.

The bowling parties since the holidays have been much enjoyed and an invitation has been accepted from the Rochester boys to go down and have a visit and a friendly game. The same courtesy is to be returned later by our boys. The boys have been bowling a good game, as the following averages, including all games bowled to date, will show: Cloudsley, 152; Keitch, 127; Neubeck, 157; Sandiford, 162; Streit, 131; Savage, 117; Taylor, 127; Grever, 122; Austin, 114; Taylor, 101; Kasting, 155.

Oliver Scott has been laid up for a few days with the grip. R. A. S.

Somersworth, N. H.—G. S. Ramsburg was recently confined to his home for a while by illness.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The market is buoyant. Roses are not plentiful. Other flowers are in fair supply. Carnations have advanced in price, commanding probably $1 per hundred more than a week ago, but there are indications that conditions will be easier by the end of the week. Spring flowers are coming in more freely. They are selling well. Paper White narcissi are in active demand. Prices average better. Daffodils and tulips are all freely bought. Violets go slowly; prices are only fair. Sweet peas are not abundant. Good stock is at a premium. Callas go briskly. Easter lilies are better stock than a week ago. Cattleyas continue plentiful, with prices low. Cypripediums and dendrobiums are rarely seen. Gardenias are excellent and in fair supply. Good white lilac is plentiful. There is a little purple lilac in the market. Valley has taken a turn for the better. The new crop is fine, but lacks foliage. Acacia pubescens has arrived, also myosotis.

There has been a splendid lot of shipping orders, which has kept the houses that make a specialty of out-of-town business busily employed. Returning to roses: Beauties have advanced in price, influenced by active buying and moderate receipts. There is little change in other varieties, excepting that the lower grades bring unusually high prices—better in proportion to the higher grades than at any time this season. Killarney is most plentiful, with a fair supply of Richmond, Maryland, Bride and White Killarney.

The local demand is checked a little by the short supply. Yellow daisies are not in as much request as they have been, before daffodils and yellow tulips became plentiful. Greens are fairly active.

Building Contracts.

D. T. Connor met Phil in the store of Berger Bros., a few days ago, and proposed that they go to his office for a few minutes. This was a surprise. The lower prices of flowers at the holidays hardly seemed to suggest building. Arrived at Mr. Connor's cheerful office, the following Lord & Burnham contracts were given out: J. Stephenson's Sons, Oak Lane, Pa., one iron frame house, 72x400 feet. This house will be erected on the four-acre lot where Mr. Stephenson has his nursery. It is about a square and a half beyond his home and greenhouses, on the opposite side of the York road, near City line. The width of this house is unusual—seventy-two feet. It will be even-span, with sashbars forty-one feet long on each side, reaching to the header, with ventilation on both sides of the ridge. The angle will be about twenty-nine degrees. The eave plates will be six feet high on each side, with glass surmounting concrete walls. There will be eleven beds in the house, each five feet wide.

Enos Lefever, Lancaster, Pa., will build two houses, each 28x100 feet, semi-iron construction, for carnations.

Stevenson Bros., Baltimore, Md., one house, 43x206 feet, semi-iron construction, for roses.

Stephen Mortensen, Southampton, Pa., one house, 36x175 feet. This is rebuilding to replace and lengthen a 125-foot house that is to be torn down.

M. J. Brinton, Christiana, Pa., one house, semi-iron construction, 40x200 feet, understood to be for carnations.

Mr. Connor also said that the two new houses, 35x150 feet each, that H. M. Weiss & Sons are building at Hat-

Some Splendid New Roses

MELODY

Robert Scott & Son's Introductions

MELODY The New Irish Rose, will fill a long felt want for a good commercial yellow, one of the most beautiful yellows ever put on the market, a remarkably free bloomer, freer than any other rose on the market today. With its rich, glossy green, red-tinged foliage and its beautiful, well formed, yellow bud, it has met with wonderful success wherever we have sold the cut blooms during the past season.

MELODY, own root, $6.00 per dozen; $30.00 per 100; $70.00 per 250; $250.00 per 1000. 2½-inch pots, delivery during March. Orders for cut blooms in quantity on short notice, $10.00, $12.00 and $15.00 per 100.

KILLARNEY needs no introduction to the rose growers of this country.

DOUBLE KILLARNEY has all its good points and in addition is a stronger grower, has far more petals and larger flowers.

DOUBLE KILLARNEY, own root, $4.00 per dozen; $20 00 per 100; $40.00 per 250; $150.00 per 1000. For grafted, $10.00 extra per 100. 2½-inch pots, delivery during March.

Orders on both these roses are and have been coming in far ahead of our expectations, including some of the largest orders ever booked on new roses. Our advice is, get your orders in early, as they will be filled strictly in rotation. Write for our Illustrated List, containing the introducers' descriptions.

DOUBLE KILLARNEY

MRS. AARON WARD $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000; own root, January delivery. $25.00 per 100 for strong grafts in March.

E. G. Hill's Introduction

ROSE QUEEN We believe, has a wonderful future; something very distinct, entirely different from any rose now on the market. We are booking orders for March delivery, 50c each; $35.00 per 100 (25 at 100 rate); $300.00 per 1000; $5.00 per 100 additional for grafts.

A. N. Pierson's Introductions

PRINCE DE BULGARIE Cut blooms sold in New York as Mrs. Taft. Large flowers of a beautiful shell pink, perfect stems and foliage. As this is such a strikingly beautiful rose, besides being a good grower and free bloomer, it is sure to be a big success commercially.

Grafted stock, 2¼-inch pots, $3.00 per dozen; $20.00 per 100; $180.00 per 1000. Own root stock, 2½-inch pots, $2.50 per dozen; $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

LADY CROMWELL A sport of My Maryland, same habits excepting in color, a shell pink outside, shading deeper towards the center, which is a creamy yellow.

Grafted plants, 75c each; $6.00 per dozen; $10.00 per 25; $17.50 per 50; $30.00 per 100; $70.00 per 250; $250.00 per 1000.

DARK PINK KILLARNEY A sport of Killarney, identical in habits with the parent, excepting much darker in color.

Grafted plants, 2¼-inch pots, 40c each; $3.00 per dozen; $20.00 per 100; $180.00 per 1000.

EXTRAORDINARY NOVELTY

Kunderd's New Ruffled Gladioli

Gladiolus Kunderdi "Glory"

The first of a new type, having petals with ruffled and wavy edges, to approach the form of a Cattleya Orchid.

A sensational advance in the progress of this valuable flower.

Broad, expanded, wide-open flowers, paired by twos, fall all the same direction and are carried on straight, stout stalks, which are never less than four feet in height. From four to eight flowers are open at one time.

Color: Delicate cream pink, with a neat, attractive crimson stripe through the center of each lower petal.

Splendid for forcing or outdoor growing.

The opinions of the three greatest living authorities:

Orange, Mass., August 10, 1908.

"Ruffled" is in bloom. Grand does not begin to express it. It is the sans pareil of all gladioli.

Sincerely yours, L. MERTON GAGE.
Now Secretary of American Gladiolus Society.

U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Plant Industry—Chico, Cal., January 2, 1910.

I am glad to hear of your continued success with the ruffled gladioli. The cream-colored variety grown at Little Silver, N. J., for trial two years ago is very beautiful indeed; good color, fine spike and substance and exquisite in finish. I should regard it as an excellent garden variety.

Yours very sincerely, W. VAN FLEET, Expert in Charge.

Santa Rosa, Cal., November 22, 1910.

The ruffled gladioli which you sent me last spring bloomed nicely this summer. It is a fine, light color, elegantly ruffled and a strong, healthy grower. The ruffled gladiolus, like the ruffled sweet-peas, has a refined appearance which the common flat ones do not possess.

Yours very truly, LUTHER BURBANK.

The Cut Flower Situation.

The conditions in the cut flower market are so different now from the conditions of five years ago that the grower who wishes to succeed must give the timing of crops careful study. The battle between plants and cut flowers as holiday gifts has been fought more fiercely than ever before, and plants have won all over the country. The plant victory has been made decisive by the improved culture of all cut flowers, especially roses. An increase in production means decrease in prices. Prices have fallen to a point that is certain to make the production of heavy crops at the holidays less desirable in the future. These conditions, wisely met, will broaden our market. The rotation or scattering of crops through the winter will be of great benefit; that is, to avoid the overproduction of mid-December and the scarcity of mid-January, as nearly as weather and market permit. A more even supply of staple flowers is now possible; given that supply, the market will improve.

Intelligent growers realize that a crop of cut flowers for a given holiday, unlike a crop of blooming plants, is a gamble. You may strike it exactly, but unless the reward is large the loss from the lower value of the "just befores" and the "just afters" pulls down the average. Part of the Christmas crop cut now would bring a better average price, besides giving a better tone to business. Grower, wholesaler, retailer and consumer would all benefit, and steady progress on broader lines would be assured in the future.

Paul J. Klingsporn returned from Chicago last week. He visited the E. C. Amling Co. on the opening day in its new place, Poehlmann Bros. Co., and other wholesale houses, and was much interested in the flowers and business methods of the Great Central market.

H. Bayersdorfer reports business active, with heavy receipts of Easter goods.

A. B. Cartledge and Robert A. Craig paid their long-planned visit to Norwood January 24.

Robert Shock, of M. Rice & Co., returned from the south last week. He reports great floral activity.

The Florex Gardens plan putting their big house now in tomatoes into roses next season. The tomatoes are doing so well that a place must be found for them somewhere on the place.

Robert Scott & Son have a red sport from Killarney, that Edward Schwartz is carefully nursing. Phil.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market's pessimism vanished Wednesday, January 18, when the improvement in prices began. The last half of the week developed a cheerful outlook, and this continues. There was improvement all along the line, and especially in roses, every variety sharing in the uplift, especially American Beauties, as high as 75 cents each being paid for the selected ones. Large quantities have been used at the swell dinners, especially the banquets where Governor Dix and President Taft were the attractions, and at the Gould dinner preliminary to the wedding February 7. The increase in values was legitimate, for shipments shortened abruptly after the profusion of the weeks since Christmas. Some of the older prophets think there will be a reaction before the present week ends, but all branches of the trade are rejoicing in the change for the better.

Carnations are plentiful and slightly higher. In all other lines the advance has been small, but a steadier tone prevails. Orchids alone remain below normal. The supply is far in excess of other years and the price about half; 40 cents was top last week. The quality is high. The best gardenias bring $5 a dozen, for there are few of them. The poorer grades depend on the street merchants for an outlet. Lilies are firmer, and the best command $12 per hundred. Valley remains at $3 per hundred for top, and there is plenty of it. Violets never go above 50 cents, even with the increased demand; 40 cents was high water mark most of last week and the street men were buying the surplus at $2 per thousand. Sweet peas, tulips, hyacinths, daffodils, freesia, narcissi, and lilac are all profuse in quantity and excellent in quality.

Various Notes.

The Tarrytown Horticultural Society's twelfth annual dinner was given at the Hotel Tarry, January 18, and the attendance and menu overtopped all its predecessors. Floral decorations, as usual, were handsome and abundant. Pierson's Killarneys and ferns were much admired, as was the new red seedling carnation, Meadow Hall, from Wm. C. Roberts, gardener for Frederick Potter, of Ossining. There was an abundance of orchestral melody and the flow of oratory continued until the 11:40 train arrived. The speakers were Messrs. Raymond, Brown, Pierson, Tricker, Everett, Conine, Dinkel, Odell and the press representatives. Mr. Pierson's address centered around the National Flower Show at Boston, which great event never leaves his consciousness, asleep or awake.

The ball of the Greek-American Florists' Association, January 18, at the Grand Central Palace, was a great success; nearly 4,000 tickets were sold, and it was estimated that 3,500 were in attendance. Messrs. Nicholas, Cotsonas, Lecakes, Fellouris, Pappas, Polycranus and a host of other Greek florists assisted in welcoming their guests and in keeping the ball rolling. An orchestra of fifty pieces gives some idea of the liberal management. The decorations were elaborate.

The Glen Cove banquet took place January 25.

The New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association celebrates Thursday, February 2, and the Yonkers Society courteously postponed its dinner from the same date to February 9, to give its members the opportunity of visiting the plantsmen at their annual feast.

Retailers are preparing for St. Valentine's day. Boxes of cut flowers, with elaborate ribbon accompaniments, will be popular.

Reed & Keller's aeroplanes, with provision for floral embellishment, are seen in many of the retail windows.

The windows of the Growers' Cut Flower Co. were filled, January 21, with chrysanthemums sent by Brozart, of Bloomfield, N. J. Manager Coan says they brought $2 to $4 a dozen.

The New York Florists' Club's meeting, February 13, promises an unusual treat in the illustrated lecture by Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md.

A. Moltz & Co. have greatly enlarged their facilities in their reconstructed store in the Coogan building.

The trade sent many tokens of its sympathy to James Hammond, for the funeral of his son.

J. B. Nugent attended the funeral of the veteran Henry C. Siebrecht, at Astoria, January 18. The rooms were filled with handsome orchid and violet wreaths, and a large attendance demonstrated the sympathy of the neighborhood for the bereaved family.

John E. Lager, of Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., lectured January 25, at the Museum of Natural History, on "The Culture of Cattleyas," before the Orchid section of the Horticultural Society of New York. Exhibitions are held the second Wednesday of each month.

John G. Slater, formerly with Breck & Sons, Boston, and later of Los Angeles, is now with S. D. Woodruff & Sons, 82 Dey street.

The returning New Yorkers from the executive meeting at Boston, Messrs. Pierson, Traendly and Bunyard, report everything progressing swimmingly for the great National Flower Show. Mr. Pierson says the premium list may be advanced to $15,000, that nearly every foot of space is taken and that the world has never seen a floral exhibition to compare with it.

The Market.

Business since the holidays has been good and local florists have been on the jump right along. Although the demand for funeral work has not been heavy, there has been a steady run on it and each day a few nice pieces were sent out. Weddings, balls and table work have kept things lively and some big jobs were put up. The scarcity of stock has been keenly felt at times, but the prospects in this respect are a little brighter at present, as jonquils, tulips and other bulbous stock are beginning to come in.

Roses and carnations have been as good as cash. The latter have been rather scarce, but the outlook is now a little better and, with a few bright days, they will be in fairly good supply. Violets and orchids are the one best bet for corsage bouquets and are used up as fast as they come in. Gardenias are not quite so popular, as they are hard to get here in good shape; what few arrive here in good condition are disposed of. Valley has been in good supply and is the only flower that has been up to the demand, with the exception of Paper Whites. Some good mignonette is to be had, as well as sweet peas and freesias. Green goods have been rather scarce. Azaleas, rhododendrons, cyclamens, primroses and a small quantity of lilacs about cover the plant line, and they are in good shape. K. R.

Six Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand. If you are the only florist in your city represented here, you get the orders coming into your territory from other florists. If you are not represented and "the other fellow" is—we can leave it to you what becomes of these desirable orders.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

Business remained moderately good last week—no rush, simply an ordinary call. There were no weddings or funerals of importance, and in consequence there was merely the daily run of trade. Among the noticeable features that are missing this year are the coming-out parties, of which there were so many immediately following the new year of 1910.

There is plenty of everything at the present time, and rarely a day finds a demand for anything that cannot be immediately met. Carnations now range from $2 to $3 per hundred; roses, $3 to $10; tulips, $2 to $3; narcissi, $1.50 to $2; mignonette, $2 to $4; violets, 25c to 50c; lily of the valley, $3 to $5; daffodils, $3 to $4; Roman hyacinths, $1.50 to $3; freesias, $1.50 to $3; Easter lilies, $10 to $12.50; acacia, $1 per bunch; callas, $8 to $12 per hundred, and orchids, $4 to $6 per dozen.

Club Banquet.

The fourteenth annual dinner of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, held Monday evening, January 16, was one of the most successful in the recent history of the organization. Four long tables extended the full length of Swarts' lodge hall, 98 Westminster street, and every seat was taken. The tables were decorated with small palms and araucarias in rustic baskets furnished by Eugene Appleton, white and pink carnations furnished by Robert Johnston and Mr. Macrae, and a mound of dried grasses by James Dillon.

After the dinner, President Johnston introduced ex-President William E. Chappell as toastmaster. During the evening, interspersed with the addresses, vocal and instrumental music was rendered by H. Smith, F. Northrup, William P. Lynch and Raymond P. Tully.

Thomas Gray, of Boston, in responding to the toast of "Floriculture and Horticulture of the Sister City," paid a tribute to the memory of ex-President William Appleton, who recently died. He gave an account of the pioneers of floriculture in and around Boston, calling attention to several growers, who, he said, had made not only national, but international reputations by their achievements, and concluded by extending an invitation to the club to attend the National Flower Show at Boston in March.

Prof. Wheeler spoke at considerable length upon the debt to agriculture which the cities owe. Other speakers included Charles W. Smith, on behalf of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, of which he has been secretary for twenty-one years; Michael Sweeney, who was introduced as the "Chauncey Depew" of the club; James B. Canning, who spoke on the subject of "Progress in Design Work"; Charles Macnair, on "Ways and Means of Delivering Flowers"; H. Howard Pepper, on "Outdoor Growing of Hybrid Roses," and others.

The committee in charge of the dinner consisted of James Dillon, Alexander Macrae and H. C. Neubrand.

The Market.

The market was in an unsatisfactory condition all of last week and it seemed that everything shortened up together. The wholesalers were not able to fill nearly all the advance orders that were booked by the local trade, and shipping orders had to be turned down completely. The cause of this shortage is said to be the continuous dark weather for the last ten days. The shortage bids fair to continue throughout this week.

The greatest shortage was in roses and there was a great clamor for the few that came in, especially for white varieties. In carnations the supply was good, but the demand was so great that the common sorts and splits brought $4 per hundred. The white varieties had the call. California violets were the only flowers on which orders could be filled completely. All bulbous stock could be classed among the scarce articles, though usually plentiful at this time. Some excellent tulips came in, for which $5 per hundred was asked.

There were a few large and small social affairs last week, which used up a lot of fancy stock, and the death of a number of prominent persons caused a heavy demand for white stock.

On Monday, January 23, the weather became clear, with warm sunshine, and there were hopes that stock would be more plentiful by the end of the week,

Various Notes.

G. V. Reburn, of the firm of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, spent last week calling on the trade here.

Jacob Pflueger, who some few years back was in the employ of the McCulloughs and Critchells in Cincinnati, O., is now a resident of this city. He is an expert bowler and is proprietor of the Rex alleys, at Sixth and Pine streets.

W. H. Kruse, the Arsenal street florist, reports a big run of funeral work last week, with many unusually large designs.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. is putting in a hot water heating plant at its store at 1316 Pine street. Mr. Smith says business has been great all the week, with stock scarce, clean-up sales every day, and good prices.

Fred Foster, of the Paris Floral Co., took a run up to Mexico, Mo., last week, to testify in a damage case for a florist there, against the city of Mexico, for $2,000. The florist states that the city water flooded his plant and put out his fires, and a large part of his stock was frozen.

John Quinn, in business for a few years at 1000 North Grand avenue, has closed his place and left with his family for California. The place was put in the hands of Wm. C. Smith, for sale.

Vincent Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, says that trade has been great all through this month. Their Cass avenue store, too, has been doing well, in charge of Henry Kahrs.

Henry Berning has been receiving good consignments of roses, violets and carnations all the week, though in general there has been a great scarcity of roses and a big demand.

The C. Young & Sons Co. has the new spring catalogue in print and says it will be the best the firm has yet got out. Wm. C. Young, the manager at their greenhouse plant, says the firm is in great shape for the coming spring plant trade, and is prepared to handle double the business of last spring.

Charles Schoenle, of the Schoenle Floral Co., purchased the delivery outfit of John Quinn, who closed up shop last week. Mr. Schoenle is one of the good workers in behalf of the Florists' Club.

and the Metropolitan Floral Co., at Grand and Olive streets, are attracting many buyers in that neighborhood by their handsome window displays of fancy cut stock and blooming plants. All say business has been good.

C. A. Kuehn received good sized shipments of carnations last week, of extra good quality. Shipping trade in supplies has been good here. George Schriefer says everything cleaned up nicely all the week.

The banquet of the Retail Florists' Association, at the Marquette hotel, January 16, was a big success. President Sanders acted as toastmaster and called on all the wholesalers for talks. The attendance numbered twenty. All said it was a most enjoyable affair and would be repeated each year.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., E. L. Page, Greene, N. Y.; First Vice-pres., L. H. Vaughan, Chicago; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Twenty-ninth annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 20 to 22, 1911.

CONGRESSMAN MANN also has a pure paint bill.

W. S. HILL, of Alexandria, S. D., was recently elected president of the Dakota Improved Seed Co., of Mitchell, S. D., and will assume active direction of its affairs.

THE John B. Davis Seed Co., Sturgeon Bay, Wis., has filed articles of incorporation. The incorporators are: John B. Davis, August Rieboldt, Joseph Wolter and Joseph Schauer.

A BILL was introduced in the upper house of the Missouri legislature January 13, requiring all seeds exposed for sale to be labeled with the percentage of germination and the percentage of impurities.

THE National Board of Trade has been in session at Washington. W. Atlee Burpee, one of the delegates of the American Seed Trade Association, was host at a breakfast given in the New Willard hotel, January 17, for the entire membership.

ANOTHER pure seed bill has been introduced in the Ohio state legislature. The measure is practically the same as a number of others which have come up in the last few years, but which have thus far failed of enactment into law. It prescribes impracticable percentages of purity.

THE Diamond Seed Co., Springfield, Mo., has filed articles of incorporation. The capital stock is $25,000, divided into 250 shares of $100 each, all subscribed and paid. William J. Wood holds 105 shares, Theo. H. Sander forty shares, and Everett Beazley 105 shares. These three are the directors of the corporation.

THE interior of one of the warehouses of the Texas Seed & Floral Co., at Dallas, Tex., collapsed January 9. The building was used as a supplementary storage place and consisted of two stories above ground and two basements. The upper floors gave way under their load and dropped into the sub-basement. Four men at work in the building were caught in the crash, but were saved from injury by some big protecting timbers.

Visited New York: J. S. Michael, of the Sioux City Seed and Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia.

The Davis Nursery and Seed Co., Utica, N. Y., now is located in its new store at 55 Blandina street.

H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, is distributing E. A. Kunderd's much talked of gladioli this season.

Ernest A. Bailey & Co., growers of calla bulbs at Santa Cruz, Cal., has contracted the entire 1911 crop to one firm.

Otto Schwill, the Memphis seedsman, is to read a paper before the State Nurserymen's Association at Nashville, January 27.

Joseph Mollett, Jr., lost a finger in the machinery operated by the Gurney Seed & Nursery Co., Yankton, S. D., January 19.

W. C. Kaber, formerly with the Kaber Co., florists at Laporte, Ind., has removed to Orland, Cal., where he purposes to grow salvia seed for the trade.

Oscar Royce, a scientific farmer near Shenandoah, Ia., is starting for Europe, representing the Henry Field Seed Co. and others, on a tour of investigation.

The J. G. Peppard Seed Co., of Kansas City, Mo., has now become a corporation, with a capital stock of $100,000. The incorporators are J. G. Peppard, Julia L. Peppard and J. G. Peppard, Jr.

A press telegram from Los Angeles, Cal., states that a marriage license was issued, January 24, to Roberta Buist De Janon and Stephen Glaser. Miss De Janon is the granddaughter of the late Robert Buist, Philadelphia.

Next week, February 2, there will be quite a gathering of seedsmen at Washington for the hearing on the pure seed bill. Three organizations will be represented, the American Seed Trade Association, the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association and the Wholesale Seedsmen's League.

IMPORTS.

The imports of seed through the port of New York for the week ending January 14 were as follows:

Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.	Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.
Annatto ...	3	$ 25	Millet 1170		$3439
Caraway ..	550	2950	Mustard ...	396	2637
Celery	1	64	Rape	414	2891
Clover	74	1218	Sugar beet...	1127	4970
Grass 1213		18663	Other		6829

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $15,495.

THE MODERN SEED STORE.

Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, has its new building at 518 Market street in thorough working order. This result of twenty years of experience in developing a large seed business, from a modest beginning, is full of interest. System in every detail, order and neatness, form the foundation on which a great structure has been built in a score of years. Each problem has been carefully studied and mastered until the machinery that requires over 100 employees to operate it runs even more smoothly than the first attempt of twenty years ago that required but four assistants to put and keep it in motion.

The present building, owned by the company, is an L-shaped structure containing five floors and a basement, 59,000 square feet of floor space all told. It is light, airy and easily accessible in every part. The first floor, with handsome show windows on Market street, is devoted to the salesroom, where seeds, bulbs and implements are displayed and sold to the transient trade. Here are also located the offices of Fred. J. Michell and Fred. J. Michell, Jr., and the cashier's department.

In the rear, opening on Ludlow street, are the shipping and receiving departments, the loading platform covered with a sheet iron shed for protection in stormy weather.

The balcony in the annex of the first floor contains the administration department, as well as the advertising, purchasing, estimating, correspondence and telephone order departments, and the bureau of adjustment.

The second floor is devoted to seeds. The flower seed department, in charge of Franklin Ely, covers the front space, receiving light from Market street. The seeds are arranged on both sides in the Heller system. Each drawer bears a clear label, with the name of its contents. Down the center of the floor is a long table where seeds are measured and put in packets and where orders are filled. A feature of this department, and of the whole second floor, is the absence of ladders. The ceiling is thirteen feet from the ground and seed drawers extend all the way to the ceiling. The space is divided halfway between ceiling and floor by a railing-guarded balcony reached from the end by stairs. The railing is made more convenient by a shelf running its entire length, where the drawers can be placed when in use. The floor under the balcony is lit by electricity, with the idea of less danger of fire, but in the open space over the sorting tables Welsbach inverted gas burners are used, producing the maximum of illumination.

The system employed in the flower seed department is especially interesting. The stock account shows exactly when any given variety of seed was received, whence it came, the quantity, who filled it into packets, with what measure it was filled, how many packets and the date when filled. The stock account for each year also shows how much of each variety of seed, bulb, fertilizer, implement, etc., was bought, how much was sold, and how much carried over. Of course, the exact costs also appear in proper place and form.

The vegetable seed department, under Joseph F. Bradley, occupies the main portion of the second floor. Each detail of its physical development has been as carefully planned and carried out, with a view to its special needs, as in the flower seed department adjoining. Economy of space is of especial value in such a business, and every inch is made to give a return.

Another point is the system with which orders are filled. Order sheets go from department to department, each department filling that portion of the order that properly belongs to it, marking the item as filled and passing it on to the next, the packing department filling the last items on the order. When shipped it works back, automatically, as it were, to the point whence it started on its way to be filled.

The Ludlow street end of the second floor, in the annex, is devoted to the accounting and financial departments. Here is the private office of Henry F. Michell, where the chief, himself, was seen in the act, it may be, of closing a deal that will benefit flower lovers all over the country.

The Baker-Vawter charging system has dethroned the method that ruled for seventeen years. So satisfactory has B.-V. proved that its rule grows stronger month by month. Here are the billing machines, with which each item of each order requiring an invoice is three times entered simultaneously, one copy for the customer in the form of a bill, one for the stock clerk, and the other for the accounting department. Different colored paper indicates at a glance for which of the three purposes each copy is intended.

The retail sales, not requiring an invoice, are kept in alphabetical binders by themselves. The walls of this department are lined with filing devices containing the orders, original and billing machine copies, while in one mammoth steel safe sixty cabinet drawers contain the names and addresses of all customers of the house, all arranged with the alphabet divided into 1,200 combinations of letters. Here, too, the different color plan is adopted. A blue card indicates the name upon it to be a retail customer on the credit list; a white card indicates a cash customer; a lemon-yellow card, a private gardener; while an orange card is a florist.

The last of the catalogues were being sent out; here, too, the color system was in use. Blue, white, lemon-yellow or orange tag on a drawer indicated that all the retail, cash, private gardener or florist names in that drawer had their catalogues addressed to them.

The dressing rooms at the extreme end of this floor, as well as in the basement, are models of neatness. Each

"YOU HAVE THE

FINEST CANNAS IN THE WORLD

I CONGRATULATE YOU"

RECENTLY remarked the late Mr. Geo. H. Brown, landscape gardener in charge of the grounds around the United States public buildings of Washington, D. C. He planted our Cannas exclusively and with them decorated the grounds about the nation's capitol and the White House. Thousands of people from all parts of the United States visit these grounds each year, therefore they dare not plant anything except the best. We wish to introduce to the florists of every state in the Union. After seventeen years of the most painstaking work, our vice-president, Mr. Antoine Wintzer, has introduced practically a new race of the gladiolus type of Canna. All the experts who have seen them unhesitatingly pronounce our improved varieties far superior to those generally known and grown.

We are confident that you can grow these varieties well under exactly the same treatment given ordinary sorts. We are also confident that your customers will invariably take them in preference to the older varieties.

the women have a rest and reading room for use during lunch hour.

The third floor is devoted to sundries. Sundries are specialties of the house of Michell. Briefly expressed, sundries mean that when a customer gets his seeds he can get everything else of every kind that he may require to make the seeds, plants and bulbs produce what he has a right to expect of them. It may be insecticides, tools, fertilizers, or anything not covered by these classes. It means an immense convenience to the customers and is no small item in the business of the house. The fundamental principle in this department is that only the best of everything is carried and sold; not a fancy article, but a sterling article. The success of this system is shown in the fact that a year ago the house claims to have sold more high grade steel rakes, forks and hoes than any other jobbing house in the city.

The arrangement in the third floor is practically that of the second—a place for everything and everything in its place—the only difference being that sundries are not classified alphabetically, as are flower and vegetable seeds, but they are classified "commonsensibly," so to speak, each class of articles by itself. When a bin is empty, or nearly so, the stock clerk sends in a requisition to the purchasing agent for more stock, which he approves and orders, unless the season is over. The house prides itself on carrying little or no dead stock.

The fourth floor is devoted to grass seed. The seed is largely grown in this country; some in Europe. The stock purchased on contract is all delivered now. The floor was filled with sacks of all staple varieties. This is a department where values mount surprisingly: it was remarked that $40,000 would not cover the cost of the stock on this floor. One space of perhaps twenty feet square piled high with sacks of one variety is worth $4,000. Light, order and cleanliness are noteworthy here as elsewhere. One corner by a side window, partitioned off from the main floor, is the mixing room, where the various mixtures adapted to special purposes are carefully made, with the proportion of each seed used recorded. At the rear is the cleaning machine, worked by an electric motor, used for separating the seed from the chaff.

The fifth floor is devoted to stock, usually the surplus of that which is carried in carloads, such as tobacco stems, sheep manure, and fertilizers, the odor of which makes them undesirable on the other floors.

A passenger elevator at the front of the building communicates with every floor; a freight elevator at the rear does duty for all merchandise. A pneumatic tube between the bookkeeping department and the cashier's desk saves many steps and valuable minutes.

The basement is devoted, in the front, to the bulb department in charge of

CANNA ROOTS—CANNA ROOTS

S. & W. Co.'s Northern Grown, Plump, Strong Roots.

ALLEMANIA. An improved Italia, with more numerous flowers, of immense size. Outer petals scarlet, with broad yellow border; inside scarlet and dark red. One of the best of the Giant, or Orchid-flowered section. Height, 5 to 6 feet.
AUSTRIA. Pure canary-yellow; large open flowers with reddish dots in center of the two inside petals. Height, 5 feet.
BURBANK. Color rich, canary-yellow, with a few carmine spots in throat. Height, 5 feet.
LOUISIANA. New American Orchid-flowered, strong, vigorous-growing variety, producing a dense mass of glossy green foliage, and vivid, scarlet flowers, often measuring 7 inches across. Imagine a plant with four to five main stems, each one crowned with 30 to 40 flowers open at one time. The effect is gorgeous and indescribable. Height, 7 feet.
PENNSYLVANIA. The flowers are often 7 to 8 inches across, with petals 2¼ inches broad. Fine red color. Height, 6 feet.

S. & W. Co.'s Best Ten Varieties

ALSACE. A beautiful creamy white-flowering variety used very extensively for contrasting red and pink-flowering sorts. Height 4 feet.
BRANDYWINE. Brandywine is thoroughly handsome all season through. It has a luxurious growth of very dark foliage and is heavily topped with a magnificent display of brilliant red flowers. Height 3½ feet.
BUTTERCUP. True bright buttercup-yellow; always shows up bright and clear, and is undoubtedly the best and most beautiful pure bright, deep, canary-yellow Canna in existence. (Award of Merit from R. H. S.) Height 3½ feet.
DAVID HARUM. Flowers large size with well-rounded petals of good substance; color bright vermilion-scarlet dotted with crimson spots; foliage bronze. Height 3 feet.
EXPRESS. Color scarlet-crimson. Its dwarf habit and large flower commend it very strongly to all those who would have an excellent bedding or edging variety; it is guaranteed to be well up to expectations. Height 2½ feet.
INDIANA. Glistening golden orange, daintily marked, striped and red. Single blossoms often measuring 7 inches across. Height 5 feet.
KING HUMBERT. Of superlative beauty and by far the finest of all bronze-leaved Cannas. The enormous trusses are made up of flowers that measure 6 inches across and are a rich salmon-scarlet distinctly and numerously flecked with deep crimson markings. It is a free bloomer and with its rich, coppery bronze, massive foliage, it produces an effect both bold and striking. Height 5 feet. Doz., 75c.; per 100, $4.00; per 1000, $30.00.
LOUISIANA. New American Orchid-flowered, strong, vigorous-growing variety, producing a dense mass of glossy green foliage, and vivid scarlet flowers, often measuring 7 inches across. Imagine a plant with four to five main stems, each one crowned with 30 to 40 flowers open at one time. The effect is gorgeous and indescribable. Height 7 feet.
PACIFIC BEAUTY. Very heavy, black foliage, striped and variegated. Flowers orange-crimson.
SHENANDOAH. An abundant bloomer with waxy rose-pink flowers and rich, dark foliage, highly ornamental.

General List Large-Flowering Cannas

The following varieties have been chosen from a list of almost 75 varieties, and are in every way the best sorts.

DR. NANSEN. 5 feet. Yellow flowers.
RICHARD WALLACE. A magnificent, large yellow-flowering variety; green, well-shaped foliage, growing about 5 feet high.
BLACK BEAUTY. 5 feet. It seems to us impossible to exaggerate the beauty and richness of this Canna. It undoubtedly has the darkest and most magnificent foliage of all the purple-leaved Cannas. The leaves are a black shining purple, very rich and glossy, and with edges crimped and wavy. Flowers are few and small, but for a foliage plant, and for producing an effect of tropical luxuriance. Black Beauty heads the list.
CHAUTAUQUA. 4 feet. Flowers pure, rich scarlet, intensely vivid; luxuriant, tropical foliage, prettily bronzed. Especially valuable for massing.
EGANDALE. 4 feet. A fine bronze-leaved variety; pretty cherry-red flowers, borne well above the foliage; handsome and distinct.
MLLE. BERAT. 4 to 5 feet. Strong grower with dark pink flowers; one of the best.
FLORENCE VAUGHAN. 5 feet. Large trusses of canary-yellow flowers heavily dotted with deep orange-scarlet; broad, heavy, bright green foliage.
ROSEMAWR. Extra-fine large-flowering, dark rose-colored variety; a fine bedder.
QUEEN CHARLOTTE. 4 feet. One of the finest of the gilt-edge sorts. Large trusses and large flowers of blood-red petals, broadly banded with bright canary-yellow. Handsome, deep bluish green foliage. Exceedingly decorative.
MME. CROZY. 4 feet. All things considered, still one of the best for bedding. A constant, free and reliable bloomer with large trusses set well above the foliage. Flowers large, bright orange-scarlet, lightly bordered with yellow. Bright green, massive foliage.

Crimson and Scarlet-Flowering Varieties

BLACK WARRIOR. 4 feet. A very dark crimson, claimed by the originator to be the darkest known variety.
CHARLES HENDERSON. 4 feet. The standard of excellence in Crimson Cannas.
PRES. McKINLEY. 3 feet. One of the very best Cannas for bedding; luxuriant in foliage and dwarf in habit. The trusses are large and numerous and the flowers large, brilliant crimson, shaded with scarlet; showy and striking.
CRIMSON BEDDER. Similar to Charles Henderson.
RED CROSS. 5 feet. Large flowers, shaded dark red.
WM. BOFINGER. 5 feet. The brightest and richest scarlet.

All the above varieties, dozen, 40c; per 100, $2.50; per 1000, $20.00.

Philip Freud, where gloxinias and begonias, just arrived, are now being sorted for distribution. This department is kept especially cool, as is the grass seed department on the fourth floor.

The rear of the basement, and by far the larger portion, is devoted to the packing department, where all outgoing shipments are collected, properly packed, and sent to the shipping department on a large electric floor elevator which travels to the floor above only. A steel chute from pavement to basement saves time on the bulky and unbreakable articles. The receiving department is opposite the shipping room, and neither articles going out nor those coming in conflict.

Returning to the shipping department on the floor above, the system of checking and tagging is wonderfully complete. The various express companies have their special sections set apart, where packages intended for them are placed. The stock that goes out by freight or that is delivered in the city is taken by teams.

THE OSTRICH PLUME CELOSIA "PRIDE OF CASTLE GOULD" is an entirely distinct type of the Celosia Pyramidalis Plumosa, and surpasses by far anything thus far placed on the market. This strain has through constant culture and careful selection and hybridization proven its superiority to anything similar ever offered.

The following four strong points speak for themselves:

HABIT OF PLANT. Pyramidal, compact growth of from two to three feet, with immense, extra fine-feathered heads, gives the plant a most striking and unique appearance.

MARKET VALUE. The flowers being of such bright and intense color, and the plant of erect growth and beautiful foliage, it creates the greatest admiration, wherever shown, and establishes a demand for itself that every plant-lover must appreciate.

COLOR. The following distinct colors are among these hybrids: Blood-red, real Carmine, Golden Yellow, Salmon, Deep Scarlet, Dark Orange and Wine Red. However, by variation, there will be found many more shades; the self-coloring will be surprising.

DECORATIVE VALUE. As a pot plant, with its quick-growing habit, we believe there is no finer plant known at the present time, wherefrom in the course of six months a most excellent stock of salable plants in every size can be obtained. As a bedding plant, it cannot be equaled by any other annual for its profusion of flowers and variety of striking colors, and we consider it the queen of all decorative annuals where showing groups are desired, and when given a fine, sunny exposure it will develop to its highest perfection.

We offer seed for the first year strictly from pot-grown plants, furnished by the introducers, Messrs. Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.

All packets we send out will contain mixed seeds.

DUTY ON GIANT SPURRY SEED.

The International Forwarding Co., Chicago, claimed that giant spurry seed was free of duty under paragraph 668, tariff act of 1909, providing for "grass seeds." General Appraiser Waite wrote the following opinion for the board: "Some testimony was taken in this case. We do not think any distinction can be made between what is known as giant spurry and what is known as common spurry. In G. A. 6428 (T. D. 27578) we had occasion to pass on common spurry. The record in that case and the testimony in this case satisfy us that, for duty purposes, the seed of the giant spurry and the common spurry should be treated as the same. Spurry is used for forage purposes and cured for hay in much the same way as sainfoin, vetch, and clover. The International Encyclopedia (vol. 18, p. 475) has this to say about spurry:

Spurry is a weed sometimes cultivated as a forage crop. Corn spurry or common spurry (Spergula arvensis) is an annual from 6 to 12 inches high, producing a tangled mass of succulent

Gloxinia, New Emperor (Gloxinia Hybrida Imperialis). A new type, a cross between Sinningia Regina and the best types of Hybrid Gloxinias. This not only covers a full range of colors as in the ordinary type of Gloxinia, but the foliage also is very ornamental, the leaves being of a rich bronzy red color, with strong projecting white veins. The flowers all stand erect, thus showing to best advantage. We offer in choice mixture, $1.25 per doz.; $8.00 per 100.

FANCY LEAVED CALADIUMS.

We have the largest stock in the world. Over 400 varieties, including not only all the good standard sorts, but many new varieties never offered in quantity before.

This is one of the most valuable plants for decoration of the Florists' store window during the summer months and during recent years we have sold many thousands for this purpose. We especially recommend the choice rare and new varieties at $15.00 per 100 for this purpose.

We offer special selections according to variety as follows:

Choice Standard Varieties. The finest collection ever offered at the price, $1.75 per doz.; $12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000.

Choice Rare and New Varieties. A splendid assortment, especially valuable for the retail florist, $2.25 per doz.; $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

stems with numerous whorled linear leaves. It prefers sandy or stony soil, upon which it is often planted as a green manure and as a soiling crop for sheep and cattle. * * * Giant spurry (Spergula maxima), by many botanists not regarded as a species distinct from the above, is similar to but larger than common spurry.

"The only question before us is whether the seed in question here is a grass seed. We had occasion to go into this matter in G. A. 6350 (T. D. 27306) in connection with an importation of vetch seed. Without repeating what we said there, the conclusions there reached we think are sound, and that case, with G. A. 6428 (supra), governs the case at bar. We find, therefore, that the seed here in question is a grass seed within the meaning of paragraph 668 of the law of 1909."

COBÆA SCANDENS.

I would like to know the proper time to plant Cobæa scandens seed so as to have good sized plants for planting-out time. What temperature should they be kept in to do best? G. H. P.

Sow the seed early in March in an ordinary greenhouse where a night temperature of 50 degrees is maintained. The seeds will soon germinate and must be potted off singly before they become crowded. In order to have extra strong plants, give them a shift into 4-inch or 5-inch pots after they are well established in small ones. Use a stake on each plant to tie the shoots to, or they will soon become entangled. C. W.

CABBAGE PLANTS.

Could Early Wakefield cabbages be grown in pots to be set out in May? What time would you start the seed to have strong plants from 4-inch pots? I am located in Ohio. B. W.

Yes, early cabbages can be started in pots, just the same as tomatoes, and can be grown to nice plants when put in the field, but they are seldom grown in pots. Market gardeners have been known to grow them in 2-inch pots and have nice little plants for the fields, but 4-inch pots would take up entirely too much room for such cheap stuff as cabbage plants. A cabbage is worth only about 5 cents when cut from the garden, while you ought to grow something on your benches that would net you more than that at wholesale when taken from 4-inch pots in the spring. Greenhouse room is too valuable in the spring for 4-inch cabbages, and most growers think 2-inch pot grown ones are too expensive.

Another point worth mentioning is the planting out. They are better off in the field in April. Cabbage plants stand hard freezing if they are grown cool and are strong and healthy when put out. Last year we had plants in the field as soon as the frost was out of the ground so we could work it. This was about April 1. The ground froze somewhat on many nights afterward, and it was such a cold April that we thought they were ruined. They did not grow much and looked more like red cabbages after the cold spell was over, but they started to grow and did well as soon as the weather warmed up a little and came in two weeks ahead of those planted out after the cold wave.

The best way is to plant the seed about the last week in February, and as soon as they are up transplant them into flats and keep them in the greenhouse for a week or two, until well started; then carry them out into the coldframes. Have plenty of manure around the frames, with an extra supply to cover over the sashes on any extremely cold nights, until they are planted out. F. R.

DAYTON, O.

The Market.

Business has been of a most satisfactory and gratifying nature, the only complaint being that last week there was practically no sunshine, and this of course has checked the progress of stock. Roses were most affected, the crops not only being comparatively small, but off in color, looking rather bleached. This, however, was most noticeable on the pink varieties. Naturally, with stock so scarce, it was impossible to satisfy all demands on roses.

Carnations keep up remarkably well, while bulbous stock, such as hyacinths, narcissi and daffodils, relieve the situation. There has been an unusual number of weddings in the last ten days, and this has increased the demand for valley. The calla supply has been short during the last week, but giganteums have been plentiful.

Various Notes.

At the January meeting of the Dayton Florists' Club, plans were started for the third annual banquet. The committee appointed to make all arrangements was: Horace M. Frank, George Bartholomew and E. E. Schaefer.

Mrs. E. Young reports that business was most satisfactory last week, this being chiefly due to some large funeral orders.

"During the last ten days it has seemed like house-cleaning time with us," reports the Miami Floral Co. "We have scarcely had enough stock left from day to day to tell what kind of business we were in. Orders came in from all parts of the state, and it seemed that everybody, everywhere, was having a good business." This week this company has a large banquet decoration at Memorial hall.

Harry Nicholson, representing the Chicago Carnation Co., was in town last week.

Samuel Kurtz, manager of the Dayton Floral Co., is back on duty again after a long sickness. It was recently reported that he had the lockjaw, but later developments proved his ailment to be a severe case of throat trouble.

A. Miller, representing Skidelsky & Irwin, of Philadelphia, made his regular midwinter call on Dayton customers last week.

"Business last week was most gratifying, and the outlook for the immediate future looks equally bright, as we have several large orders booked for social functions," is the word from the Dayton Floral Co.

H. H. Ritter tells us that orders for funeral designs last week kept him on the jump and he cleaned up on stock every day.

Word has recently been received from Wm. C. Hood telling us that he is still with his son in South Pasadena, Cal.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The regular meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, January 11, with President S. J. Trepess in the chair.

E. Westlake was elected corresponding secretary, in place of Oscar E. Addor, who had resigned and removed to Larchmont, N. Y., and Henry Cliff was chosen a member of the executive committee.

Winners for the day were: For cauliflower, J. Elmslie; lettuce, V. Cleres; tomatoes, J. McDonald. A cultural certificate was awarded to V. Cleres for carnations, and to F. Petroccia for cauliflower. V. Cleres also received honorable mention for tomatoes. Some fine orchids were exhibited by the Julius Roehrs Co.

The prizes for next meeting will be for the best twelve white, twelve pink and twelve red carnations; also a special prize for a vase of twelve Alma Ward. The annual dinner of the society was held at Schleicher's hall, January 25.

One day not so very long ago a man stood for fifteen minutes on a prominent corner in New York City, with a little stand, offering five dollar gold pieces for sale, one to each buyer, at two dollars each. The crowd looked on with suspicious smiles, but did not buy. During the time there were three pieces sold. Five minutes after the sale was closed, the crowd was enormous, for the report had spread that the coins were genuine. As a matter of fact, they were genuine and supplied by a rich man who was curious to know what faith the buying public had on an occasion of that kind. That's about the only instance we know of where a buyer was really offered, in good faith, something for nothing, when something for nothing was not expected in return. Now, there are a good many bulb buyers looking for just such snaps, something for nothing, but, gentlemen, they are very rare and when such opportunities do appear be sure the goods are genuine. Horseshoe Brand Lily Bulbs are not cheap bulbs and are not offered at low prices, because we can't afford it; but the bulbs are genuine and are well worth the money you pay. Write for prices or catalogue.

PACIFIC COAST.

Haywards, Cal.—Ernest Lundgren, a practical gardener, has purchased some land here and intends to start a vegetable garden and nursery.

Bellingham, Wash. — The residence and greenhouse of Stuart Wile, at 2427 Kulshan street, were burned to the ground January 12. Mr. and Mrs. Wile were in Vancouver at the time.

Milwaukee, Ore.—George Echter, until recently employed as a gardener in the nurseries of A. M. Le Grand, is now engaging in business for himself. He is planning to build a good sized greenhouse in the spring.

Oakland, Cal.—Charles Fitz & Co. have opened a flower store on Claremont avenue, near College, and are building up a good trade. They are also erecting two greenhouses on Dana street, near Alcatraz avenue.

Roseburg, Ore. — The Fern Island Fruit Farm and Greenhouses are conducted by F. D. Owen and wife. Mr. Owen is the orchardist and Mrs. Owen the florist. Business has been so good in the cut flower and plant department that more glass will be erected.

Everett, Wash.—J. L. Kreider has purchased land here and will move his greenhouse establishment from Gold Bar. He expects to grow cut flowers, plants and vegetables. A full line of nursery stock will be carried, specializing on roses, bulbs and ornamental stock.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

We have been treated to almost an entire week of rain, and no one can say at the present writing that central and southern California have been overlooked by the clerk of the weather. Everything was unusually dry, however, before these latest showers, and much satisfaction is felt on the outcome. While it interferes in a measure with the local everyday trade, the net results will revert tremendously to the benefit of all.

Flowers of all kinds are plentiful and for the season are quite cheap. During the last week there has been only a limited demand for anything in the blossom line, and both wholesalers and retailers have had some trouble to keep stocks moving. Carnations are good and cheap, and roses are daily becoming more plentiful and of better quality and substance. There is a surplus of violets, as might be expected, and bulbous stock is rapidly becoming a factor.

Funeral work and funeral flowers have kept not a few of the retailers busy, and with the return of pleasant weather we may expect an early resumption of our normal season's business.

Various Notes.

Wm. Reinhold, the Petaluma florist, is in town in the quest of stock with which to fill heavy spring orders.

Geo. May, of the May Seed Co., who has been on the sick list for three weeks, is back in the store again.

The Market.

Business has been unusually quiet. Funeral work constitutes the major part of the demand, for socially little is stirring. Still, there is no oversupply of stock on the market. Carnations are the principal commodity. Tulips, jonquils and freesia have put in their annual appearance, a harbinger of spring. The snow was followed by a heavy rainfall, over six inches in twenty-four hours, which has greatly hampered the shipping trade. Scarcely Kindly give me the best and quickest way of getting rid of them. J. P.

Kill all the moths you possibly can. By hanging some sticky fly papers along the house you can probably catch a good many. Fumigation with one of the tobacco papers should kill many, but this would not destroy the worms. Some poisonous substance must be sprayed on the foliage to effect this. Paris green would burn the foliage. Arsenate of lead would be safe, but would whiten the foliage. Try white hellebore at the rate of one ounce to five gallons of water, thoroughly wetting all the foliage. This will not burn at all. Or, if preferred, dampen the foliage and then blow on the dry hellebore through a powder bellows. C. W.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June, 1911.

E. W. KIRKPATRICK, the widely known Texan, is going up and down the state lecturing on tree planting.

JAMES REYNOLDS, of Geneva, N. Y., was drowned in the Cayuga and Seneca canal, near Rochester, January 18.

THE Society of Horticultural Science will hold its seventh annual meeting at Tampa, Fla., February 9, in connection with the biennial meeting of the American Pomological Society.

ADVICES from Des Moines state that Senator Chapman, of Cedar Rapids, is working on a bill which he intends to introduce in the senate and which is aimed directly at the nurseries of Iowa. The measure, as he outlines it, requires nurserymen to guarantee their trees and stock when sales are made and prohibits the misrepresentation of stock. He declares that Iowa is lamentably weak in laws of such character and that this state is made the dumping ground for bad stock from the nurseries of other states.

THE Tampa Board of Trade, the Florida Citrus Exchange and the Florida State Horticultural Society are leaving no stone unturned in their efforts to provide instruction and pleasing entertainment for their guests, the members of the American Pomological Society, at the forthcoming meeting in Tampa, February 9 to 11. Recent advices are that a fund of $2,000 has been raised for the entertainment of the visitors. Programs may be secured by writing to the secretary, John Craig, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

SEFTON CORRUGATED SHIPPING CASES

STRONG, LIGHT AND CONVENIENT

WHY use heavy wooden Boxes for Shipments of Flowers and Plants when you can get a box better adapted to your needs, weighing about one-half as much?

Our Boxes are made to fold flat; thus insuring economy in storage space and enables the commission merchant to knock them down and return them in bundles, reducing return charges--they can be used over and over.

Our Patented K. D. Tin Corner is the only satisfactory K.D. corner ever adapted to a Corrugated Shipping Case. It gives you a perfectly flat box. Costs no more than set up corners.

Did you see the article headed

"THE PLANT MAILING RADIUS"

on page 16 of the January 12th number of The Review? It's rather interesting—A severer test could hardly be made. We have done some testing ourselves, but this test, which was made without our knowledge with a regular stock tube, is certainly the hardest test we ever heard of. Evidently our tube meets every requirement. Have you used them? Samples on request.

Pink Boston Market

A seedling of Boston Market and Harlowarden that has been under test for the past five years and which has shown up so well under all conditions that I now feel confident it is one of the best commercial varieties and have pleasure in offering it for the first time for spring delivery 1911.

The color is a shade lighter pink than Lawson; form high built, much like Boston Market; stem long and graceful; healthy grower; blooms freely from November all through the season.

This new variety I am confident will prove a money-maker—a pink Boston Market—only much larger and better and destined to be one of the most popular commercial varieties.

Come and see it growing, and would advise you to get early rooted stock, which is now ready. I guarantee same to be in perfect health.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business has been exceptionally good, even though the weather has been unfavorable. It has been dark and cloudy for two weeks or more, which has caused a decided shortage of stock. Roses and carnations have felt the lack of sunshine the most. January 23 was the first bright day since the first week of the month.

The bulk of the work this month has been for funerals, but weddings and other social events have been fairly numerous.

Various Notes.

Ben Kramer has been busy with funeral work and has had trouble in getting enough flowers.

Julius Niednagel & Sons continue to have their usual good business. Cut flowers are not any too plentiful with them.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. is getting pretty well accustomed to the new store and is kept busy.

Karl Zeidler will rebuild one house next summer.

Henry Seymour's carnations are looking fine, with plenty of buds, but owing to the bad weather do not open fast enough.

J. C. Elsperman has been short of flowers.

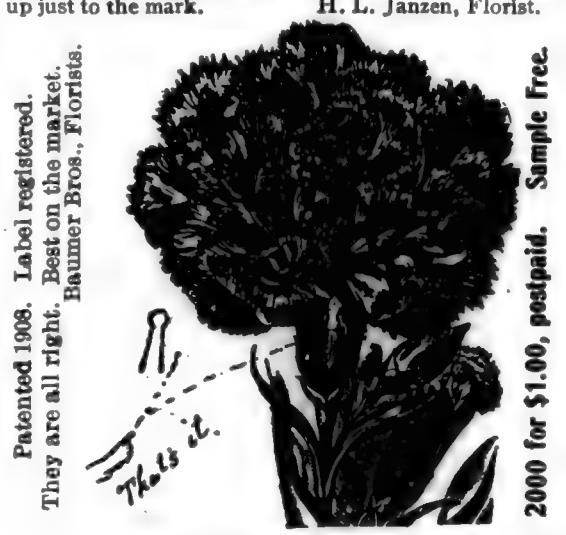
Louis Fritsch is kept busy and has sale for all his carnations.

E. L. F.

DETROIT.

The Market.

There is little to say under this heading this week. Stock of nearly every description is notably scarce. The few flowers which arrive here daily are divided among nearly as many purchasers. Paper Whites and Romans are really the only flowers which are at present equal to the demand.



Various Notes.

The International Wire Works, Inc., is the name of a new company recently organized here. Wm. Hielscher is the largest stockholder and is president of the company.

An auto which attracted considerable attention at the automobile show here last week was a three wheeled affair manufactured by the Wagenhals Motor Co. and bearing the name J. Breitmeyer's Sons. In this delivery car the seat is in the rear of the body, the latter being necessarily low, so as not to obstruct the view. It is only thirty-two inches at the highest point and twenty-nine inches at the sides. It is forty-one inches wide and about six feet long. There are three openings; one on either side about twenty-four inches square, and a large double door at the front. H. S.

Roses for 1911

DARK PINK KILLARNEY

A sport of Killarney, similar in habit, but more highly colored than Killarney at its best. When Killarney is pale, Dark Pink Killarney is bright and cheerful.

Grafted Plants only, from 2¼-in. pots,
$20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000.

LADY CROMWELL

A shell-pink sport of My Maryland that for pleasing color is unsurpassed. A wonderful producer, and a color that sells.

Grafted Plants only, from 2¼-in. pots,
$30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000.

DOUBLE PINK KILLARNEY

Originating with Robert Scott & Sons, who supply us the wood for grafting. Stronger in growth than Killarney, and with at least ten more petals. A wonderful improvement.

Grafted Stock only, $30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000.

PRINCE DE BULGARIE

The best prices for cut flowers should be the standard for judging Roses, and this Rose has been the money-getter. Strong and vigorous in growth, and with its beautiful shell-pink bloom, it has sold on sight. One of the best Roses grown.

Grafted Plants, $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000.
Own Root, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

MRS. AARON WARD

By far the most pleasing of the Yellow Roses now on the market. A general favorite, and one which will be widely grown, for yellow Roses are in demand.

Grafted Plants, $25.00 per 100, $200.00 per 1000.
Own Root, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

MELODY

We have reserved for our orders own-root plants of this choice novelty. No grafted plants.

From 2¼-in. pots, $30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000.

RADIANCE

Strong in growth, and making plenty of stem. Cerise pink in color.

Grafted Plants, $18.00 per 100, $150.00 per 1000.
Own Root, $10.00 per 100, $90.00 per 1000.

KILLARNEY, WHITE KILLARNEY, RICHMOND, MY MARYLAND, KAISERIN AUGUSTA VICTORIA

LINCOLN, NEB.

The Nebraska State Horticultural Society met here January 17 to 19, with a large attendance. The Nebraska State Florists' Society had its annual meeting at the same time, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, C. H. Greene, Fremont; vice-president, Louis Henderson, Omaha; secretary, Edward Williams, Grand Island; treasurer, J. E. Atkinson, Pawnee City; trustee, Mr. Davidson, of Holdrege. The society gave a vote of thanks to the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., for a display of Carnation Washington, which was awarded a diploma by the Horticultural Society. Five new members were admitted, making the membership twenty-one. The following exhibited cut flowers: Dole Bros., Beatrice; L. Henderson, Omaha; Simanton & Pence, Falls City; Frey & Frey, Lincoln; Davidson Bros., Holdrege; Fairbury Nursery Co., Fairbury. The following awards were made: On roses, Dole Bros., first; L. Henderson, second. On carnations, Dole Bros., first; Fairbury Nursery Co., second; Frey & Frey, third. On violets, Dole Bros., first; L. Henderson, second. On Beauties, L. Henderson, first. The following papers were read: "The Retail Florist," by C. H. Greene; "Advertising," by L. Henderson; "Wholesale Prospects in Nebraska," by A. Eiche; "Bulbs," by Mr. Atkinson. The florists took more interest in this meeting than in any previous meeting and the officers will make the program for next year's meeting still better, so as to get out a good attendance.

DON'T FORGET

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The demand for good stock has been fairly brisk in the last week, fancy flowers being scarce, especially roses. Carnations also shortened up considerably and were much sought after, especially the fancy grades. The best grade brought 4 to 6 cents and smaller 3 and 4 cents. Valley cleaned up better than it has for the last few weeks. The big crop which flooded the market is over. Violets are selling rather poorly and a good many find their way to the streets. Romans and Paper Whites are hard to move at any price. The first freesia was seen on the market January 21, which makes another addition to the spring flowers. Mignonette, which is fine, has dropped in price but sells fairly well. A few tulips are to be seen and are extra good for the first cut. Greens are getting shorter in supply and hardly go around.

There has been considerable funeral work, which has been well divided among the stores during the last week, and this helps to clean up all short stock.

Various Notes.

The Baltimore Florists' Exchange has held its annual election of officers, resulting as follows: President, I. H. Moss; vice-president, Fred C. Bauer; secretary, P. B. Welsh; treasurer, C. E. Akehurst; executive committee, R. S. Graham, F. C. Burger, M. Sohr. Under the management of J. J. Perry, who has been the manager for a number of years, business last year was far better than in any preceding year. A dividend of $25 per share on the capital stock was ordered distributed. Q.

Eliot Worden has a good stock worked up of his seedling geranium Mascot, a seedling from Jean Viaud and La Favorite, certified by the S. A. F. It is said to have given an excellent account of itself wherever tried.

Thomas Russell, at Brooklyn Heights, will be the first to occupy a stall in the new market, to be opened in the spring. Success seems to be assured from the start. M.

We have decided to disseminate our new Crimson Carnation

POCAHONTAS

We have grown this variety four years and have found it highly profitable. Our local retailers assert that crimson carnations with quality, such as Pocahontas possesses, will sell as well as any other color, the main trouble having been in getting crimson blooms with quality equal to the standards in other colors. Pocahontas has size and all the other qualities that make up a strictly first-class carnation, and it gives you enough bloom to pay you to grow it. Every visitor will substantiate this claim. Our stock is in fine condition, but limited. So get your order in at once.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade is brisk here, with stock rather scarce. Funeral work has been heavy for the last two weeks and has called for everything in sight. Roses are fine, but the cuts have been curtailed a great deal on account of cloudy weather. Killarney and White Killarney have been producing more bloom in proportion than any other varieties.

Carnations are fair, but a great many splits are coming in owing to the cloudy weather, but they have all found a ready sale because of the large amount of funeral work. Narcissi, Romans and valley have been about equal to the demand, while violets are selling well and are in good supply, especially the doubles. Singles have been somewhat scarce and the stems are short.

Blooming plants and ferns have been moving nicely at fair prices. Azaleas and cyclamen are about the best sellers and some extra good stock is to be seen.

Various Notes.

The Columbus Floral Co. is cutting some good carnations and reports a ready sale on them. This company has purchased material for two more houses, 35x400 each, and expects to start erecting them as soon as the weather will permit.

E. Metzmaier reports heavy business, especially on funeral work, and has added a nice McCray refrigerator to the office fixtures.

Geo. Bauman, formerly of Columbus, but now living in the Hocking Hills fern district, where he went on account of the serious illness of his wife, was in the city last week and reports her health much improved, and says that she wants to come back to Columbus. Mr. Bauman makes a business of cut ferns, sheet moss, etc., and reports business good with him.

Wm. Graff reports heavy business of late and says it is hard to get enough stock at times.

The Florists' Club gave its dance Wednesday evening, January 25, at Vandalia hall. J. M.

Athens, Ga.—The Athens Floral Co., formerly at 184 State street, has removed to 124 Jones avenue, in order to have more floor space. The firm has also completed a new greenhouse and reports that business is prosperous.

We must have room for other stock.

FINE FERNS

Ready For Immediate Retail Sale

We have an exceptionally fine and large stock of Ferns in the following varieties—first-class plants of exceedingly good value—plants that will please the most critical buyers, both in regard to quality and value.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima (improved). The finest of this type—never showing a Boston frond; has not reverted in the last four years. Fine plants, 4-in. pots, $2.50 per doz.; 6-in., $6.00 per doz.; 8-in., $12.00 per doz.; large specimens in 12-in. pans, $3.00 to $5.00 each.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima Compacta. This bears the same relation to Elegantissima that Scottii does to Bostoniensis. It is a dwarf, compact plant, especially fine in the small sizes. Fine plants, 4-in. pots, $3.00 per doz.; 6-in., $6.00 per doz.

Nephrolepis Scholzeli. Fine plants, 3½-in. pots, $2.50 per doz.; 6-in. pans, $6 00 per doz.; 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis. Extra strong plants, 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

Nephrolepis Scottii. 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

Small Ferns for Fern Pans. Best and hardiest varieties, assorted: Pteris Mayii Wimsetti, Adiantoides, Aspidium Tsussimense, Crytomium Falcatum, etc. Strong plants, 2¼-in. pots, $3.50 per 100.

CROTONS. Nice assortment, well colored, 5-in., $9.00 per dozen.

NEW BEDFORD.

The Market.

Trade conditions are good, with flowers scarce. Carnations are at times difficult to obtain. They are now retailing at 60 cents to 75 cents per dozen. Roses are unusually scarce. Some of the Boston wholesalers refused to take orders for them last week. They are retailing at $2 per dozen. Paper Whites are quite plentiful and retail at 50 cents per dozen. Snapdragons go at 75 cents and $1 per dozen, and single Golden Spur narcissi at 75 cents per dozen; tulips, 60 cents per dozen, and lilies, $2.50 per dozen. Freesias have now made their appearance. Outside of funeral work they are not used to any great extent. Funeral work has been good, calling for immense quantities of flowers.

We have had a great deal of cloudy weather, which has not helped the flowers any in blooming.

Various Notes.

Julius Rositsky, foreman for William P. Peirce, on Union street, is again back in the store after being sick. He is handling some nice violets, which retail at $1 per hundred.

R. H. Woodhouse has some elegant Freesia Purity in bloom.

E. Y. Peirce reports business as fine.

S. S. Peckham is bringing in some nice primroses.

William H. Davenport has a full line of birds and supplies, which sell well.

W. L.

ERIE, PA.

William Honeysett, of the Massassauga Gardens, says the most valuable asset just now on the premises is natural gas, new wells being discovered right along. He has a house of violets that are hard to beat in quality. Large blocks of flowering plants are raised for the country estate, which necessitates considerable planning ahead.

Vern Schluraff expects to occupy a downtown store in the early future, his agreement to confine himself to the wholesale end of the business being about to expire. The Schluraffs and Niemeyers were the first retailers to open stores downtown.

William McCarthy says the best investment he has made of late was for the auto delivery wagon. Its usefulness was particularly noticeable around the holidays.

Azalea Indica, for Easter blooming, Niobe (white), Apollo (red), Empress of India, Vervæneana, Schryveriana (double variegated), Simon Mardner, Mme. Van der Cruyssen, Professeur Wolters and others, 60c, 75c, $1.00 to $1.50. In big stock we have Helene Theleman, Bernard Andrea Alba, Paul Weber, Van der Cruyssen and Niobe, $1.50, $1.75 to $2.00. Deutsche Perle, Vervaeneana and Simon Mardner, showing color, with a few open flowers, 75c to $1.00.

Lilium Multiflorum, our own importation from Japan, raised from 9 to 10-inch. Bulbs planted last part of October and beginning of November, in 6-inch pots, kept cold, now about 5 to 8 inches high, just right for Easter, 25c to 30c; by the doz. or 100.

Dracaena Bruanti, 25 to 30 inches high, perfect green foliage from bottom up, 6-in. pots, 40c to 50c; well suited for store and house decorations because they stand cold, dust and heat.

Latania Borbonica, 30 to 35 inches high, 6 to 7-in. pots, 50c, 75c to $1.00.

Kentia Forsteriana, in fine shape, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 4, 5 and 6-year-old, 30, 35, 40 and 45 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50.

Kentia Belmoreana, 5, 6 to 7-year-old, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each; 4-in., 20 to 25 inches high, 20c to 25c.

Kentia Belmoreana, combination plants, 3 plants in 6 and 7 in. pots, 25, 30 to 35 inches high, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50 each. This is a special bargain, seldom offered.

Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings only (no seedlings), 2, 3, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 15, 18, 20, 25 to 30 inches high, 4, 5, 6 to 7 tiers, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50 each. Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 6-in pots, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each.

Primula Chinensis, best strain, mostly white, 5¼-in., in bloom, John F. Rupp's well known strain $2.50 per doz.

Cocos Weddelliana, 3-in. pots, 15c, 18c and 20c.

Spiraea Gladstone, in 5½ to 6-in. pots, started for Easter blooming, 15c to 25c.

Scottii, Scholzeli, Whitmani and Boston, 2 houses stocked with them, in all sizes and varieties, never before better than this year, 5, 6 and 7-in., 40c, 50c and 75c. Same varieties, as big as a bushel basket, $1.00 to $1.25.

Holly Ferns, 4-inch, 25c.

CYCLAMEN.

GIANT CYCLAMEN. For the last 15 years we always select ¾ of our seed-bearing cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country, no fizzle of many so called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers, that don't have to be petted to be grown into a choice salable plant, a well built five petaled flower, many of them at one time, with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize winner. Received first and second prizes at the Toledo Florists' Club meeting early in November when blooming cyclamen were scarce. We back our claims with stock worth seeing and invite everybody for inspection. Many letters from well satisfied customers. Seedlings, $2.50 per 100, $20.00 per 1000; blooming plants, 2½-in., $5.00; 3-in., $8.00 per 100; 5-in., 35c and 50c; 6-in., 75c to $1.25. Cash.
C. Winterich, Cyclamen Specialist, Defiance, O.

PELARGONIUMS.

PANSY GERANIUM, MRS. LAYAL.
This beautiful pelargonium is of the easiest growth, dwarf in habit, and literally covered with flowers all the time; and as it requires little or no attention, it is invaluable as a window plant. The coloring and marking of the flowers are most extraordinary, light pink, white, dark purple, black, etc., almost rivaling the pansy in uniqueness of flower. It is this combination of coloring which obtained for it the popular name of pansy geranium. Strong plants, $5.00 per 100.
J. W. Davis, 225 W. 16th St., Davenport, Iowa.

Pelargoniums, pink, maroon blotches; 2¼-in., 4c; 3-in., 6c.

Greenhouse Heating.

COAL conditions are almost the exact reverse of one year ago. Then a severe shortage was felt on all sides and cold weather and snow storms delayed shipments everywhere. Now every dealer's yard is full, most of the bins in greenhouse establishments are loaded to their capacity, there has been no car shortage and prices are down to rock bottom. The few who do need coal are able, within reasonable limits, to make their own prices and can almost surely find some one ready to sell at the price offered.

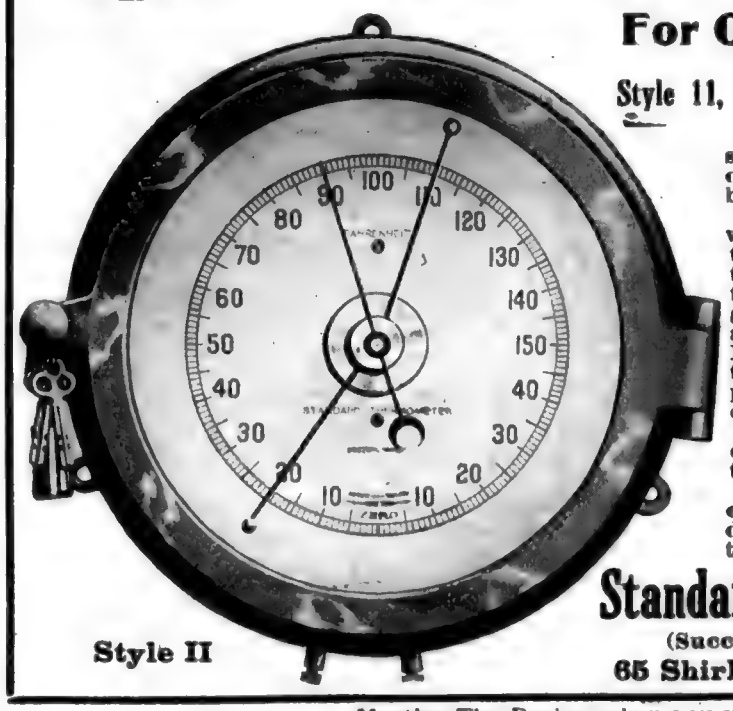
CRUDE OIL AS FUEL.

Some time last fall an inquiry appeared in The Review in regard to the use of crude oil as fuel in greenhouse heating. Your reply, I think, was to the effect that oil was being used successfully for greenhouse fuel, and that burners could be purchased in most large cities in the oil regions. Can you give me the address of some one using oil for fuel, and also the address of some dealer in oil burners, that I may be able to communicate with them?

J. B.

If any readers who have had experience in the use of crude oil as a fuel, and are thus qualified to speak positively on the subject, will reply to the foregoing questions, they will probably be conferring a favor on others as well as on J. B. Let us hear from anyone who can supply any or all of the desired information.

BUILDING A SMOKESTACK.



We should be pleased to have some instructions about the erection of a square, 32-foot brick chimney, with a 16-inch flue. How deep should the foundation be laid? How many brick will be required and how big should the foundation be, to make a solid structure? We have a good, hard, yellow clay soil. Any information would be appreciated. We wish to do the work ourselves.

G. E. B.

If there is a good clay foundation it will only be necessary to excavate deep enough to carry it below the action of frost, which will be perhaps three feet. Make the hole about five feet square and fill in with grout to a height of one foot above the ground level. If cobblestones, broken bricks or similar materials can be readily obtained, they can be used for about one-half of the filling. Mix up a grout of one part of cement to five parts of coarse, sharp gravel or coal cinders and put on water enough to barely moisten it. Shovel this over until all of the particles are wet and then place about six inches of grout in the excavation. Next put in an equal quantity of the brickbats, cobblestones, or, better yet, crushed stones, and ram it down into the grout. Repeat until the foundation has been brought to the height desired. Built in this way, three to four barrels of cement could be used to advantage. If the brickbats and stones are not used as fillers, fully fifty per cent more cement will be required.

To build a 32-foot chimney with a

WHAT THE USERS SAY

Test at 8° below zero—No. 8 Kroeschell Boiler carries 20,500 square feet glass.

Our heating system works to perfection. To our surprise the new No. 8 Kroeschell Boiler mastered the whole plant, consisting of 5 houses, 20x150. We only deemed it necessary to start our second boiler when the temperature went down to 8° below zero.

We had expected to use both boilers in cold weather, but the one boiler did such excellent work that we did not run the two boilers until the very cold weather set in. It was a very easy matter to keep the temperature up in the very coldest weather and stormiest nights. The 5 houses have 20,500 square feet of glass; the No. 8 boiler is rated at 16,500 square feet of glass.

16-inch flue will require about 4,000 brick, if an 8-inch wall is constructed. If the chimney is in an exposed place and is not supported in any way, it will make it safer if a 12-inch wall is constructed to the height of six feet, above which an 8-inch wall would answer. This would add 500 brick. On the other hand, a considerable saving of expense can be secured if but one tier of bricks is used for the upper six feet of the chimney, and it will be fairly substantial.

BOILER IN RESIDENCE CELLAR.

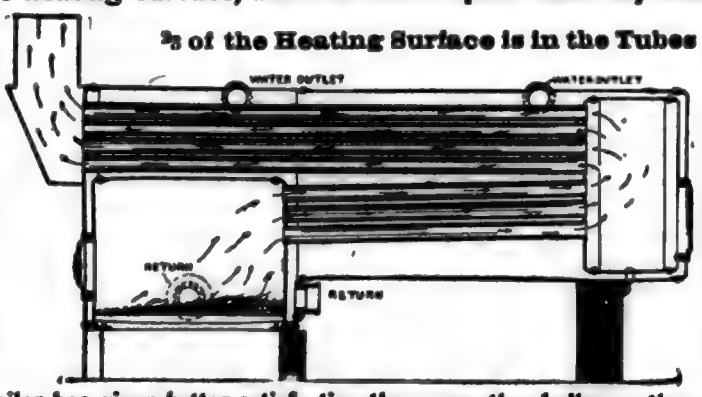
I wish to put a small boiler in the cellar of my dwelling house, in which I intend to heat the lower part, three rooms only. Would a water supply tank on the second floor serve for expansion also, or would it be better to run an expansion pipe up into it—I mean over the top of the supply tank? Or how would it work best? M. B.

It makes no difference what is used for a supply or expansion tank, provided it is above the highest part of the heater and is large enough to fill the pipes when the water cools. Under the circumstances described, all that will be necessary will be to connect the flow pipe with the supply tank, although it is generally advisable to have the expansion tank as high as possible, as this has a tendency to prevent the boiling over of the water in the boiler.

A SMALL NEW JERSEY HOUSE.

Will you please tell me how to heat my house with hot water so as to maintain a temperature of 52 degrees in zero weather? It is necessary for me to have overhead heating. I want to run a 2-inch flow out of my boiler, through a shed thirty feet to the greenhouse and then under the ridge to the extreme end. My house is 20x28 and three-quarter span. It has 16-foot bars to the south and 9-foot bars to the north. The ridge is ten feet high. The side walls are five feet high, with eighteen inches of glass in the south and north sides and the east and west ends glass. The house will have four benches. How many 2-inch return pipes will be needed under each bench?

G. W. H.



While less than 200 feet of radiating surface would be required to heat the house, and this amount can ordinarily be carried by means of a 2-inch flow pipe, from the fact that the house is only twenty-eight feet long it will be necessary to use a large number of returns in order to secure the needed radiating surface, and as this will retard the flow, a larger flow pipe should be used. If the opening in the heater is only 2-inch, a 2½-inch flow should

An Up-To-Date Ohio Grower Cracks Up Our Iron Frame House

WRITES TWO LETTERS

NO. I.

Like my Iron Frame Houses? Surely I do! I told your representative that "the only fault I can find in the deal, is that he didn't sell me two houses instead of one."

Think I would have been ahead in money if I had torn down the six year old house, and built an Iron Frame House in its place. The old house doesn't grow the quantity or quality that the Iron Frame does."

NO. II.

I am very much pleased with the Lord & Burnham house. It is very substantial and light (and lightness counts in this dark region near the Lake) and very easi y and economically managed. I think most people save a dollar in the building, and lose two dollars in the management of a cheap house. Success to "Lord & Burnham."

Asher M. Coe,

His house at North Olmsted, O., is 30 feet wide and 100 feet long. It is built with our Number 1908 Cast Iron gutter on this side, as Mr. Coe contemplates joining another house to it.

be run to the boiler and there reduced to 2-inch, but it would be better to have a 2½-inch opening.

With a flow of this size it will be possible to maintain a temperature of 52 degrees by the use of ten 2-inch returns, provided the house is well built and is not especially exposed; otherwise one or two additional pipes should be put in and distributed under the benches, with the greater number under the outside benches. Provided the end of the house is of exposed glass, it will be a good plan to drop down with the flow pipe at the farther end and put in a coil across the end with 100 linear feet of 2-inch pipe.

POOR CIRCULATION.

I am having trouble with my heating plant. I have a house 20x100 feet, heated by a hot water boiler, 10 feet x 30 inches, and twelve 2-inch returns. It worked all right last winter, but now the water does not appear to circulate just right. We cleaned the boiler and returns three times, without result.

I have a mercury heat regulator, which I am sure is out of order. Last winter I ran the boiler at about 160 degrees, which would heat the house at night to 50 or 55 degrees in the coldest weather. I now have to run the boiler at 180 to 200 degrees, and it is hard work to keep the house up to 45 and 50 degrees or lower. When the heat reaches 200 degrees in the boiler, it is liable to blow off through the expansion tank, something it did not do all last winter. Can you tell me the cause of this, and how to correct it? E. P. M.

While it is not possible to tell from the description just what is the trouble with the heating system, it is quite evident, for one thing, that the mercury regulator is out of order, as otherwise the water would have to reach a temperature considerably higher than 200 degrees before it would boil. There may also be some trouble with the piping itself, for if the water circulated properly there should be no difficulty in maintaining a temperature of 55 degrees even with an open system.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

The Standard Pump & Engine Co.

Gentlemen:—In reply to your inquiry as to how I like the Standard Pumping Engine, I will say that after trying two other pumping outfits I installed a Standard, which I have used to my entire satisfaction. It is doing all that you claim for it, pumping all the water for my greenhouse (20,000 feet of glass) and my house.

This machine costs about 60 cents a month for gas and batteries and all the expense of running. It will give any pressure up to 100 pounds easily, and has force enough to eradicate red spider and white fly by knocking the eggs off from the plants. When connected with a pneumatic tank for domestic use, as we have it, it is very satisfactory.

I assure the florists that they will make no mistake in buying Standard Pumping Engines.

Yours truly, R. B. Hayes.

The Market.

Conditions have changed little from last report, except that stock has been coming in a little more plentifully. Red roses, however, continue to be scarce. Carnations are coming in a little more plentifully and are of excellent quality. Violets are quite plentiful, but the demand is not large. While talking of violets, it might be mentioned that several of the retailers every Saturday hold special violet sales. They are offered at 25 cents a bunch, but of course are not of the best quality. Sweet peas, daffodils and tulips find a ready market, at good prices. With the general demand and quite a lot of design work and shipping trade, the florists have no cause for idleness.

Various Notes.

The seed and bulb trade is opening up well. J. A. Simmers and the Steele-Briggs Seed Co. both are doing a large trade.

W. Hill reports good business in potted stock.

R. Barron and F. Simpson & Sons each report having a fair trade.

The Misses Regauld, of the Rosedale Flower Store, are having a good trade in design work and decorations for receptions.

G. M. Geraghty, at J. H. Dunlop's, reports a fair local business, with quite a shipping trade.

The provincial legislature opened January 24 and brought a few nice orders to a good many of the trade.

S. A. Frost, of College street, reports last week's business as excellent. Orders for design work were plentiful.

The death of Judge McMahon last week caused quite a few orders to be received.

THE KROESCHELL GREENHOUSE BOILER

Here is the boiler that is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists and gardeners who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler the highest praise.

10,788,000 square feet of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years. You will find the new 1910 model Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler in every state in the Union and Canada.

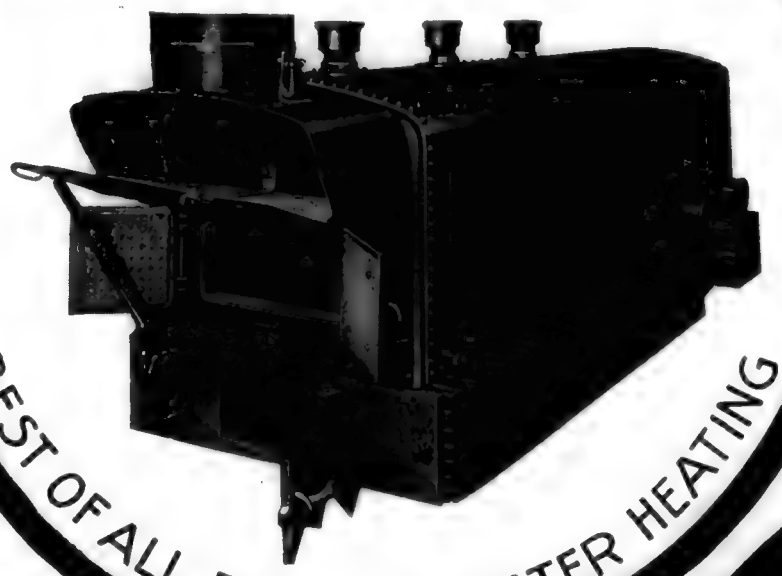
Kroeschell vs. Cast Iron Boilers



Over 1500 Cast Iron Boilers were replaced by the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler during the past six years. It is a common occurrence for a Kroeschell to replace two to four cast iron boilers at a single place; this is the CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM PLAN, and has saved many florists hundreds of dollars per season in fuel alone, besides a big saving in labor.

OUR HEATING ENGINEER has probably had more practical experience in this line than any other greenhouse man, and we place his experience at your service.

VALENTINE'S DAY.

The Stock in Demand.

St. Valentine's day is one of the times when the plantsman doesn't count. Possibly, as the demand develops, the plantsmen will come to share in the extra business for this day, but for the time being it is the cut flower growers' own. Fortunately for all concerned, the flowers most popular for Valentine's uses are those most abundant at this season of the year. First of all comes the violet; nothing else equals it in popularity for this date. Second choice is the sweet pea, with, of course, a certain proportion of the customers using cattleyas instead of the less expensive flowers. With the violets go gardenias and valley.

Violets are just coming into the spring crop in the early part of February, so that an enormous supply is assured. With many growers the winter-flowering varieties of sweet peas are just coming in, so that these also will be abundant. Cattleyas by the middle of February will not be so plentiful as they have been through January. The crop of Cattleya Trianæ is passing off, but it is a misfortune rather than a benefit to have cattleyas too plentiful. A great many flower buyers select orchids merely because they are orchids and are thought to be something exclusive and out of the ordinary. When you cheapen the price of the orchid it loses its value in the eyes of a good many people. Gardenias are now in much heavier supply than they were a year or two ago, for there are many more growers producing them. With valley there usually is an abundance. Therefore the retail florist can go ahead with his St. Valentine's day preparations with the assurance that there will be good supplies of the most popular flowers and an unlimited supply of bulbous stock to fall back upon should the season's specialties, and the staples, fail to satisfy the demand.

Accessories are Essential.

Practically all the St. Valentine's flowers go out in one of two forms. Either they are sent merely as boxes of loose cut flowers, or they are made up in the form of corsage bouquets. It is as important to have the accessories as it is to have the flowers. Of prime importance is the stock of boxes of appropriate size and shape, but of almost equal necessity is a stock of such materials as corsage shields of more or less elaborateness, appropriate ribbons and ties, with large, fancy-headed pins or clasps—no use sending out a corsage without some means for the recipient to attach it to her costume.

Fond du Lac, Wis.—The Fourth Street Greenhouse Co., now under the management of Leon E. Sawicki, has opened a flower stand in the Curio Store.

GETTING READY FOR A RUSH.

Some Oft-Neglected Details.

After the holiday rush was fairly on, there were a number of unprepared things that caught your eye—things which you intended to have ready for some definite use and which slipped from your mind until it was too late. This basket should have been retouched; that handle should have been mended; this plant basket should have had a pan; supplies of one kind or another needed replenishing; a box or drawer of ribbon should have been pressed. Odds and ends of pottery had been forgotten; you intended to fill them a week or two before Christmas, when they would have been salable.

He is an ideal man who has his box stock ready for instant use, all unseasonable things put out of the way, and everything for which a possible use may arise placed near at hand for a holiday rush.

Preparing for Valentine's Day.

The next holiday in the florists' red letter list is Valentine's day. It is a day of little, dainty wares, with flowers to correspond. Get the tiny baskets ready; clean or gild them. Have small ferns planted in those small porcelain dishes, which move slowly at other times. See that there is a good supply of violet boxes and their size of oil paper. Look up the various sizes in other small boxes. Plan your advertising; get some special valentine cards and tags. Invoice the ribbon stock, especially baby ribbon and violet cord; also the pink, blue and white. Coax along the crop of sweet peas and get hold of the loose ends in general.

Plan the valentine windows long enough ahead to send for what you cannot obtain at home.

Pussy Willows and Fruit Blossoms.

Make timely arrangements for your pussy willows and your peach and apple blossoms. What the goldenrod and cattails are to fall decorations, the pussy willows and fruit blossoms are to the spring decorations. Their value is not so much in what they will sell for, though that may be considerable, as in the decorative use for windows and the extra touches for boxes of flowers and basket work.

Proper Accessories are almost as Essential as the Flowers.

Peach blossoms and azaleas, pussy willows and daffodils, pink roses and apple blossoms are irresistible to the flower buyer of taste. Have them come on in succession, a week apart. They can be put on display before fully open and will last quite a while in a moderate temperature.

Although they are not so much used, I see no reason why other spring shrubbery should not be cut and forced into bloom in the same way; for instance, dogwood, syringa and such. It would at least be an inexpensive experiment.

Keeping a Record.

After the holiday rush is over, make a record of what sold best; what was in demand that you could not supply; what did not sell; how many of each color or kind of the standard flowers were sold or not sold; how many more you estimated could have been sold, and your impressions of the trend of business. Keep this record and refer to it in planning for next year, as to what stock to buy and what to grow.

Begin valentine displays and advertising early, before customers plan for books and book store valentines.

Gertrude Blair.

Holyoke, Mass.—Gallivan Bros. have purchased the Smith Farm, at Smith's Ferry, and will use it for the growing of flowers to supply the store in this city.

SPRING USES FOR SWEET PEAS.

Displaying Them Temptingly.

Where a few hundred sweet peas are cut daily from a greenhouse which supplies an average store, the store man, on finding there are not enough for a distinct display, must find some way to show them and dispose of them at a profit. "Yes," someone says, "we show them in hampers and dainty baskets." But why not pay more attention to displaying them ready for use in old-fashioned bouquets, corsages, debutante bunches or bridal outfits?

Sweet peas have come to stay in the market almost the year around, but have yet to be appreciated as an all-around flower for designing and decorating. To advance their popularity, show them in bunches for street wear, as you do with violets, with their own foliage and tied with ribbon or cord. To prevent their bunching too closely in the center, set in some short, stiff sprays of green to throw the stems apart. For corsage wear the bunches ought to be larger and elaborated according to the occasion. The old-fashioned bouquet may be arranged all but the holder, and set in a vase. Try one of sweet peas with a rose or an orchid in the center and a fringe of ferns around the edge.

Spring Wedding Bunches.

There are no more charming spring wedding bunches than those of sweet peas, both for their range of color and their grace of form. For a loose armful, take six or eight fairly stiff, long sprays of Sprengeri. Rib the stems with sweet peas, standing erect or nearly so. Catch the sprays, thus decorated, together in a bunch near their lower ends and wire them together securely. Add a few adiantums where they seem to be needed, and also about two of the asparagus sprays, decorated as above described, to fall from the main bunch. Either add a shower and tie or omit them, according to fancy. Be sure to add the price, and you will have an attractive bride's bouquet.

In the case of armful bunches, much depends upon the way they are held, and it is surprising how few society girls instinctively hold a bouquet gracefully. In many instances it is well for the designer of the bouquet to accompany it and see that it is correctly held. In the armful the larger part should fall over the elbow and forearm, while a few sprays or specimen flowers stand up against the person.

For Sad or Joyful Occasions.

Besides their value in lightening and feathering formal designs for funerals, sweet peas are desirable as the principal flowers in pieces, especially for children and young people. The ideal sweet pea spray is composed of several long branches radiating from a center tie, with just enough solidity to hold together and with plenty of looseness to drape over an edge of the casket. The mechanical construction of such a spray is accomplished in much the same way as in the case of the bride's arm bunch.

A St. Valentine or Easter box can be daintily arranged with sweet peas, pussy willows and a few pink roses, or with sweet peas, apple blossoms and roses.

For a May day window, erect a pole in the center, around which are lashed pussy willow branches or spring fruit blossoms. From the top stretch the ribbons of pink, violet, white and green to points on a circumference, where sweet peas of various colors are placed in baskets, vases or hats.

For a Bride's Table.

A simple decoration for a bride's table may be arranged by placing bud vases of sweet peas at each place, with a lover's knot of smilax laid free-hand in the center of the table. If the size requires it, scatter lovers' knots of short-stemmed peas at intervals along the center of the table.

In all these plans of decoration their own foliage will greatly add to the appearance of the sweet peas, and rainbow color effects may be worked out by shading from one color to another and then to a third, etc., by intermediate tints and shades which can not be described as possessing any decided color of their own. This plan of coloring is preferable to a haphazard mixture, even though the colors are all harmonious.

Gertrude Blair.

A Wreath for Roosevelt.

BAUM'S ROOSEVELT WREATH.

In certain parts of the country, whatever may be the course with women, it is the custom to send flowers to men only after they are dead. A happier practice prevails at Knoxville.

The accompanying illustration shows one of two wreaths made by Charles L. Baum for presentation to Theodore Roosevelt on the occasion of his visit to that city. No, gentle reader, it was some weeks before the recent election in New York state; these wreaths were Roman, not mortuary. The two designs, one of which stood on each side of the platform from which Col. Roosevelt spoke, were just alike, save that the inscription on one was "Welcome T. R.," while on the other it was "Welcome to America's Foremost Citizen." Each wreath stood on an easel.

THE WEDDING BUNCHES.

The illustration on wedding bouquets is reproduced from a photograph made in the store of Jacob Schulz, at Louisville. When a store has a showing like this, of bouquets awaiting packing for delivery, it seems superfluous to comment on the satisfactory condition of business. Interest will be taken in the fact that of these ten bunches eight were made of sweet peas. The modern sweet pea is quite a different article from the comparatively short-stemmed flower that was the florists' stock in trade before the introduction of the winter flowering varieties and the spring flowering sorts of the Countess Spencer type. With these up-to-date flowers retail florists find themselves able to do some of their best work.

FERTILIZER FOR GLADIOLI.

Will you inform me what fertilizers are best to use when planting gladiolus bulbs in the spring? I am going to use new ground plowed last fall, no manure being applied at the time. Would lime be of any benefit? Is sheep manure better than ordinary commercial phosphates, and in what proportion should it be used in the drill? Also what is good for a top-dressing? H. E. M.

Gladioli prefer naturally sandy ground. Any barnyard manure should be plowed in the fall before planting. You will find a good complete fertilizer, applied at the rate of one-half ton per acre, better than pulverized sheep manure. Harrow this in after applying and before planting. Lime would be useful if your land is naturally low and sour; not otherwise. A dressing of wood ashes, 1,000 pounds per acre, before breaking up new land in the fall is beneficial. It is better not to scatter any manure of any kind in the drills when planting. This is liable to do more harm than good. No top-dressing will be needed during the growing season, but keep the cultivator constantly at work. C. W.

extra touches for boxes of flowers and basket work.

Peach blossoms and azaleas, pussy willows and daffodils, pink roses and apple blossoms are irresistible to the flower buyer of taste. Have them come on in succession, a week apart. They can be put on display before fully open and will last quite a while in a moderate temperature.

Although they are not so much used, I see no reason why other spring shrubbery should not be cut and forced into bloom in the same way; for instance, dogwood, syringa and such. It would at least be an inexpensive experiment.

Keeping a Record.

After the holiday rush is over, make a record of what sold best; what was in demand that you could not supply; what did not sell; how many of each color or kind of the standard flowers were sold or not sold; how many more you estimated could have been sold, and your impressions of the trend of business. Keep this record and refer to it in planning for next year, as to what stock to buy and what to grow.

SPRING USES FOR SWEET PEAS.

Displaying Them Temptingly.

Where a few hundred sweet peas are cut daily from a greenhouse which supplies an average store, the store man, on finding there are not enough for a distinct display, must find some way to show them and dispose of them at a profit. "Yes," someone says, "we show them in hampers and dainty baskets." But why not pay more attention to displaying them ready for use in old-fashioned bouquets, corsages, debutante bunches or bridal outfits?

Sweet peas have come to stay in the market almost the year around, but have yet to be appreciated as an all-around flower for designing and decorating. To advance their popularity, show them in bunches for street wear, as you do with violets, with their own foliage and tied with ribbon or cord. To prevent their bunching too closely in the center, set in some short, stiff sprays of green to throw the stems apart. For corsage wear the bunches ought to be larger and elaborated according to the occasion. The old-fashioned bouquet may be arranged all but the holder, and set in a vase. Try one of sweet peas with a rose or an orchid in the center and a fringe of ferns around the edge.

Spring Wedding Bunches.

There are no more charming spring wedding bunches than those of sweet peas, both for their range of color and their grace of form. For a loose armful, take six or eight fairly stiff, long sprays of Sprengeri. Rib the stems with sweet peas, standing erect or nearly so. Catch the sprays, thus decorated, together in a bunch near their lower ends and wire them together securely. Add a few adiantums where they seem to be needed, and also about two of the asparagus sprays, decorated as above described, to fall from the main bunch. Either add a shower and tie or omit them, according to fancy. Be sure to add the price, and you will have an attractive bride's bouquet.

In the case of armful bunches, much depends upon the way they are held, and it is surprising how few society girls instinctively hold a bouquet gracefully. In many instances it is well for the designer of the bouquet to accompany it and see that it is correctly held. In the armful the larger part should fall over the elbow and forearm, while a few sprays or specimen flowers stand up against the person.

For Sad or Joyful Occasions.

Besides their value in lightening and feathering formal designs for funerals, sweet peas are desirable as the principal flowers in pieces, especially for children and young people. The ideal sweet pea spray is composed of several long branches radiating from a center tie, with just enough solidity to hold together and with plenty of looseness to drape over an edge of the casket. The mechanical construction of such a spray is accomplished in much the same way as in the case of the bride's arm bunch.

A St. Valentine or Easter box can be daintily arranged with sweet peas, pussy willows and a few pink roses, or with sweet peas, apple blossoms and roses.

For a May day window, erect a pole in the center, around which are lashed pussy willow branches or spring fruit blossoms. From the top stretch the ribbons of pink, violet, white and green to points on a circumference, where sweet peas of various colors are placed in baskets, vases or hats.

For a Bride's Table.

A simple decoration for a bride's table may be arranged by placing bud vases of sweet peas at each place, with a lover's knot of smilax laid free-hand in the center of the table. If the size requires it, scatter lovers' knots of short-stemmed peas at intervals along the center of the table.

In all these plans of decoration their own foliage will greatly add to the appearance of the sweet peas, and rainbow color effects may be worked out by shading from one color to another and then to a third, etc., by intermediate tints and shades which can not be described as possessing any decided color of their own. This plan of coloring is preferable to a haphazard mixture, even though the colors are all harmonious.

A Wreath for Roosevelt.

BAUM'S ROOSEVELT WREATH.

In certain parts of the country, whatever may be the course with women, it is the custom to send flowers to men only after they are dead. A happier practice prevails at Knoxville.

The accompanying illustration shows one of two wreaths made by Charles L. Baum for presentation to Theodore Roosevelt on the occasion of his visit to that city. No, gentle reader, it was some weeks before the recent election in New York state; these wreaths were Roman, not mortuary. The two designs, one of which stood on each side of the platform from which Col. Roosevelt spoke, were just alike, save that the inscription on one was "Welcome T. R.," while on the other it was "Welcome to America's Foremost Citizen." Each wreath stood on an easel.

Wedding Bouquets in a Flower Store, Ready for Delivery.

THE WEDDING BUNCHES.

The illustration on wedding bouquets is reproduced from a photograph made in the store of Jacob Schulz, at Louisville. When a store has a showing like this, of bouquets awaiting packing for delivery, it seems superfluous to comment on the satisfactory condition of business. Interest will be taken in the fact that of these ten bunches eight were made of sweet peas. The modern sweet pea is quite a different article from the comparatively short-stemmed flower that was the florists' stock in trade before the introduction of the winter flowering varieties and the spring flowering sorts of the Countess Spencer type. With these up-to-date flowers retail florists find themselves able to do some of their best work.

ORCHIDS

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Phalænopsis.

February and March are months when a larger number of phalænopsis are in flower than at any other season of the year. As the flower spikes are now well developed on P. Schilleriana, P. Rimestadtiana and other varieties, use water with care, and any splashing of the hose among them must be discontinued or many of the beautiful flowers will spot.

These East Indian orchids require a warm, moist house to themselves to be grown successfully and for this reason are less seen commercially in the east than on the Pacific coast. In California they are grown in large numbers, and as they soon become established after being newly imported and can be relied upon to give a fine crop of flowers which will pay their initial cost eight months after being received, there is every reason why they should be more grown.

Phalænopsis succeed specially well in round, rather deep baskets, and if some of the old compost, which should be about equal parts of fresh sphagnum and fern fiber, is picked out each season and replaced by fresh, the plants will not need disturbing for years. Look out for cockroaches, which will prey alike on leaves, flowers and roots; also sow bugs and snails. The cockroaches can be trapped in large numbers in wide-mouthed jars containing molasses or stale bacon plunged below the benches. A night temperature of 65 degrees now, with a 10 degree rise in the day time, will suit phalænopsis.

Cypripedium Insigne.

As many of the plants of Cypripedium insigne will now have passed out of flower, any which are much matted and crowded should be repotted. It pays better to keep the plants in pots six or seven inches in diameter rather than grow them on into huge pans, such as are often seen. The small plants will give more flowers proportionately than the big ones and are more serviceable for use in decorating or for retailing. Preserve all possible roots intact when repotting. Half fill the pots with broken crocks and use two-thirds fibrous loam, with the finer particles screened out, and one-third rather soft fern fiber as compost. As with all orchids, potting must be done firmly. Apply water sparingly until the roots are actively at work, but on bright days give a light spraying overhead.

C. insigne will do better after repotting in a warm house, but during the summer months it is much better grown in a cool house, where it can be near the glass. While an old orchid, it is still one of the most easily grown and most generally useful varieties in cultivation.

CHLORIDE OF LIME AGAIN.

In connection with the discussion on chloride of lime, I should like to mention an experience I have had, similar to that of E. M., in the culture of roses. About eleven years ago, on a well-known place near Chicago, we had a lot of roses—Brides, Maids and Perles—which looked stunted and the leaves were turning brown around the edges. On making inquiry, I was told that the cause was too much lime in the water.

On close examination, however, I found that the plants that seemed to suffer most were those on the edge of the benches and on the top benches of the houses, which dried out the most. So I decided that dryness might have had something to do with it, and thereafter I kept the plants always wet. In about eight weeks the plants had grown pretty well out of their stunted condition. After that I found at times that a strong plant would again show some brownness of the leaves, but after a few heavy waterings they always revived. I have come to the conclusion, therefore, that wherever there is lime in the water (and chloride of lime may have the same effect), the plants will only suffer so long as the water is not applied liberally enough to thoroughly saturate the soil and wash out the impurities that have accumulated in it, thereby forcing the plants to take up what they will not take up as long as they have enough water for their need. As E. M.'s trouble started at the driest time in the year, October, this may have had something to do with it, and I would suggest that he water a part of his stock until the water runs through the bench, and continue this for at least two months, watering heavily about once a week.

In propagating, this treatment would be even more necessary than in the case of the growing plants. The bench should have sufficient drainage to allow the water to pass through the sand freely, and the sand should be watered, or washed out, at least twice per week.

W. J. Keimel.

MUMS FOR CHRISTMAS.

I should like to know how to handle the red mum called Intensity to get blooms for Christmas, 1911; also the names of a good pink and deep golden yellow for the same purpose. W. P.

I would state that the way to handle your chrysanthemums to get them for Christmas is to strike your cuttings in June or July and plant them out August 1, then grow them along and take the latest possible bud, which is always a terminal.

This you should be able to hold back until quite late in October; then run the house as cool as possible without actual frost. So treated, many varieties can be kept perfectly well until Christmas. The best thing I know of for a late crop is W. R. Brock, and the best yellow, Yellow Chadwick. Two others, Major Bonnaffon and Nagoya, can also be grown for Christmas use if desired. C. H. Totty.

HOUSE OF CHADWICKS.

Leo Miller, of Shepard, O., who is one of the skillful growers of stock for the market at Columbus, O., had exceptional success this season with a house of W. H. Chadwick mums, white and yellow, as shown in the accompanying illustration. The house is 30x100 and the crop was grown under contract for the retail cut flower department of the Livingston Seed Co., Columbus. The illustration shows also the "little boss"—Mr. Miller's daughter.

NAME OF PLANT.

I am sending under separate cover a plant of which I should like to know the name. C. C. G.

The name of the plant is Agathæa cœlestis, allied to the cineraria and sometimes called the blue marguerite. It is an old plant in cultivation, having beeen introduced as long ago as 1753 from the Cape of Good Hope. It roots easily from cuttings and will flower freely in winter, as well as summer. It is a herbaceous perennial and will withstand light freezings. C. W.

NEXT SEASON'S PLANTINGS.

Figures That Tell the Tale.

At this time of year the carnation growers are figuring on their stock for next season, and what to plant is a question of absorbing interest to many. There are various factors to consider—productiveness of the varieties, relative demand for the several colors, ease of management, etc., etc. It won't do to go wrong on any of these points.

In order to get a line on the situation as it appears today, The Review set out to gather information from those who already have settled upon their planting plans for 1911. The course of procedure was to ask representative growers all over the country to state the number of plants of each variety they will bench for next season. The aim was to get figures from every part of the country, and the figures compiled do, in fact, represent all sections, from New England and Long Island on the one hand to Colorado on the other. The latitude covered was Virginia to Minnesota and Ontario. Several growers were able to give their list of varieties, but had not yet decided on the number of plants to be benched. No use was made of these replies, for the reason that they did not differ except in the matter of completeness from the replies from which the following figures were tabulated.

Nearly a Million and a Half Plants.

No special effort was made to secure figures from large growers, though several such responded. The effort was to get figures from representative growers, and only varieties introduced prior to the present season were included in the compilation; a separate record was made of 1911 introductions and undisseminated seedlings. It was necessary to reject the replies of two or three growers who have, prior to the present season, introduced varieties of their own raising and who will next season plant them again in such quantity that were their figures included in the tabulation it would affect the result. Such plantings have not been included either in the list of standard varieties or of seedlings; they simply were omitted, so that the figures represent the consensus of opinion of widely scattered growers who have no pets.

At the start it was planned to gather statistics covering a million plants as being a large enough number to get a trustworthy average, but the total foots up to a trifle less than a million and a half. The figures of twenty-eight growers were used. They recorded their intention of benching 1,412,450 plants of the standard varieties for 1911-12, which gives them an average planting of about 50,000 plants.

Division As to Colors.

Dividing them as to their colors, here are the figures:

PLANTS OF STANDARD VARIETIES.

Whites	494,500
Light pinks	331,700
Medium pinks	241,000
Dark pinks	72,500
Reds	252,500
Crimsons	9,500
Other colors	10,750
Total	1,412,450

Predominance of White.

At first sight the most striking fact in these figures is the predominance of white, but on second thought it will be found that the large showing of medium pink and the small showing of dark pink are the really striking features. To put it in percentage, this is the way the colors to be planted for 1911-12 will compare, taking these twenty-eight widely scattered growers and their 1,412,450 plants as representative of the whole:

PERCENTAGE OF EACH COLOR.

Whites	35 per cent
Light pinks	23 per cent
Medium pinks	17 per cent
Dark pinks	5 per cent
Reds	18 per cent
Other colors	2 per cent
Total	100 per cent

The Predominant Varieties.

Tabulating the varieties that go to make up the above totals for each color gives the following record of the number of plants of each variety:

WHITES.

White Enchantress	296,000
White Perfection	132,500
White Lawson	46,000
Shasta	15,000
Three other whites	5,000

Cutting Down the Lists.

One of the most striking facts shown by these figures is the tendency to reduce the number of varieties grown. For instance, the grower reporting who will bench the most plants has only nine varieties for practically 150,000 plants. Many large growers will grow not over half a dozen sorts. No grower with whom correspondence was had, excluding those who grow stock especially for the production of cuttings, has named over fourteen varieties as to be a part of the 1911 benching, and the average is about a half dozen standard varieties, with about three of the novelties for trial. One grower whose glass will house 36,000 plants will have only two varieties.

While the disposition to cut down the number of varieties is apparent in all sections of the country, the tendency is most pronounced in the middle west, with those who grow for wholesale only. Here, for example, is the planting list of the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill.:

White Enchantress	25,000
Enchantress	20,000
Rose-pink Enchantress	14,000
Beacon	10,000
Dorothy Gordon	2,000
Total	71,000

Still more extreme is the list of E. T. Wanzer, of Wheaton, Ill., who needs just two lines to tell his plan for next season:

White Perfection	18,000
Enchantress	18,000

The wonder is that he chooses Perfection instead of White Enchantress, for in the vicinity of Chicago, White Perfection, while easily the finest white early in the season, is being crowded out by White Enchantress. The figures covering the whole country also show plantings of more than twice as many White Enchantress as White Perfection. White Enchantress is included in the planting of twenty-four of the twenty-eight growers whose figures were used for the purposes of this article.

To one of the shortest lists sent in, and one in which White Enchantress outnumbers other whites four to one and varieties of other color two to one, the grower appends these words: "Make emphatic the necessity of keeping a record of the marketable flowers cut from each variety, with the number of plants of each and the number of square feet of bench room occupied by each variety. Then there will be no guessing what to plant."

Two Cut Out the Reds.

Of the twenty-eight growers whose planting figures are here tabulated, E. T. Wanzer and Emil Buettner, of Park Ridge, Ill., are the only ones who will grow no red at all. Mr. Buettner says the reds do not produce so many flowers as the best of the other colors and that, except for a few days at Christmas, they do not command any better price. His idea of the money making qualities of the standard varieties is shown by the number he will plant, as follows:

Mrs. T. W. Lawson	15,000
Enchantress	12,000
Winsor	12,000
White Perfection	6,000
White Enchantress	6,000
White Lawson	4,000

Lawson varieties at both ends of the list of the best half dozen.

Enchantress and Lawson.

The list of standard sorts to be benched for 1911-12 by the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., Gibsonia, Pa., is of interest. Fred Burki, president of the corporation, also is president of the American Carnation Society. His list is a large one, both in number of varieties and in quantity of each. Mr. Burki knows pretty well what each variety earns on his place. The absence of Enchantress on his list is noteworthy. Here is the list:

White Enchantress	25,000
White Perfection	25,000
White Lawson	10,000
Shasta	5,000
Winsor	25,000
Pink Delight	5,000
Dorothy Gordon	5,000
Mrs. C. W. Ward	5,000
Mrs. Lawson	5,000
Victory	10,000
Beacon	5,000

A. T. Lorch, another grower for the Pittsburg market, also has omitted Enchantress from his list. Except for M. A. Patten, Tewksbury, Mass., these are the only ones reporting who do not name this variety as an important part of their 1911 planting.

Mr. Lorch, whose place is at Allison Park, Pa., thinks "White Lawson is the best white we have today. I do not mean that the flower is better than others, but, speaking from the growers' point of view, it pays better in the long run. You will note," he adds, "that we stick to the Lawson family, planting 8,000 white and 5,000 pink, in spite of the comment of a Pittsburg writer with a penchant for picturesque diction, who said that the Lawsons then coming in 'look like a bunch of rags tied on the end of a stick'; as for us, we stick to that which is good."

Various Comments.

"We are looking for carnations that are free and continuous bloomers, of fair size and length of stem," said Will Bros., of Minneapolis, who grow 100,000 plants. "The flower-buying public adheres too much to the idea that a carnation is a carnation."

Of the twenty-eight growers whose planting lists are represented in the figures in this article, the Dale Estate, Brampton, Ont., will bench more plants than any other grower reporting. Their total is 148,500 plants, in only nine varieties, the number being as follows.

White Enchantress	40,000
White Lawson	19,000
Enchantress	25,000
Winsor	30,000
Mrs. Lawson	10,000
Mrs. C. W. Ward	10,000
Beacon	5,000
Andrew Carnegie	3,500
Harlowarden	6,000

Edward A. Stroud, of the Strafford Flower Farms, Strafford, Pa., says: "My experience has been that it does not pay to cut your plant up with growing too many varieties, especially for the large grower." His list is as follows:

White Perfection	14,000
Enchantress	5,000
Pink Delight	5,000
Winona	5,000
Mrs. C. W. Ward	5,000
Beacon	9,000

John H. Dunlop, Toronto, says: "With us the demand is for white and light pink, except for Christmas trade, when red is in big demand; but we are not warranted, by the demand at other times, in growing red in any quantity." Half his planting will be white, one-third light pink, and one-sixth dark pink, red and crimson.

One Colorado grower has a way of arranging his planting list that is simplicity itself, however much trouble it may have been to arrive at the result. Here it is:

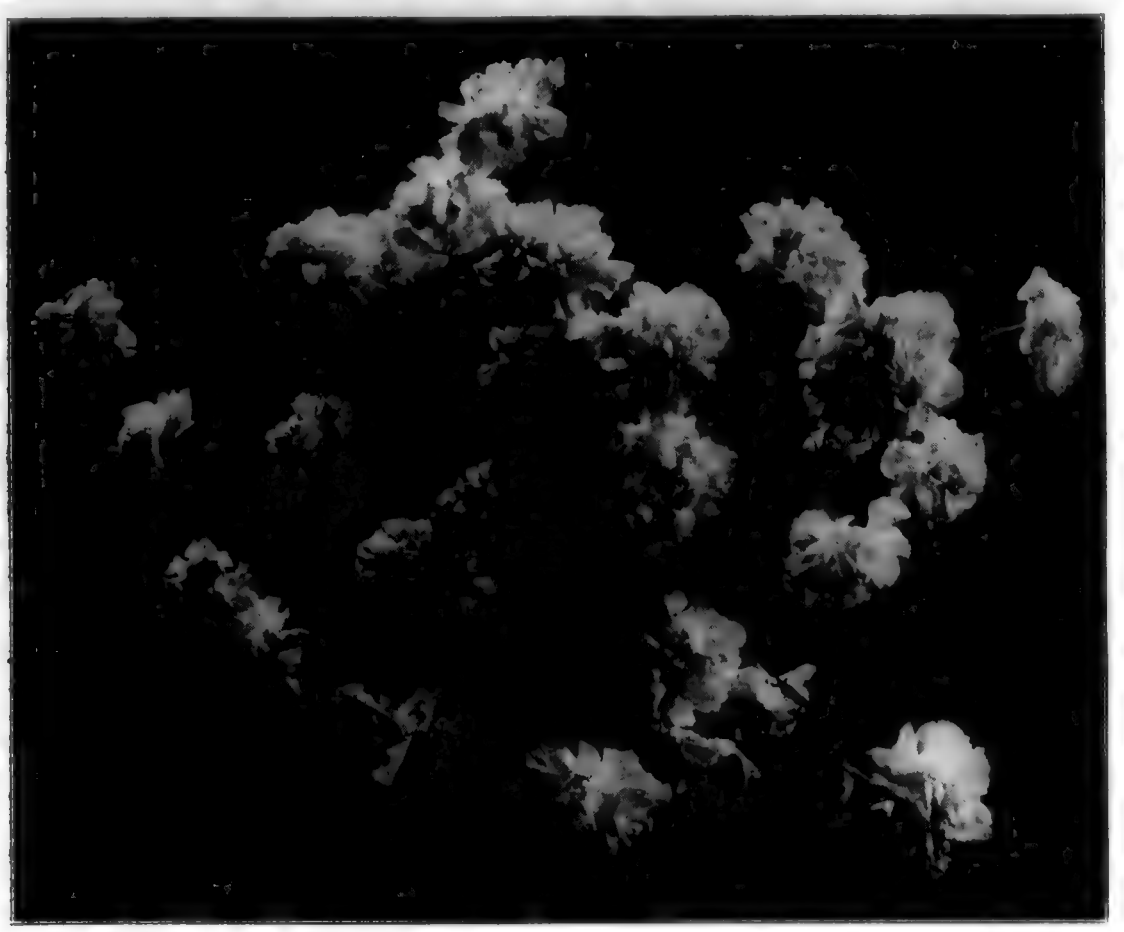
White Enchantress	3,000
Enchantress	3,000
Mrs. Ward	3,000
O. P. Bassett	3,000

In the east there is a leaning toward Pink Delight, which is little heard of in the middle west. It therefore is interesting to note, in some comments on the peculiarities of the varieties sent with the list of the Park Floral Co., Denver: "Pink Delight looks very promising here, except that it makes but few cuttings."

Two Views of It.

When asked for the list and figures of his 1911 planting, one Massachusetts grower returned the inquiry with these words written across the bottom: "What answer would be given should you ask similar questions from any manufacturing concern?" Which was a surprise, for a great many growers buy advertising space to exploit their individual lists; but in the same mail, accompanying a complete list, came the following: "I think that this kind of information published in The Review will have a great deal of interest and value to everyone in the trade, as it will have the tendency of balancing the output of carnations and preventing an oversupply of one color and a shortage in another, to some extent at least."

Seedlings.



The novelties of 1911 introduction and seedlings not yet on the market are divided as to color as follows:

Dark Pinks	46,500
Whites	21,750
Light pinks	15,000
Other colors	18,450
Total	101,700

In tabulating the replies the reported intentions as to planting 1911 introductions and undisseminated seedlings were separated from the standard varieties, separated as to the principal colors and tabulated by themselves as above. The total does not represent the number of cuttings of 1911 introduction these twenty-eight growers will buy this season; far from it, for a large part are merely undisseminated seedlings and may never be heard from again.

Carnation Bright Spot.

Carnation White House.

THE CARNATION NOVELTIES.

Many Candidates for Fame.

It is a peculiar and interesting fact that this season there are about as many new varieties of carnations being placed on the market as the average grower gives bench room to for the standard varieties. Where many growers are content with four or five of the standard varieties, and few now bench over a dozen sorts, the list of this season's novelties consists of at least ten varieties, not counting two or three that are being disseminated merely in a local way. The life of the best of varieties has been only a few short years, and in each one of the new candidates there are attributes which lead its introducer to hope that he has here the thing to supersede some one of the kinds now called standard. The first reports of the deterioration of Lawson were given scant consideration, but now a majority of the growers have dropped this one-time favorite. It also appears that some have already discarded Enchantress, although it continues to be more largely planted than any other sort. Consequently every grower is on the lookout for the things which will be the standard varieties of the next few years.

Among those of which stock is procurable this year there are the following:

Bright Spot.

Nic Zweifel, of North Milwaukee, Wis., began to raise seedlings at just about the time that Lawson was in its zenith. Consequently he had the use of the Lawson blood before the degeneracy had impaired its value. His Bright Spot was a competitor of Lawson at the shows of three or four years ago and it was not until after the decadence of the former variety that he concluded to put his novelty on the market. It was shown at the Pittsburg convention of the American Carnation Society in January, 1910, and won first in the class for dark pink, having accomplished the same feat at the Chicago show in November of 1909, at which one of the special features was the quality of the Milwaukee carnations. If Bright Spot has any faults, Mr. Zweifel does not admit them. He says it is an early, free and continuous bloomer, that the stems are always good and that the calyx never splits. On his own place he plants it in larger number than any other sort.

Washington.

Henry Eichholz, Waynesboro, Pa., in common with the greater number of growers, has found Enchantress and White Enchantress his most profitable varieties. Consequently, when he found a sport of Enchantress of color similar to Lawson, he was prompt to appreciate its significance. Working up stock, he placed it in the hands of the Chicago Carnation Co. and C. H. Totty for distribution. Its color is almost as dark as Lawson at its best and it is said for the variety that it does not fade the way Lawson does. The habit of growth is Enchantress throughout. At Joliet the Chicago Carnation Co. is planting the variety more extensively than any other, believing that next season will see a phenomenal demand for the cuttings.

Bonfire.

The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., has done excellently in the naming of its seedlings in recent years. One of the happiest of their choices was when they applied the name Bonfire to the scarlet carnation previously known as Mrs. Beckwith. At the Indianapolis flower show last November Bonfire won first in the class for fifty red over eight entries of standard varieties and novelties. In the commercial field it will be a competitor of Beacon and Victory. It is said to come into bloom earlier than either of these varieties and to be a free, clean grower of good constitution.

White Wonder.

F. Dorner & Sons Co., La Fayette, Ind., describe White Wonder as an improved White Perfection. It is a seedling of the latter, raised in 1906, and the Dorners say it is the largest and most productive white variety they have yet raised. They describe the flower as larger than White Perfection, and the stem stronger. They say it makes double the size of plant that White Perfection does, thereby increasing its productiveness. They say that it has proven easy to grow and reliable through the four years they have been growing it in increasing quantity at La Fayette.

White House.

Dailledouze Bros., Flatbush, N. Y., were the originators of Carnation White House, from whom the stock passed into the possession of Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J. The variety won the bronze S. A. F. medal at the Pittsburg carnation convention last year. It is an extremely large flower and the originators say that for the two years they have been marketing the cut blooms in New York it has realized a higher price than any other variety they have grown. Mr. Totty says he considers it a free bloomer when the size of the flower is taken into consideration, and that it is an easy grower. An interesting fact is that when Mr. Totty sent this variety to W. Wells & Co., his English correspondents, it made an immediate hit with the British growers, promising to be one of the most popular American varieties over there.

Norwood.

The Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, exhibited Carnation Norwood at the Pittsburg convention of the American Carnation Society, placing it in competition with all the leading whites, new and old. The showing they regarded as thoroughly satisfactory, but it is only recently that they made up their minds to distribute the variety this season, their stock being somewhat more limited than they would like. They have grown Norwood for cut flowers for four years and say it has proved more profitable with them than any other carnation, regardless of color. One of the points in its favor is its fragrance. The originators say it does not split and is a free and continuous bloomer.

Gloriosa.

Gloriosa is another of the seedlings raised by the late Fred Dorner. It is a shade darker than Pink Delight and without the salmon cast which distinguishes that variety. At the last meeting of the American Carnation Society, Gloriosa won first honors in classes in which it was in competition with both Pink Delight and Enchantress. The introducers state that its habit of growth is excellent and that they anticipate that those growers who like Pink Delight will come to like Gloriosa even better.

Pennsylvania.

P. M. De Witt, Bridgewater, Pa., is the originator of a variety named Pennsylvania, which he describes as the pink Boston Market. He says it is a seedling of Boston Market and Harlowarden and that it has proved in every way a good companion for Boston Market during the five years he has been growing the two sorts for the Philadelphia cut flower market. The color of Pennsylvania is a shade lighter than Lawson and reminds one of the old stand-by, Wm. Scott. In size the flower is a little larger than Boston Market and Mr. De Witt says it has been with him a clean, free, easy grower.

Pocahontas.

Crimson carnations are not often seen in the market, but Baur & Smith, Indianapolis, say that a crimson of the same quality as leading varieties of other colors will sell as well as any. In Pocahontas they believe they have a crimson which will stand comparison with the leading varieties in any color. Their stock is somewhat limited, but visitors to their place say it is in fine condition. Eugene Dailledouze, Flatbush, N. Y., was an Indianapolis visitor last week and it is reported he left his order for 1,000 Pocahontas.

Princess Charming.

Princess Charming is a variety that has not been exploited as strongly as nowadays is necessary to attract any wide measure of attention. It is a seedling raised by Henry Eichholz, of Waynesboro, Pa. It is almost the Enchantress color, a big, full, round flower, with a stem that stands like a ramrod. C. H. Totty is assisting in its distribution and says that those who have trouble with the stem of Enchantress will welcome this as a solution of their difficulties.

Last Season's Successes.

Of last season's introductions, two are claiming a large share of attention this year. It is the sign that they have made good. Mrs. C. W. Ward is a fancy medium pink that is in request, practically all the growers who bought it last year having found it so much to their liking that they will increase their stock for next year. Dorothy Gordon also has made many friends and will be planted in much larger quantity this year than in its first season.

TOO LATE FOR BENCHING.

Will you kindly tell me what causes the rust on the carnation leaves enclosed? The plants affected were field-grown plants, but arrived in a bad condition, owing, I presume, to the lateness of the date, November 10. Some of the plants never did start and others are badly affected with rust. I have kept the temperature at 48 to 50 degrees at night and 60 to 65 degrees in the daytime, with the soil rather on the dry side. The worst affected are Lawson and Beacon. The plants are growing in benches four inches deep. I am located in western Georgia. G. G. J.

One need not look far for the answer to your query. November 10 is entirely too late to plant carnations, even in your climate. While you, no doubt, have some fair growing weather in November, and plants if handled right might take hold fairly well, you must also take into consideration where the plants came from, and the conditions they were subjected to before they were shipped. These leaves have every appearance of having gone through several frosts, which was most likely the case if you procured them from some northern grower.

There is nothing you can do now, except either to throw them out or to nurse them along until the spring growth starts. They might give you a fair spring crop of ordinary quality. Next season arrange to get your plants at least while they are in good condition when shipped. In your latitude I would judge that the middle of September would be a good time to house carnations. A. F. J. B.

THE USE OF OLD SOIL.

We should like to ask you something about carnation soil. We manured ours heavily about Christmas with cow manure and are thinking of not changing it, but simply heaping it up in ridges in the middle of the beds, which are solid. We would lime the soil thoroughly as we work it up; also the sides of the beds. J. V. L.

As a general proposition, we do not favor running soil over one season, but under certain conditions it might do as well as new soil. You do not give enough data to make it possible to form an opinion in your case. We have tried it in a limited way, but could never get as good results as from new soil. We know of other growers, however, who claim to have run soil several years with good results.

If your soil appears to be in good mechanical condition, the use of manure and lime might put it into good shape for next year. If, however, it has that exhausted appearance characteristic of old greenhouse soil, you cannot get it into good condition without exposing it to the elements for several years. There can be no doubt that new soil is the safest proposition. If you had any stem-rot at all, do not risk the old soil, as it will be sure to give trouble next season. A. F. J. B.

A VISIT TO PETER FISHER.

Carnation Gorgeous, which is one of Peter Fisher's latest creations, is now to be seen in fine shape at Ellis. This variety has long, strong stems, looming up over all other varieties. The color is a lively one, being bright cerise. The calyx is strong and no burst flowers were seen. This variety caused quite a sensation when exhibited at a recent Boston club meeting and the demand for it is far in excess of the supply. Mr. Fisher says that, being a big, fancy flower, it should bring a higher price than the average carnation in order to be profitable. It will no doubt be seen in fine shape at the coming National Show in Boston. Benora, another seedling, is grown in quantity. It is a white variegated and is wonderfully prolific. Mr. Fisher is propagating it heavily and will plant a large quantity of both this and Gorgeous next season. If these two varieties keep up their present reputation, they may be disseminated in 1913, but their raiser, it appears, would rather destroy the whole lot than send them out without feeling assured that they were O. K.

In the seedling house were many good things in about every shade of color, some of which will no doubt be heard from later. Among standard varieties, Beacon continues to fill the bill as a scarlet, but there are some other seedlings of great merit. Pink Delight and May Day are each producing finely, but Pink Delight so far has given rather the most flowers. In whites, White Perfection and White Enchantress are grown. More of the latter and less of the former will be grown next season. Winsor is as good as ever and will be more largely planted another year. Winona is doing well, but the number will be reduced at the next planting. Enchantress is still grown and, as seen here, is hard to beat. A few flowers were open on Carola, one of the new English crimsons, large and brilliant, but its real value could not be told from small plants, the cuttings coming to hand late.

The value of early planting was noticeable, especially in the case of White Perfection and Winsor. Mr. Fisher plants his young stock out in cold-frames and removes them to the houses as fast as benches are ready for them. The June planted stock showed a marked improvement over that put in a month later. A night temperature of 48 to 50 degrees during the short days is preferred, as it tends to keep the plants strong and stocky.

MUSA ENSETE FROM SEED.

In The Review of January 26, page 11, I saw an inquiry in regard to starting Musa Ensete seeds. I usually try my luck with fifty, in a small house heated by a stove. The central bench is over the pipes. There is sand on the bench, on which I set the pots and seed boxes. In this sand I put the seeds and keep them wet until they throw up sprouts, which takes three or four weeks. I feel well rewarded if I get one-half of them to grow. I put them in early in March.

Last year I had my usual success, but with an added experience: I did not disturb the remaining seeds and they were there during the summer and fall until I began firing for my chrysanthemums, when, to my surprise, several of them showed themselves and grew, but not as vigorously as did the first ones to come up. I now have them in 4-inch pots and, by their looks, I shall have all I need for the coming season.

VIOLETS WITH OTHER STOCK.

Will you kindly tell me if I can grow English violets successfully in a house of lettuce or carnations? What is the best time to set the plants and which is the best variety of doubles? Must I get them in pots or on the benches? What temperature is best for them and where can I procure good plants?

S. E. I.

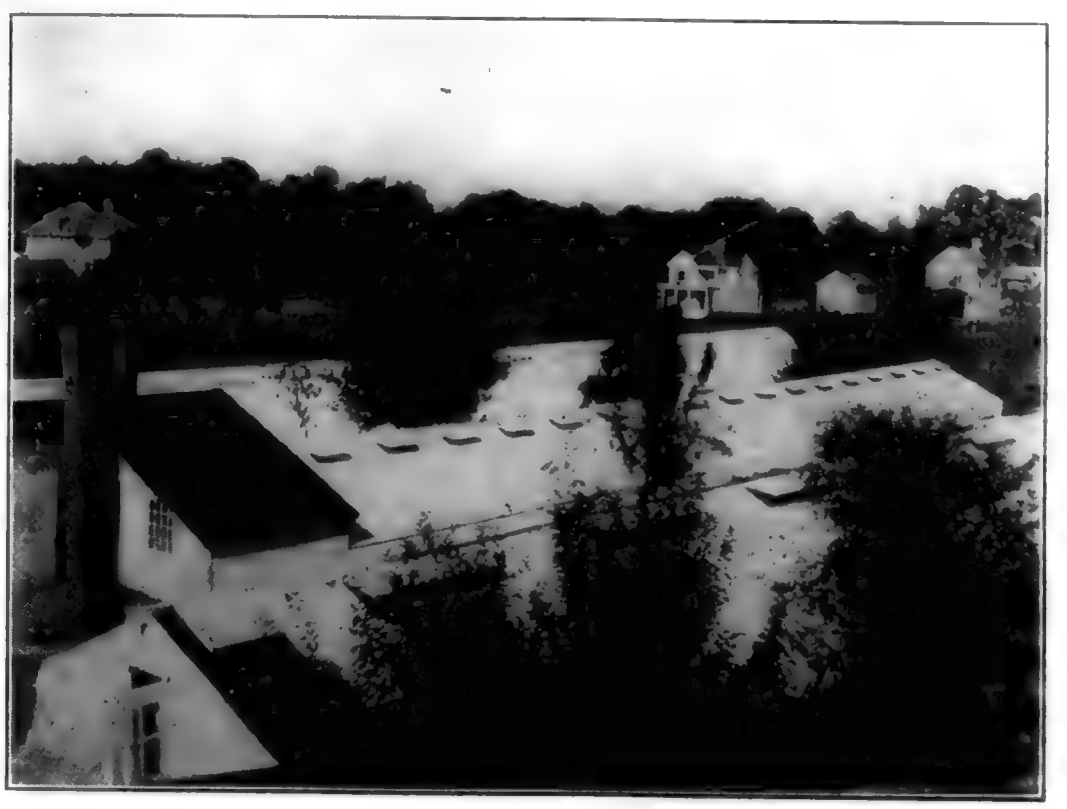
Violets want a low temperature to grow them successfully; 40 to 42 degrees at night. A lettuce house would suit them much better than one in which carnations are grown. The best varieties of doubles are Marie Louise, dark blue, and Lady Hume Campbell, light blue. The latter is rather less susceptible to leaf disease than the former. They grow best in solid beds, but can also be grown in raised benches if heating pipes do not run below them. They prefer a cool and moist bottom. Plants can be set in the beds during August and the early part of September. Many of the large specialists in double violets grow them in flats or pots and plant out where they are to flower. The houses usually have movable sashes, however. Your best plan would be to set the young stock outdoors about the last of April and keep the plants well cultivated and clear of runners. Purchase plants a little later in the season. You will find them offered by a number of Review advertisers. C. W.

CONDITIONS AT RHINEBECK.

One of the leading growers at Rhinebeck, N. Y., the violet center of America, writes: "While there were enough violets to go around during the month of January, when the demand is usually light, the prospects for the future are not so bright as they might be, on account of the prevalence of the diseases to which the violet plant is subject; viz.: blight, root rot, and crown rot, these having made serious inroads during the present season, some houses being entirely out of commission from the ravages of these diseases. Quite a number of houses are for sale, or to rent. There will no doubt be plenty of violets through February and March, the two months of the heaviest bloom, but the prospects are for a light pick for Easter, which comes so late this year that most of the houses will be out of bloom."

VIOLETS WITH SHORT STEMS.

I have some field grown California violets. They bloom freely, but have short stems. Is there anything I can do to make the stems grow longer?



B. B. C.

It is probable that your violets were housed too early. Single varieties should be exposed to a few degrees of frost before lifting them; otherwise they make a rank leaf growth and small, short-stemmed flowers. Another possible cause is that your clumps are too large and runners have been allowed to develop, instead of being removed. Provided your plants are in good soil, to which was added a good proportion of well rotted barnyard manure, they should not need feeding. If, however, they are in poor compost, give a top-dressing of soot and pulverized sheep manure, scratching it into the soil. If you mix the sheep manure with double the quantity of screened loam, to which was added the soot, it will be better than applying the sheep manure in a dry state alone.

California used to be considered a good violet, but its day has gone. Princess of Wales is now the predominant single and is vastly superior to California in every way. C. W.

A VIOLET ESTABLISHMENT.

One of the accompanying illustrations shows the establishment of Frank R. Snyder, one of the best known of the violet growers at Rhinebeck, N. Y.; it is a bird's-eye view taken from the top of a neighboring grower's barn. The other illustration shows the interior of one of Mr. Snyder's houses. As with practically all the more than 100 growers at Rhinebeck, Mr. Snyder grows Marie Louise exclusively.

THE ROSE NOVELTIES.

Many Promising Candidates.

A half-dozen years ago the burden of the song was the lack of novelty among roses, the depressing sameness of the eternal Bride and Maid. But Bride and Maid proved not to be eternal. At length one or two persistent growers found out how to handle Killarney, which had been introduced several years before, and soon the whole rose-growing trade acquired the knowledge that put Bridesmaid hopelessly out of the race. Then came the white sport of Killarney to do the same for Bride. Now, in place of Maid and Bride, the staple roses are Killarney and White Killarney. Of course there are others, principal of which are Richmond and My Maryland, but the list of forcing roses has lengthened not at all by the introductions of the last few years and there is scarcely more variety today than a dozen years ago, when the big four were Beauty, Maid, Bride and Meteor. Today it is Beauty, Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond. Here and there some grower makes a good thing doing some other rose in quantity, but there is, in the average market, little more variety than in the days when Maid and Bride were dominant. If there was sameness then, there is sameness now.

Every year brings out one or more promising candidates and the roses of today are certainly of far better quality than the old sorts. The novelties, to stand any chance of acceptance, must show up decidedly well. In spite of the high requirements, the list of new sorts now under consideration is the longest offered in recent years. While it is impossible to give a long description of each one, the following are engaging the attention of progressive rose growers:

Rose Queen.

Sanguine as are the ideas of the E. G. Hill Co., at Richmond, Ind., it takes Charles H. Totty to give an enthusiastic description of Rose Queen. He is on record as saying: "It is destined to do away with Killarney, Maryland and all other pink roses from a market standpoint." The color is the lively, clear pink found in Rodocanachi or in a perfect Testout. Blooms shown at the fall exhibitions did not blue with age and its keeping and shipping qualities were excellent. It is fuller than Killarney and the Hill people say it is an easy doer. They consider it as the best thing that has yet resulted from the many years of scientific hybridization that have been carried on at Richmond.

In the illustration of Rose Queen that appears in this issue, the shape of the petals on some of the flowers shows up peculiarly. The notches are not notches at all, but are caused by the ruffled edges that characterize the variety.

Melody.

Alex. Dickson & Sons, the Irish rosarians for whom Robert Scott & Son are American agents, are the raisers of Melody. It is the fourth of their seedlings to find favor with the growers under glass in this country. Its predecessors were Killarney, Liberty and Mrs. Jardine. Melody is apricot yellow, quite distinct from any variety now forced for winter bloom. Scott & Son say it is a wonderfully free bloomer, as they have cut as many as twenty-six blooms from one plant in the December crop, and twenty-seven blooms from the same plant in the February crop. The growth and foliage are as distinct as is the color of the flower.

Rose Double Pink Killarney.

Lady Hillingdon.

Lady Hillingdon originated with Lowe & Shawyer, Ltd., a firm that was established by Joseph Lowe, at Uxbridge, Middlesex, England, in 1864. When exhibited before the Royal Horticultural Society at London, March 8, 1909, the variety gained an award of merit. It is described as "a beautiful new tea-scented rose that appears to be especially suitable for forcing. It has long stems and handsome foliage. The full, broad-petaled blooms are of a pleasing shade of soft yellow. A very fine new rose." Charles H. Totty stands sponsor for its American debut. He saw it when he visited England a couple of years ago, has been trying it out at his place at Madison, N. J., and has, he says, had his first impression more than confirmed.

Prince de Bulgarie.

This is scarcely a new rose, for it first reached the United States in 1902, but it is just now becoming generally distributed. The name being lost when the first plants were sent from France, by Pernet-Ducher, it was sold as Mrs. Taft, by which name it still is known in the New York and Boston markets. But there is another Taft rose which was distributed to a very limited extent by a western grower which is quite a different thing. A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., thought he could identify the French variety as Antoine Rivoire, and exhibited it under that label. Later, plants he sent to Europe for identification were determined to be Prince de Bulgarie. The Piersons say that for three months in the year it is one of the best varieties they ever have grown under glass. It requires a higher temperature in dark weather than do other roses; otherwise it is an easy grower. The color is a shell pink of rare and delicate beauty. A. N. Pierson states that the first order accepted for 1911 delivery of young stock was for 15,000 grafted plants and that it promises to become widely distributed in another year or two.

Double Pink Killarney.

The fault charged to Killarney has been its paucity of petals. With Robert Scott & Son, Sharon Hill, Pa., the variety sported to white and then the white form back to the bright pink shade of the original, and in the process the bloom gained nearly fifty per cent in number of petals. S. S. Pennock-Meehan, who are the selling agents for the cut flowers of Scott & Son, found the doubling a great help in shipping and urged the grower to work up stock for dissemination, which is now going forward, Henry A. Dreer and others assisting the Scott and Pennock-Meehan concerns.

Dark Pink Killarney.

Eber Holmes, of Montrose Greenhouses, Montrose, Mass., discovered the darker colored sport of Killarney that was subsequently sold to A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., and which is being distributed in the trade this season. It is identical with the parent in all things save color, which is much darker and less liable to variation.

Hilda.

My Maryland has developed a considerable tendency to sport, and of the several deeper pink variations from the original variety, one of the earliest to make its appearance was named Hilda. Myers & Samtman, who grow principally for the Philadelphia market but send a part of their output to New York, Pittsburg and Chicago, were among the first to recognize the merits of Maryland and when they found the deeper pink sport they proceeded to work up stock, feeling sure they had an improvement. This year they have 5,000 plants and say the way the cut blooms are selling has confirmed their earlier estimate of its value. It is identical with the parent in all respects save color.

Lady Cromwell.

In 1908 A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., found a sport of My Maryland, identical in all respects except the color of the bloom, which is described as shell pink outside, shading deeper toward the center, which is a creamy yellow. During the hot weather the yellow center is less prominent and the color of the blooms resembles that of an Enchantress carnation.

Mrs. Aaron Ward.

This rose, often erroneously called Mrs. Humphry Ward, was sent out by the French firm, Pernet-Ducher, in 1907, and was first listed in America by the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., from whom William Elliott procured his original stock. He planted it on a small scale, and during the season of 1908-9 sold it in small quantities in Boston. The color took people's fancies at once, so that a much larger lot was planted last summer, and some thousands are now growing and blooming profusely at Madbury, N. H. The color of the flower can best be described as a rich Indian yellow, occasionally suffused or washed with salmon rose. The flower is full and the petals are of excellent substance. Mr. Elliott has shipped consignments as far as Atlanta, Ga., where they were received in first-class shape. The foliage is noteworthy on account of its rich, shiny appearance and standing out so stiffly. The plant with Mr. Elliott has proved an excellent grower and continuous bloomer, carrying plenty of 18-inch stems. A number of growers of young stock for the trade were attracted to the variety by Mr. Elliott's success with it and it is being heavily propagated this season.

Radiance.

Radiance is really a last season's novelty, but the stock of John Cook, Baltimore, was so small that it could not be widely distributed in its first year. The big growers have it now and are pushing it. Radiance is a seedling of Cardinal, the color a brilliant carmine pink with a silvery lining; flowers large, carried on long, stiff stems. It has proved a fairly constant bloomer.

TUBEROSES IN THE SOUTH.

In The Review of January 19, page 13, H. & L. ask what varieties of tuberoses are best adapted to the Texas coast country. The kind that is now grown most extensively in the territory mentioned is what is known here, at Austin, as Mexican Everblooming, a single variety. There are no double kinds that do well here, and the Mexican Everblooming is used almost exclusively for summer cut flowers.

A. J. Seiders.

ASTERS UNDER GLASS.

If I sow aster seed now and plant them in the greenhouse, can I cut them in June? I never grew any in the house before. If it can be done, please let me know what kind is best for greenhouse purposes. I have always planted the late branching sorts. J. W. O.

You can grow excellent asters under glass and by sowing seed of one of the early varieties now can cut flowers in June. Sow the seeds in shallow flats in a temperature of 60 degrees. Transplant before they become crowded and plant directly into the benches, as you would chrysanthemums or carnations, using the same soil. The best and freest flowering early aster is Queen of the Market. This carries 12-inch stems and is unusually productive. Allow the plants 8x10 inches in the benches if you plant this variety. Early Wonder, of the Comet type, and Dawn are other early sorts, but flower less freely than Queen of the Market. Asters under glass like a light house and not too much heat; 50 degrees at night after planting is sufficient. You must keep the benches well and frequently scratched over while the asters occupy them, and never maintain a stuffy atmosphere. To secure large flowers, reduce the number per plant; as a rule, however, the medium and ordinary quality of flowers are most useful to the country florist. C. W.

Rose Mrs. Aaron Ward.

SALVIAS FROM SEED.

The demand for salvias has become phenomenal. There is always a large demand for these beautiful, showy flowers.

Time was when one could take a few cuttings of these plants in the fall and then, by carefully propagating and handling these, could get up a reasonable stock by spring. The writer has found, however, that growing salvias from seed is much more satisfactory. Clara Bedman, the best of the many varieties, is the one that should be grown most extensively. The seed of this variety is worth about $2.25 per ounce, and one ounce of seed should produce 4,000 to 5,000 plants. These, at 50 cents a dozen, will be more profitable than plants produced from cuttings and sold at a better price, and generally seedlings are the more satisfactory.

In the vicinity of Chicago, salvia seed should be sown by the end of January. The seed bench should be located where ventilation can be given freely. The soil should be a good grade of sandy loam, the surface of which should be nicely smoothed. The seed should be sown in rows and carefully covered with a mixture of fine, sandy loam and sifted fibrous peat. In a temperature of 50 degrees the seed should germinate in about three weeks; however, it may be four weeks or more before all are up. Some care must be taken in the watering; keep the soil moderately moist. When all are nicely up, pot up into thumb pots. If conditions are favorable, many of these will be ready for a shift before planting-out time; these will be worth more than 50 cents a dozen.

Salvias, when grown in this way and properly priced, are a highly profitable crop. When the merits of the plants are thoroughly known, there is no reason why every community of 10,000 inhabitants should not use 4,000 plants.

TUBEROSES IN THE SOUTH.

In The Review of January 19, page 13, H. & L. ask what varieties of tuberoses are best adapted to the Texas coast country. The kind that is now grown most extensively in the territory mentioned is what is known here, at Austin, as Mexican Everblooming, a single variety. There are no double kinds that do well here, and the Mexican Everblooming is used almost exclusively for summer cut flowers.

ASTERS UNDER GLASS.

If I sow aster seed now and plant them in the greenhouse, can I cut them in June? I never grew any in the house before. If it can be done, please let me know what kind is best for greenhouse purposes. I have always planted the late branching sorts. J. W. O.

You can grow excellent asters under glass and by sowing seed of one of the early varieties now can cut flowers in June. Sow the seeds in shallow flats in a temperature of 60 degrees. Transplant before they become crowded and plant directly into the benches, as you would chrysanthemums or carnations, using the same soil. The best and freest flowering early aster is Queen of the Market. This carries 12-inch stems and is unusually productive. Allow the plants 8x10 inches in the benches if you plant this variety. Early Wonder, of the Comet type, and Dawn are other early sorts, but flower less freely than Queen of the Market. Asters under glass like a light house and not too much heat; 50 degrees at night after planting is sufficient. You must keep the benches well and frequently scratched over while the asters occupy them, and never maintain a stuffy atmosphere. To secure large flowers, reduce the number per plant; as a rule, however, the medium and ordinary quality of flowers are most useful to the country florist. C. W.

SALVIAS FROM SEED.

The demand for salvias has become phenomenal. There is always a large demand for these beautiful, showy flowers.

Time was when one could take a few cuttings of these plants in the fall and then, by carefully propagating and handling these, could get up a reasonable stock by spring. The writer has found, however, that growing salvias from seed is much more satisfactory. Clara Bedman, the best of the many varieties, is the one that should be grown most extensively. The seed of this variety is worth about $2.25 per ounce, and one ounce of seed should produce 4,000 to 5,000 plants. These, at 50 cents a dozen, will be more profitable than plants produced from cuttings and sold at a better price, and generally seedlings are the more satisfactory.

In the vicinity of Chicago, salvia seed should be sown by the end of January. The seed bench should be located where ventilation can be given freely. The soil should be a good grade of sandy loam, the surface of which should be nicely smoothed. The seed should be sown in rows and carefully covered with a mixture of fine, sandy loam and sifted fibrous peat. In a temperature of 50 degrees the seed should germinate in about three weeks; however, it may be four weeks or more before all are up. Some care must be taken in the watering; keep the soil moderately moist. When all are nicely up, pot up into thumb pots. If conditions are favorable, many of these will be ready for a shift before planting-out time; these will be worth more than 50 cents a dozen.

Salvias, when grown in this way and properly priced, are a highly profitable crop. When the merits of the plants are thoroughly known, there is no reason why every community of 10,000 inhabitants should not use 4,000 plants.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Lilium Speciosum.

The cold storage bulbs of Lilium speciosum potted in August are now giving quantities of flowers, which come in usefully. They make a pleasing addition to long-stemmed flowers, and purchasers securing them are invariably well pleased with them, as they have excellent keeping qualities. For funeral designs the white variety just now comes in especially valuable. The new crop of bulbs potted in November and placed under the benches of a cool house are just appearing above ground. It will be June before these flower, and it does not pay to subject them to any forcing. Before the growths get drawn, stand them on a bench and allow them to come along slowly. If you want to hold them back until later in the summer, they can go into any light pit or frame which is just clear of frost. Allow the soil to become a little drier, however, before moving them to colder quarters.

Cyclamens.

The cyclamen seedlings from seed sown in September are now ready for small pots. They have for some time been growing on a shelf in shallow flats, which have been frequently scratched over. Use a light soil of flaky leafmold, loam and sand for the first potting, and stand the plants on a bench where they will not get cold feet. An average minimum of 55 to 58 degrees will suit them. This temperature would be 10 degrees too high for blooming plants, but is all right for young stock. Plants which are coming into flower and intended for early spring sales must be grown cool; 40 to 45 degrees will suffice. If, however, wanted earlier, 5 degrees more heat can be given. A top-dressing of Clay's fertilizer is the best possible food for them. You cannot keep the plants too near the light if you want them stocky.

Bougainvilleas.

There is a moderate sale each Easter for bougainvilleas. They are hardly the Easter color, but there are always a good many plants sold with colored flowers. Plants which have been kept cool and tolerably dry at the root for some time should now be top-dressed, placed in a temperature of 60 to 62 degrees at night and freely syringed. Give one good soaking at the root. Then let the soil go rather on the dry side until the plants are breaking freely. If started at once, the plants should flower nicely for Easter. If they are open a little early, it is easy retarding them in a cooler house. Few flowers have better keeping qualities than bougainvilleas. The variety Sanderiana remains the most popular for pot culture.

Fuchsias.

Fuchsias are looked upon by many as old-fashioned, but they are nevertheless popular with many and probably always will be. While we cannot make as manifold uses of them for bedding and exhibition purposes as in Europe, we can nevertheless use them for flowering in pots, for planting out in partially shaded beds and for piazza boxes, where they do not get too much sun. Nice little plants in 4-inch pots, carrying a few flowers, sell well in May and June, and any country florist who grows a batch can easily dispose of them. Get in a good batch of succulent cuttings now. They are easily rooted. Pot off into 2½-inch pots and later into 4-inch, using at the last potting moderately rich soil, and you will have neat plants for your customers. The single varieties will be found rather more floriferous than the doubles, but each have their admirers.

Fibrous-rooted Begonias.

If seed is not yet sown of such begonias as Erfordii and Vernon, it should be sown without delay in shallow pans of light soil. Being minute, it needs no covering. Water the pans first; then sow the seed as thinly as possible. Place glass and sheets of paper over the pans until the seedlings germinate. Those begonias of the semperflorens, or everblooming, type are valuable. They make neat pot plants, can be used in vases, window boxes and piazza boxes, and can be bedded out in either full sun, partial shade or heavy shade, and wherever grown they are always in flower.

Gloxinias.

Gloxinia tubers started in flats early in January have now made considerable growth and can be potted into 5-inch or 6-inch pots, according to their size. Gloxinias like a light but moderately rich soil. One-half fibrous loam, one-fourth each leaf-mold not too much decayed, and dry cow manure, with a good dash of fine charcoal and sharp sand, will make an ideal soil for them. Water rather sparingly until the pots are well filled with roots; then more freely. Avoid wetting the foliage at all times as much as possible and grow in an average night temperature of 60 degrees. The worst enemy of the gloxinia is thrips. It disfigures both foliage and flowers, but if the plants are fumigated once a week it will not trouble them. Many people imagine that tuberous begonias and gloxinias have no insect foes. No greater mistake could be made, for once thrips get a foothold the plants are practically ruined.

Hydrangeas.

The earliest batch of hydrangeas have now made considerable growth, and the flower heads can be seen at the ends. These will be in good time for Easter. Even later plants can be flowered by the middle of April, but to be sure of having them on time a temperature of 60 degrees at night should be maintained. Hydrangeas at all stages of growth want an abundant water supply; in fact, given good drainage, plants in active growth can hardly be overwatered. Any showing pale foliage can be toned up by placing a little soot or nitrate of soda in the water. In order to work up a good stock of young plants for next year, take off as many of the non-flowering shoots as you can and place in the cutting bench.

Asters.

There are a few growers each year who grow benches of asters under glass. Some there are who have had flowers as early as May, and any of the early sorts sown now and kept growing can be flowered by June. The needs of asters in regard to soil and temperature under glass closely resemble those of the mums. In five inches of soil they will flower finely. Queen of the Market, also called Queen of the Earlies, is a prolific early variety. Pink, white and lavender are the popular shades. Unless flowers of extra size are wanted, it does not pay to disbud. The plants must have a light house, and no shade at any time. If allowed 8x10 inches apart, they will do nicely. There are some other early varieties listed, such as Early Wonder, Dawn, etc., which may be well worthy of a trial, but Queen of the Market is the best grower and freest bloomer of all the early sorts yet tried.

TO GET THE MOST SUNLIGHT.

In which of the following directions should a greenhouse run, in order to get the direct sunlight the greatest number of hours per day: Straight east and west, northeast to southwest or northwest to southeast? W. H. W.

A greenhouse that runs east and west gets the most benefit from the sun, especially during the winter months, when full sunshine is most needed. A house running either northeast to southwest or northwest to southeast gets more shade from the rafters, especially one running in the latter direction.

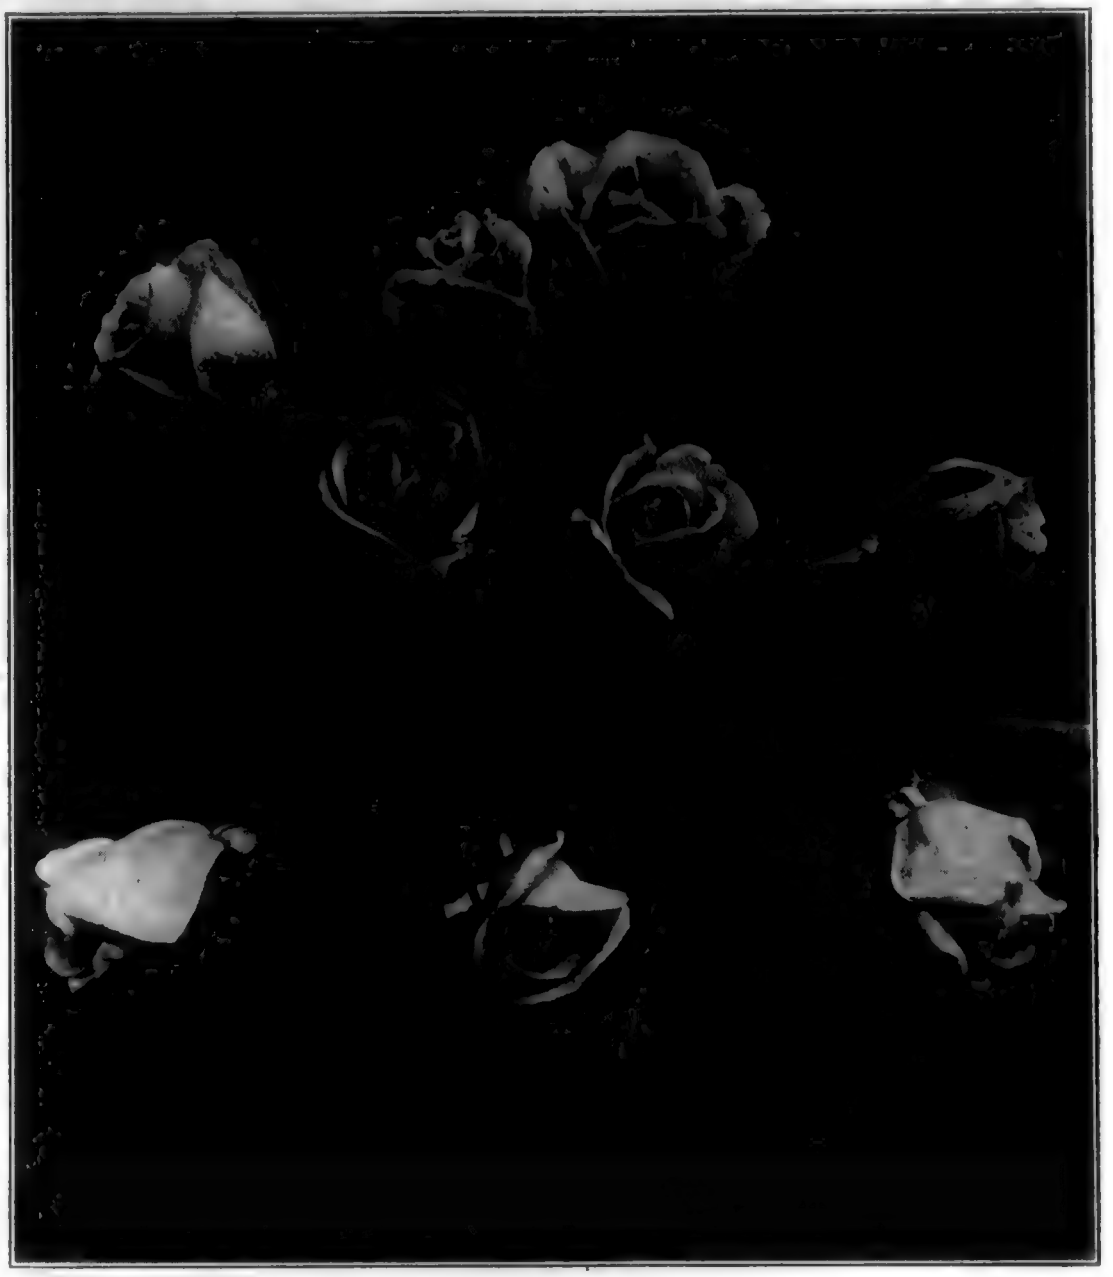
PAPER WHITES AND ROMANS.

Can Roman hyacinths and Paper White narcissi be used for bedding purposes? The temperature here in Nebraska varies from 50 degrees above zero to 20 degrees below zero during the winter season. Is it worth while to plant bulbs of the above-mentioned kinds that have been forced? A. C. T.

Neither of these bulbs would be of any value for bedding in your cold state. Both are much more tender than the Dutch bulbs. Their only value is for forcing under glass. In the warm states, where light frosts only occur, they can be bedded with fair success. Old bulbs of both Romans and Paper Whites are of absolutely no value for planting the second season. C. W.



BOSTON.

The Market.

Business last week showed a real, old-time boom. Dull weather materially reduced supplies and nearly everything arriving was cleaned out in short order. The present week sees a continuation of good trade and ice chests with wholesalers and at the markets have rarely contained fewer leftovers. The rose scarcity has been quite acute and it will be some days before an adequate supply arrives. Prices have advanced, even short-stemmed flowers bringing $6 per hundred. Good Beauties are in short supply and selling at high prices. Killarney and Richmond are quickly snapped up. Mrs. Aaron Ward sells as well as ever; even the despised Bride and Maid have been wanted. Carnations are in better supply than roses, but there is no surplus and prices are a little higher than a week ago. A few days will, however, bring about a decline.

Violets are selling better and sweet peas are making more satisfactory prices. The early fall and winter sowings are on the wane and later sowings are not yet in good season. Bulbous flowers are more abundant, but there is no glut as yet and prices have ruled better on these than a year ago. Quite a few double Von Sions are now arriving. Lily of the valley is about the only flower which is in oversupply. More of this is being marketed than in a long time. Mignonette is now good and antirrhinums are seen with much stronger flower stalks. English primroses are a welcome addition to the miscellaneous flowers. Forget-me-not is more plentiful.

Cattleyas are quite abundant, with prices showing a sagging tendency. Trianæ is now about the only variety seen. Quite a few Lælia anceps are seen, including the white variety. Cypripedium insigne is nearly over. Gardenias are not abundant. The demand for green stock has been good.

Rose Lady Hillingdon.

Various Notes.

I recently called on J. H. Leach & Son, North Easton, to see their new pink seedling carnation. It is the result of a cross between Boston Market and one of their own seedlings. In color it is identical with Fair Maid, but it has a fuller and better formed flower. It appears to be prolific, every shoot running up to flower, with no useless grass. A number of plants counted were carrying eighteen flowering shoots each, and they were not the first produced, by any means. At the Boston Coöperative Market this variety brings top-notch price. Leach & Son have some 6,000 cuttings in flats or the cutting bench and will plant it more heavily next season. Beacon, Winsor, White Perfection and Lawson were all carrying excellent crops. Sweet peas ten feet high were good and had been producing flowers since early fall. Thousands of freesias of excellent quality were noted in flats. Formosa lilies here, as elsewhere, were badly diseased. J. H. Leach is now in his eightieth year and wonderfully active for his age. It is only a few months since he ceased selling his own flowers at the market daily, a bad fall, from which he still feels some effects, compelling him to stay more at home and leave the selling to others.

At H. R. Comley's last week were noted some nice plants of the sweet-scented Mahernia odorata, chorozemas, cyclamens of the Papilio type, rhododendrons, English primroses and Lælia anceps alba.

Alfred N. Eaton, of South Sudbury, is consigning fine flowers of White Perfection, Winsor, Beacon and Queen carnations to B. J. McGinty at the Boston Coöperative Market.

F. H. Houghton, at his Boyleston street store, has some finely flowered prunus, rhododendrons and lilacs, also good hybrid amaryllis.

J. J. Casey, at the Rosary, Clarendon street, now receives the entire pick of George E. Buxton, Nashua, N. H. Mr. Buxton's carnations are always of first-class quality. They include Granite State, Pink Beauty and other seedlings.

Patten & Co., of Tewksbury, are sending some of the finest Purity freesias seen this season. They are grown in narrow benches, well up to the light, and are sold at T. F. Galvin's.

No finer Killarney and Richmond are seen in the wholesale markets than those now being handled by B. J. McGinty for W. R. Morris, of Wellesley.

H. L. Belcher, of Winthrop, is sending to the Boston Flower Exchange some extra fine lily of the valley, also Golden Spurs, tulips in variety, hyacinths and Paper Whites.

William E. Doyle is closing out the stock of plants in the greenhouses in Cambridge this week, which he has operated for many years, and will now give his entire attention to the two retail stores on Boylston and Beacon streets. Mr. Doyle's son remains as president of the new W. E. Doyle Co.; J. J. Cassidy, many years at the Boylston street store and well known to the trade, is treasurer; George Doyle, son of W. E. Doyle, and John Reehl are other members of the firm, which starts out under excellent auspices and with the sincere good wishes of all in the trade. Business is reported satisfactory at both stores. The specimen azaleas seen here are among the best in Boston, and orchids are sold in large numbers. Azalea Niobe, from Peirce Bros., is beautifully flowered. This firm is growing gladioli quite heavily for spring trade.

In spite of the prevailing scarcity of roses, W. H. Elliott's shipments from Madbury are quite heavy. Rhea Reid continues to do well. A few Richmond will be tried again next season. This variety has not been an entire success at Madbury, the soil evidently not being to its liking. Mrs. Aaron Ward continues to sell well. Mr. Elliott had Robert Simpson as a visitor last week. He is busy with plans for the coming rose convention and show.

There was an excellent attendance at Horticultural hall January 28 to hear the lecture of Prof. L. C. Corbett, of Washington, on "New England Market Gardeners and Their Competitors." Secretary Rich states that the change of hour for the lectures has resulted in the attendances being doubled.

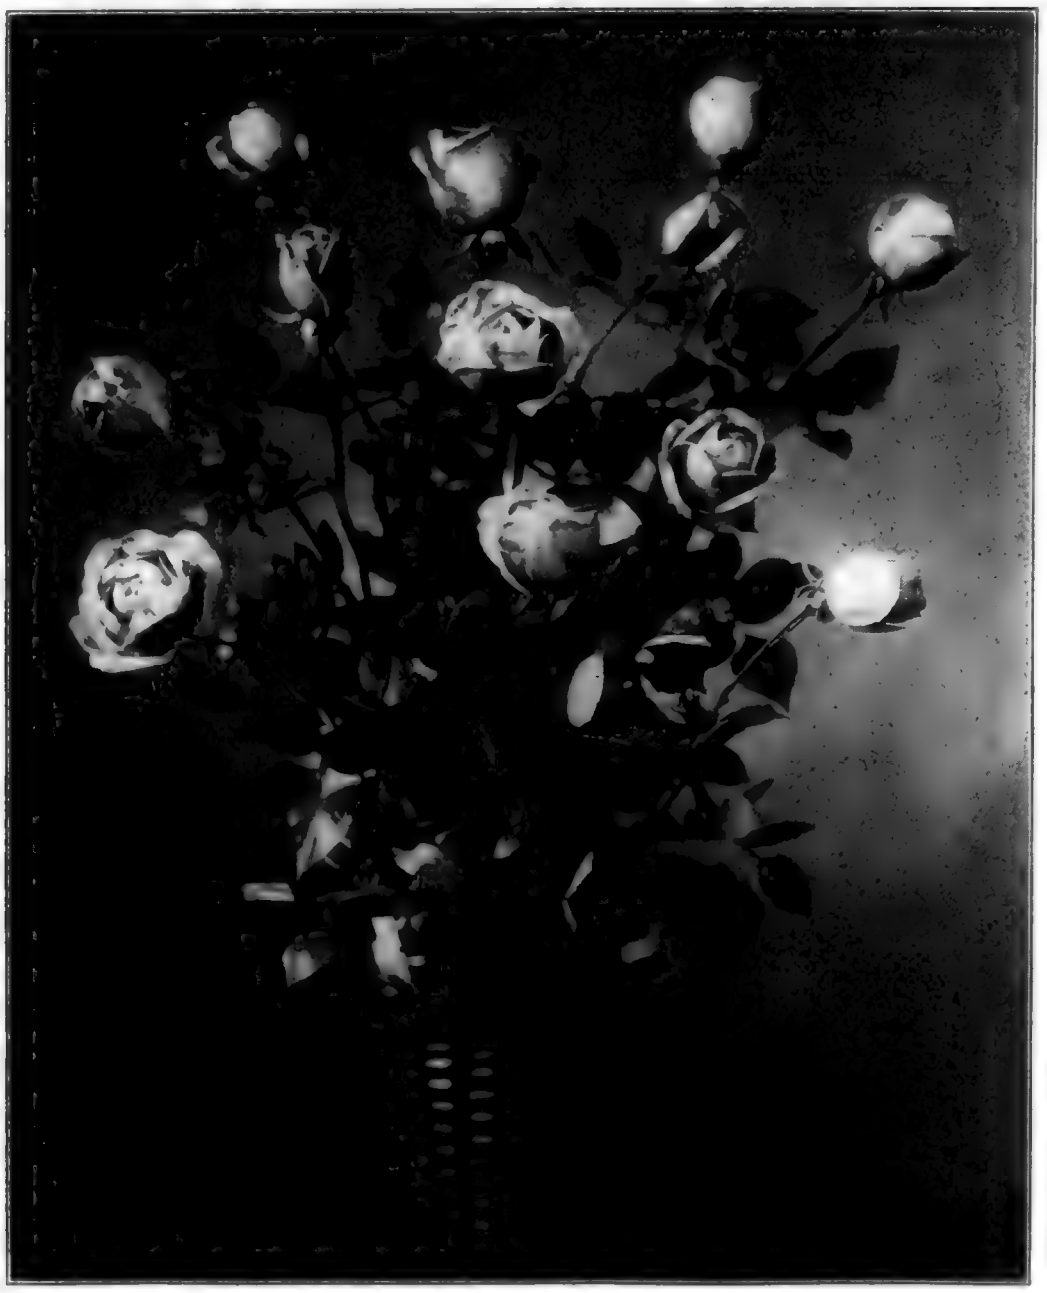
We are sorry to report S. J. Goddard as quite seriously ill with the grip, but hope he will soon be around again.

Arnold & Petros, in their new and up-to-date store on Boylston street, have this week some well flowered plants of Primula Kewensis, a plant worthy of increased attention.

William T. Walke, of Salem, is marketing an extra fine lot of cyclamens. He has his usual excellent lot of lilies and other Easter plants coming on in good shape.

Exhibits of new carnations and roses will be a feature at the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, February 14. Edwin Jenkins, of Lenox, will speak on "Science in Horticulture." This meeting always brings out the banner attendance of the year. Plans are already well under way for the annual club banquet, which will be in Horticultural hall February 28.

James Wheeler, of Natick, is picking an extra fine grade of carnations from his big new house. Pink Delight and May Day are each good. All the other standard sorts are doing well.



J. Newman & Sons had a fine centerpiece of Cypripedium insigne Sanderæ in their window last week, also some fine forms of C. Leeanum. They have been exceptionally busy of late with funeral work.

T. J. Grey, J. P. A. Guerineau and P. J. Van Baarda were among the Bostonians present at the annual banquet of the North Shore Horticultural Society at Manchester, Mass., January 25.

The next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be held February 14, instead of February 21. The lecturer will be Edwin Jenkins, of Lenox, Mass., on "Science in Horticulture." There will be special exhibits of carnations and roses at this meeting. The annual club banquet will be held February 28, at Horticultural hall. Tickets for this will be ready within a few days.

Recent visitors included J. S. Hay, representing Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, and M. De Graaff, the noted Dutch bulb grower and hybridizer.

January has proved an extremely open month. We have had hardly any snow and no severe frost. Ice men and lumber men are longing for snow and ice, but florists are satisfied with the weather we have had. W. N. Craig.

WILLIAM SIM.

One of the commercial places in the vicinity of Boston, which all growers like to visit when in the Hub, is that of William Sim, Cliftondale, Mass. Mr. Sim, like Peter Fisher, Alexander Montgomery, Robert Cameron, Duncan Finlayson and many more first-class growers, who are his comparatively near neighbors, hails from north of the Tweed. His father was a photographer, but an enthusiastic amateur gardener, and here the subject of this sketch got his first love for horticulture. In 1882, when only twelve years of age, he left home to work on a farm, where he stayed about three years. We next find him as an apprentice gardener at Stonehaven for an additional three years.

In 1888 he decided to try his luck in the United States and worked as assistant in a number of places, for eight years in all. In 1896 he started on his own account commercially in a modest way by leasing the Bailey greenhouses on Essex street, moving to his present location in 1899 and starting with 10,000 feet of glass. Many there were who shook their heads at his purchase of the land he has since reclaimed, and predicted failure all along the line. These prognosticators were soon silenced, as year by year the greenhouses grew in number and size until now they comprise 150,000 feet of perhaps the most up-to-date glass to be found in this section.

Mr. Sim long ago gave up the idea of growing a large variety of crops and is an excellent type of the up-to-date specializer, changing his specialties as they prove unprofitable and striking out into new channels.

At one time he grew about 75,000 single-stemmed chrysanthemums, comprising all the newest and best varieties. These flowers are less popular in the Boston market than they were and Mr. Sim soon dropped them for better paying crops. Candytuft of superb quality used to be one of his Memorial day features, but it is with violets and sweet peas that his name is most intimately linked. He surprised people when he began growing violets in houses 35x300, exploding the idea that these flowers thrived best in small and rather dark houses. Of single violets he grows 100,000, Princess of Wales and the new variety, Boston, predominating, but new varieties are constantly being tested.

Mr. Sim was the first grower of note to grow sweet peas under glass, of the new Zvolanek varieties, on a large scale. Of these he is still probably the largest grower and certainly is as successful as any grower in the United States. Those who want to see really high-grade sweet peas with tens of thousands of flowers open, should visit Cliftondale at the time of the S. A. F. national show in Boston. At no season are the houses unoccupied here. Until sweet peas grow so tall as to shade them seriously, violets occupy the ground between the pea rows. When violets in special houses are gone, tomatoes at once take their place, some 50,000 of these being grown to single stems annually, Comet being the favorite variety. One or two tons daily is no unusual pick. Cucumbers and melons are also grown to some extent.

Last season about twenty acres was planted with sweet corn, much of it being started in pots. As much as 400 boxes were picked a day. All this was cleared practically before other market growers began picking. Anything grown at Cliftondale is of high quality. All the houses are kept neat. The heating and ventilating are up-to-date, while the systems for supplying water and liquid manure are of the best. Manure is used heavily, Mr. Sim being a firm believer in giving the land plenty of it.

Mr. Sim recently completed a beautiful new 13-room residence for himself. Suspended to the iron gate is the Gaelic name, "Ben-y-Gloe," which being interpreted means "Sunshine on the Mountain." The grounds here are tastefully planted.

Mr. Sim is a member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and has served on the prize and exhibition committee. He has received many medals for his exhibits at the various shows at Boston. At the meetings of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club he is a regular attendant and has served on the executive board. He has favored the club with practical talks on several occasions. The S. A. F. and other special societies have his name on their membership lists and of the Sweet Pea Society he is now vice-president. Like all good growers, Mr. Sim is modest and unassuming, but is ever ready to welcome visitors at Cliftondale and entertain them kindly, in which his good wife ably seconds him. There are a quartette of winsome bairns in his household.

ILLINOIS FLORISTS TO MEET.

The sixth annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held at Champaign, Ill., February 8 to 10. Wednesday and Thursday, February 8 and 9, are the two main days. The banquet takes place February 8, in the evening. Among the addresses to be given, will be one by J. C. Vaughan, entitled "Live Issues for the Florist." Another address will be given by E. G. Hill, on "Some of the New Things." Mr. Hill's opinion of the new plants which are being offered for sale to the florists this year should alone be worth the price of a trip to Champaign. Mr. Dorner will give a talk on the work done at the experimental greenhouse. This work has now reached its second year on carnations and consists of the same number of carnation plants grown in little sections in the benches. These sections or controls are fed with commercial fertilizers, as compared with the same number of plants fed with the usual manure which the average grower would use, such as cattle manure, sheep manure, etc. The idea is to determine the best method of growing carnations in a commercial manner, whether by the use of the regular commercial fertilizer or by the use of the ordinary manures, to see which will produce the best results, Mr. Dorner having kept a record of the number of flowers cut from each little section. The growing of carnations in the most profitable manner is a vital point, of interest to each florist. Also, the point to decide whether the grafted rose plants or own-root rose plants are the best, as both grafted and own-root roses are being grown in an experimental way to compare with each other. Both of these are interesting points to every grower and the trip should be made to investigate and hear the results of the experiments.

The Illinois State Florists' Society has joined with other commercial bodies in this state and secured an order from the Board of Railway and Warehouse Commissioners to reduce the express rates in this state twenty per cent. The express companies got an injunction against the board, claiming that it has no jurisdiction in this matter, but this will soon be decided. Other matters which the society has carried out will be reported on by the various committees.

There will be an exhibition of various new varieties in roses and carnations which are being offered to the public this season. The E. G. Hill Co. has promised to show the new pink rose, Rose Queen, and also the new yellow rose, Mrs. Aaron Ward. This latter rose has been quite freely distributed in the east and has proven an exceptionally pretty rose. It seems to be a free bloomer and the public has taken to it in good shape. The Hill Co. will also show some of its new varieties of carnations. The Chicago Carnation Co. has promised to exhibit all of its new varieties, and a number of other growers have promised to bring in their new things. It will make the cut flowers a very interesting exhibition.

The banquet promises to be a very pleasant affair. Phil Foley has promised to be there with a brand-new stock of stories and this meeting will be a good opportunity for all of the members to become acquainted with each other, making new friends. All are invited to come, whether they are members or not. It only costs $1 per year to become a member, or $10 to become a life member. The work which the association is doing is well worth the small expense of the dues. It has been carried on without pay by the officers, most of the work having been performed by the secretary, J. F. Ammann.

SHASTA DAISIES.

Do you disbud Shasta daisies when putting the flowers on the market?

S. & S.

I have never seen any necessity for disbudding Shasta daisies. The stems invariably throw up a solitary flower and, even when side buds are left, they do not adversely affect the flower in any way. C. W.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The week opens with continued mild weather, but with cut flower values fairly steady, although there is no shortage of anything. Few Beauties touch 60 cents, only the best selected stock commanding that figure. A good deal of mediocre stock of this variety arrives. The supply of all other roses is increasing daily and prices are sagging. My Maryland is lower, in both price and quality. As usual, Killarney dominates and controls the rose market. Its popularity, if anything, is on the increase.

The carnation shipments are now abundant. Little common stock reaches the New York market, for anything but the best in quality and variety is almost unsalable here. McKinley day seems to have received less attention this year than last. There continues to be a bountiful supply of orchids in all the seasonable varieties and there has not yet been any advance in prices; 50 cents will buy the finest blooms. Cypripediums have declined. For the best gardenias $5 to $6 a dozen is readily obtained. There seems to be an unlimited supply, somewhere, of the low grade stock, and these depend upon the street merchants for their sale.

Violets are abundant and 40 cents seems to be the top quotation. The street men offer them at 25 cents a bunch and clean up the surplus as low as $2 per thousand. The supply of the best grade of valley seems limited, but the market is full of the inferior grades. Sweet peas are improving. Purity freesia is grand and commands 25 to 35 cents a bunch, while the commoner varieties go as low as $10 for 100 bunches. All the spring flowers are increasing in volume, and prices are steady at last week's quotations.

Smilax is too plentiful and has sold down to $4 per hundred strings. The best could be bought for $1 a dozen January 30. Lilies are down to $10 per hundred. Green goods are steady and abundant. A good deal of wild smilax is used, and there have been some elaborate dinner and ball decorations that have kept the supply houses hustling. The outlook is encouraging and from now until Lent society will make every day count in floral demonstration. The Gould wedding, February 7, will be the most elaborate of this year, or any year since Alexander McConnell began to marry off the Four Hundred some thirty or forty years ago.

Various Notes.

Monday, February 13, the next meeting of the New York Florists' Club will be held in the Grand Opera House building on Twenty-third street. Richard Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., will lecture on his experiences in Europe and his trip through the Holland bulb fields, using the stereopticon. Chairman Berry and his committee will demonstrate their ability as caterers and there will be some interesting exhibits. In the afternoon the club will bowl, and all members are invited.

The Yonkers Horticultural Society will have its second annual dinner at the Park Hill Inn, Yonkers, Tuesday evening, February 7.

Young & Nugent will open their new store at 789 Madison avenue, corner of Sixty-seventh street, March 1. The neighborhood is excellent, the store is 100 feet deep, and there will be a conservatory and all the modern attractions. Mr. Nugent's brother will be manager. The store on West Twenty-eighth street will continue as Mr. Nugent's headquarters.

The fifth annual banquet of the Glen Cove Horticultural Society, Wednesday evening, January 25, was a great success, and the dining hall was crowded, a large number of visitors from New York and sister clubs attending. President Trepess was in the chair and presented ex-President James Duthie with the gold links won in competition. Mr. Trepess was the recipient of a gold piece from Mr. Duthie for meritorious exhibits. J. A. Shaw was toastmaster. Will Rickards and Andrew Wilson sang, Jas. Tough made melody with the bagpipes and W. R. Kinnear recited. Messrs. Ebel, Totty, Duckham, Schultz, Sperling, W. Rickards, Jr., Maynard, Bunyard, MacNiff, Burnett, Butterfield and Wilson were the New York deputation.

Geo. M. Emmons, one of the growers for Louis Noe, has an orange tree with 168 oranges, ripe and delicious, on exhibition at his greenhouses at Newton, N. J.

Frank S. Good, lately of Buffalo, is now with John S. Nicholas, on Forty-second street.

Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit, was in the city January 27 on his way to Cuba.

Miss Grace Le Gendre is now bookkeeper for Traendly & Schenck, Mrs. Savin having retired after a faithful service of many years.

The Aphine Mfg. Co., of Madison, has offered a prize for each man of the winning team in the coming bowling match between New York and Rutherford.

Harry Cathcart, of the Yuess Gardens Co., of Newburgh, was a recent visitor. The company's new houses are nearing completion.

Quite a number of the wholesalers are serving their country as jurists, much to their dissatisfaction.

Andrew Wilson, of Chatham, N. J., is on the road for the Wilson Plant Oil and Fertilizer Co. The New York office of the firm is 150 Nassau street.

February 8 there will be a flower exhibition in conjunction with the monthly meeting of the Horticultural Society of New York. A number of prizes will be offered at each exhibition, the second Wednesday of each month.

The seed houses are all busy. If this mild weather continues, their customers will soon be planting.

The poultry exhibit of the Stumpp & Walter Co. makes one of their big windows on Barclay street a constant center of attraction for the pedestrians in lower New York.

Al. Rickards, of Rickards Bros., is away on his annual spring visit to the firm's patrons and reports the outlook promising. All the seedsmen's representatives on the road have a similar story to tell.

Kessler Bros. have had many large decorative orders lately and say the new fern, Dreyerii, is going fast.

Joseph Manda's entire household, except himself, was almost asphyxiated by escaping gas last week. An alarm clock saved the children and maid in the nick of time. Joe, with his usual luck, was occupying the bridal chamber and the gas never touched him.

NEWS, NOTES AND COMMENTS

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Brockton, Mass.—H. E. Baker, formerly in business at 75 Myrtle street, has withdrawn from the florists' trade.

Beverly, Mass.—Thomas Mulligan and Charles E. Caldwell, at North Beverly, both have unusually fine crops of vegetables in their greenhouses this season.

Melrose, Mass.—At the Higgins-Merrill wedding, in the home of the bride's parents on Florence street, the rooms were tastefully decorated by C. Casey, with palms, asparagus, pink roses and carnations.

Minneapolis, Minn.—The building at Fifth street and Nicollet avenue, of which Eldridge the Florist is one of the occupants, was damaged by fire January 19. The Eldridge store was one of the losers, but the amount is not stated.

Rockton, Ill.—P. E. Ward, who was in business with R. Gammon, has withdrawn from the firm, and Mr. Gammon has now entered into partnership with Otto Moore, formerly of Marion, Ind. Mr. and Mrs. Moore have already removed to this city.

Baraboo, Wis.—William Toole & Sons, the pansy specialists, have engaged R. H. Williams as greenhouse foreman. Mr. Williams has had many years' experience in various lines of greenhouse work and customers of the Tooles are insured getting the best stock as well as the best of service.

Leominster, Mass.—George M. Kendall is starting his greenhouses with cucumbers for the first time this winter. A year ago he had them going all winter, growing three crops of the cukes during the fall, winter and spring, but this year he decided to grow but one.

Roswell, N. M.—Mrs. J. P. Church, who had leased her range, known as the Alameda Greenhouses, on West Alameda avenue, to Frans O. Santheson for a period of five years, has now resumed personal charge of the place, as the lease expired January 1. Mr. Santheson is now manager of the newly built greenhouses of the Roswell Floral Co., in this city. He reports that the cut flower trade is prosperous.

Sidell, Ill.—T. J. Sconce, of the Fairview Farm Seed Co., was a member of the committee which was appointed to investigate the needs of the University of Illinois Agricultural College and which reported that the institution is "dying of starvation" and needs more liberal appropriations for its maintenance. The committee represented seven societies, including the Illinois State Florists' Association and the Illinois Horticultural Society.

Grafton, Mass.—Walter L. Stowe is building a third greenhouse, 25x100, on his farm in the Merriam district.

Greenfield, Mass.—P. E. Burtt furnished the decorations for the Odd Fellows' annual concert and ball, in Washington hall.

Natick, Mass.—Fred L. Hardy has filed a petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are stated to be $5,619, and his assets, $200.

Washington, D. C.—A fire in F. H. Kramer's store, January 21, is reported to have caused a loss of about $1,000 in the building and stock.

Akron, O.—Menna Yoder has purchased a farm near this city and will build a greenhouse for the growing of vegetables and general truck crops.

Delphi, Ind.—An explosion of a boiler, recently, at the greenhouses of Ben Hendrickson, resulted in more or less serious injuries to three men, besides a loss of property amounting to about $400.

Rockland, Me.—Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Mather recently visited New York and Boston, calling on some of the leading wholesale and retail florists there and investigating the latest ideas in designs and decorations.

Lowell, Mass.—On account of a breakdown of the boiler in the greenhouses of Otto H. Bourdy during one of the coldest nights of this winter, the entire stock in the houses was ruined. The boiler was beyond repair.

South Sudbury, Mass.—The Anderson range of greenhouses, consisting of seven houses, with a residence, barn and an acre and a half of land, fronting on the Boston-Worcester state highway, has been purchased by J. A. Bartlett.

Elkhart, Ind.—Mrs. E. M. Bullock, who has been seriously ill since Christmas day, suffering from nervous prostration, heart trouble and other complications, is slowly regaining strength and is believed to be on the road to recovery.

Freeport, Ill.—At the annual meeting of the directors of the Freeport Floral Co., all of the former officers were reelected, as follows: President, Dr. D. C. L. Mease; vice-president, William Cronkrite; treasurer, C. H. Little; secretary, Louis Bauscher; foreman, Adolph Pitterle. Plans were made for further improvements and a still greater extension of the business. During the last year the company has erected a range of eight greenhouses on East Adams street. Five of the houses are new; the other three were removed from a former location. The total glass area is 50,000 square feet.

Beverly, Mass.—The Beverly Cove Greenhouses are now being conducted by Ralph W. Ward, successor to George E. Ward & Son.

Tampa, Fla.—M. E. Gillett, the nurseryman of this city, recently spent a week at Winter Haven, where he has large orange groves and nursery interests.

Austin, Tex.—Charles Alff is now state florist, having received the appointment from Dr. A. B. Conley, the new superintendent of public buildings and grounds.

Orono, Me.—J. A. Maloney, who has been conducting a greenhouse near his home, at Webster Side, finds that his business has outgrown his facilities and he is now building a larger house.

Princeton, Ill.—The W. E. Trimble Greenhouse Co. is adding to its large glass area three more greenhouses, two 30x75 and one 30x135. These houses will be devoted exclusively to the growing of rooted cuttings and stock plants for the wholesale market.

Waco, Tex.—Wolfe the Florist furnished the bouquet which was carried by Mrs. O. B. Colquitt, wife of the governor, at the inaugural ball in Austin. The bouquet consisted of orchids, valley and roses, and was arranged by Mrs. Annie Wolfe-Brigance, who has great skill in this line.

Muskogee, Okla.—It is reported that an attempt was made, January 25, to murder James S. Mitchell, head gardener at one of the parks here, by throwing a stick of dynamite down the chimney of his cottage. The stove was blown to fragments, but Mr. Mitchell escaped with only slight injuries.

Little Falls, N. Y.—J. O. Graham recently visited Ithaca, where his son, Simon C., has entered Cornell for a special course in greenhouse work. Mr. Graham says the new greenhouses at that institution are up-to-date and the stock in good condition, and that the young man is well pleased with his work.

Nevada, Mo.—F. R. Roe, who was a commercial grower of fruit in western Colorado for seven years and also grew flowers in a more limited way, has now purchased the Weltmer greenhouses, in this city, and will conduct them under the name of the Volcano Greenhouses. The houses at present contain 20,000 square feet of glass and he says he proposes to double that area soon. He has ordered a new $500 boiler, to be used in conjunction with a similar one installed a year ago. E. D. Piercey, of this city, has been engaged as grower.

The Review brings results.

THE price of glass is creeping up, but a lot of it has been bought low.

DON'T bother about "the fellow down the street"—the chances are the things you hear are not true.

COAL is one of the important items that does not cost the greenhouse operator as much this winter as it did last year.

CUTTINGS of White Enchantress are in strong demand, but buyers want to be assured that they are getting the pure white strain.

THE supply houses are reporting their most active season. The accessories are now scarcely less necessary than the flowers themselves.

ROSES have been off crop and scarce through the length and breadth of the land these last three weeks, as an aftermath of the heavy supplies at Christmas.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

IN reading The Review I often have thought that if some of the other industries that are near to the soil were as well represented, in magazine form, as the florists are in your journal, the crowding of cities and the abandonment of farms would cease to be national problems.—Dugald Campbell.

Two full pages and two half pages of advertising were omitted from this issue of The Review for the reason that the copy arrived after the forms had closed. It is a weekly experience to receive desirable advertisements too late for insertion in the issue intended. Advertising forms close at 5 p. m. Tuesdays.

IT IS a safe prediction that more than one rose grower will next season bring a part of his place into crop for a cut the latter part of January. Pretty nearly every one now times his crops successfully for Christmas, and for the last two years white roses especially have been worth fully as much in late January as they were at the holidays, and considerably more than in mid-December and early January, when the heavy crops were just coming on and going off.

LADIES' S. A. F.

The following committees have been appointed to act for the Ladies' Society of American Florists at the National Flower Show:

Prize committee—Mrs. Chas. H. Maynard, Mrs. J. A. Peterson, Mrs. I. L. Powell and Mrs. R. Wittman.

Theater committee—Mrs. W. H. Elliott, Mrs. W. J. Stewart, Mrs. Peter Fisher and Mrs. B. Hammond Tracy.

Reception committee—Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Mrs. Julius Roehrs, Jr., Mrs. Chas. H. Totty and Mrs. J. C. Vaughan.

By order of Mrs. J. V. Phillips, president. Mrs. Chas. H. Maynard, Sec'y.

OBITUARY.

F. A. Schluter.

F. A. Schluter, a florist and gardener of Durango, Colo., died in Ochsner hospitol, January 19, after a painful and lingering illness. He was born in Germany, but had spent the greater part of his life in the United States. He had been a resident of Durango for thirty years and had been in the florists' trade for the last twenty-five years, building up a substantial business. Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Thomas Dupraw, and three stepsons, August, Henry and Emil Klahn. The business will be continued by Mrs. Schluter.

Henry Mundt.

Henry Mundt, once a well known grower for the Chicago market, died January 5 at his home in Forest Park, Ill., and was interred January 29 at Concordia cemetery. He was 53 years of age and is survived by his wife. Mr. Mundt retired from business three or four years ago. For many years he had grown three houses of carnations and quantities of sweet peas, peonies, asters, etc., for sale through Chicago commission houses.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Demand has continued as strong as the supply. All last week there were more orders for roses than it was possible to furnish. Toward the end of the week, McKinley day, almost forgotten locally, was felt in the increased call for carnations, for which prices stiffened because it was not possible to supply the demand. The shortage in roses and carnations turned a portion of the demand to bulbous stock, of which there was an abundance, so that no one need go without flowers. Violets also were in plentiful supply and received little benefit from the advancing tendency of prices for other flowers.

The present week opened with conditions only slightly modified as a result of a slackening demand and one or two bright days. Rose crops are on the up grade, but thus far the change has been slight; some growers say it will be another week or ten days before there is any material increase in the supply, but others say two or three days more of bright, warm weather will make an appreciable difference. The demand for roses has subsided more or less, because buyers feel it will be difficult to get their orders filled, and therein lies one of the unpleasant features of the situation: It will take the buyers some little time to get their trade going again when roses once more become plentiful. Instead of calling for short roses, the buyers now are ordering either white carnations or white tulips.

The call for carnations at the opening of this week was not so strong as it was at the close of last week; in fact, some tendency to weakening prices was noted January 28. The cut has not increased to any great extent, but there will be an abundance of carnations the moment there are enough roses. The stock now offered is of the finest quality seen this season. Splits are not so numerous as they were. White is in special demand.

Sweet peas have shortened up, but the stock coming in is of improved quality. Cattleyas are less plentiful, but

WE HANDLE THE CREAM OF THE

VIOLETS

Order Now for St. Valentine's Day

WHILE we have a very large supply of fine Violets, the prospect is for a heavier demand than ever before for Valentine's Day, so it is the part of wisdom for retailers to place orders with us now. Send us your order today, or write us about it. Those who place orders now are insured—sure of their supply and protected against rise in price.

SWEET PEAS

Long-stemmed, fancy stock, all colors

These are fine Peas—no better ever were offered at this season of the year—the best winter-blooming varieties done to perfection. These Peas made a hit last year, and our growers increased the supply for this season. We ship fresh from the vines, putting the stock in your hands with all its first fragrance. In full crop for Valentine's Day.

Cattleyas

Our orchids are home-grown, and our sources of supply are so large you always can get your orders filled if you place them with us. Order now for St. Valentine's Day.

Fancy Valley

Fine Valley is something you need, not only for St. Valentine's, but every day in the year. We always have it. Order of us.

Also place orders with us for home-grown Gardenias.

Killarneys

A large cut of notably fine roses: most of them are of the special long fancy grade, but a new crop of shorter stems is just ready.

Beauties

For color and size of flower this stock would be hard to equal. Specially strong on the 36-inch and up. Can fill the largest orders.

Carnations

We can fill all your orders. Our supply is large and the quality up to our usual high standard—none better. Let us hear from you on these, for we know you will increase your orders as soon as you have tried this stock.

Easter Lilies

We can supply Easter Lilies every day in the year, fine quality.

Bulb Stock

Call on us for Tulips, Jonquils, Trumpets, Paper Whites, Romans, Freesia, etc.

Headquarters for all Green Goods

Fancy Ferns that are without equal; best we ever had to offer at this time of year.

still equal to all demands. There appears to be no limit to the violet supply. Gardenias are selling better than other seasons, because either gardenias, cattleyas or valley are used with most of the violet corsages. Valley is plentiful. There has been an increase in the supply of Easter lilies, but callas continue scarce.

In the latter part of last week there was a pronounced increase in the supply of bulbous stock, except Paper Whites, which are less plentiful and bringing old-time prices. Tulips have come in heavily and are selling first-rate. Much of the stock is of excellent quality, all colors are available and sales are rather more satisfactory than the bulb growers have had in recent years.

Really good ferns are not plentiful and the price has advanced. There is a good call for Mexican ivy and adiantum. The market is well supplied with smilax, but there are only moderate supplies of asparagus.

January Business.

The total of sales in the Chicago market for January shows a good increase over the first month of 1910. During the first ten days of the month stock was plentiful and the large quantity moved, if at low prices, ran into a good total. Then roses shortened, as they always do after the Christmas crop is off. Under the influence of increased shipping demand, prices of roses advanced sharply, which had a stiffening effect on the values of all other flowers. On the whole, there was more stock in the market this January than last, as good prices were realized and the month's sales total a satisfactory increase.

Various Notes.

One of the evening papers is conducting a voting contest to see who its readers want for candidates for mayor. Peter Reinberg is receiving rather more votes than anyone not an avowed candidate. All Mr. Reinberg's influence goes for his friend, Carter H. Harrison.

The J. A. Budlong lease in the Atlas block expires May 1 and the agent insists on a three years' term for a renewal. Phil Schupp thinks that under the circumstances he is entitled to a short term and says they will move rather than permit themselves to be saddled with a long lease just at a time when they may wish to participate in a general removal to a florists' building.

Joe Strauss and his bride have returned from their wedding trip to Florida.

A few months ago George Reinberg's entire stock of cattleyas was taken out of the baskets and potted. The expected benefit has not yet materialized.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., says the latter part of January is showing a fine increase in their sales, which he largely accounts for by the better demand of this year than last for tulips and other bulbous stock.

O. J. Friedman, Tom Fogarty and an assistant went to Paducah, Ky., January 31 to put up a wedding decoration.

exactly double the same week of last year.

In the supply department of the A. L. Randall Co., Miss Tonner says business is running much ahead of last year. There are many calls for St. Valentine's day specialties.

Bassett & Washburn are grafting roses more heavily than last year. They ordered 125,000 Manetti stocks, but the European growers cut this down to 92,000 because of the season's scarcity. A house of giganteum lilies is a fine sight just now.

Chicago will be well represented at Champaign during the coming week. The largest number will go down Wednesday morning, February 8.

The Florists' Club meets at the Union restaurant February 2.

John Flint, of the Star Floral Co., says Victory has been their most profitable carnation this season as well as last.

O. J. Friedman had the family order for the Selz funeral January 28, including a casket cover of violets. W. J. Smyth sent two wagon loads of designs and many others had good orders.

Wendland & Keimel will not put up their new range until next October. They are figuring on 32-foot houses and 4-foot benches. Mr. Keimel thinks the middle row, in a bench carrying five rows of rose plants, is not a profitmaker.

It is reported W. S. Garland, Des Plaines, will add one house 27 x 250 and lengthen another.

Matthews & Co. now are proprietors of the Park Flower Shop, established at 206 Fifty-eighth street by Mrs. E. Morton.

At E. H. Hunt's, W. E. Lynch says he anticipates St. Valentine's day will show another big increase in business again this year and that stock of all kinds will have become plentiful by then.

E. F. Winterson was at St. Louis last week for the opening of the bowling congress.

W. J. Smyth has lost another big plate glass window, cracked by the wind.

The Deerfield Nurseries are reported to be having such good success with gardenias that Frank Kottrasch, the proprietor, has decided to build two more houses this spring. John Kruchten, who is their selling agent, says he cannot confirm the report, but believes it.

The George Wittbold Co. has just let a contract for $1,200 worth of advertising in the street cars and is getting out two retail catalogues for spring distribution.

Fred Sperry has tired of life in a city flat; he has just closed the purchase of a house in Oak Park, where his partner, A. L. Vaughan, resides, to which he will remove his family May 1.

The death of Henry Mundt, once a well known grower at Oak Park, is recorded in this week's obituary column.

The Chicago Carnation Co. has delivered 65,000 cuttings of Carnation Washington, the dark pink Enchantress. Wietor Bros. have gone into it to the extent of 5,000.

Kyle & Foerster report that Klehm's Nurseries began cutting their annual crop of "Novelty" tulips January 25.

Johnson & Chronis had a large order last week for Mrs. J. T. Harahan, one of the items furnished being five dozen cattleyas.

The directors of the Flower Growers' Co. will meet this week to elect officers and decide on the course for the future.

One inquiry received in the market January 30 called for St. Valentine's quotations on 125,000 sweet peas, 20,000 carnations and other stock in proportion.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., says inquiries for sweet peas and violets for Valentine's day are earlier, more numerous and call for larger quantities than ever before.

John Zech says it was the best January Zech & Mann have had.

Harry Manheim, of Hoerber Bros., says city trade, as well as shipping, has been excellent all through January.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. will plant a house and a half next season with the Double Pink Killarney rose and also will give Melody and several other new ones a trial.

The Burlington Willowware Shops, of Burlington, Ia., have an extensive display of florists' baskets on view at the Palmer House this week.

The Foley Mfg. Co. has installed a display of Giblin boilers at the plant at Western avenue and Twenty-sixth street. The western agency for this boiler was recently acquired by Mr. Foley.

The American Horticultural Co., with offices in the Marquette building, has increased its capital stock from $5,000 to $25,000.

Harry Garland, of the Geo. M. Garland Co., of Des Plaines, says that requests are numerous for estimates on

The Market.

Trade, with the exception of one or two days of funeral work, has been quiet for the last two weeks. Roses have been decidedly short, the better grades being scarce. The best Killarneys have been bringing $15 per hundred wholesale, while Brides and Maids bring $10 per hundred. Carnations are more plentiful, the supply being about equal to the demand. Sweet peas, Roman hyacinths, narcissi, stevias, tulips, jonquils and lilacs are part of the daily stock. Callas and Easter lilies have a good call, but orchids and valley are slow to move. Cut green goods are enough to fill orders.

Various Notes.

Clarence Thomas spent a few days in Louisville last week.

Bertermann Bros. Co. has bought glass for two new houses to be built this year and intends to grow roses in them.

Visitors last week were: Fred Lembke, with W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; Meyer Heller, New Castle, Ind.; G. L. Freeman, New York city; Geo. Baldwin, New York city; M. A. Leganger, with A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Louis Berger, with Gt. Van Waveren & Kruijff; E. E. Stewart, Rives Junction, Mich., and E. T. Barnes, Spencer, Ind.

The Smith & Young Co., of Cumberland, has been shipping some fine Cattleya Trianæ lately.

Will Roepke, of the Roepke-Rieman Co., was married this week and has the best wishes of all the craft.

Mrs. Pahud, wife of Alfred Pahud, Sr., died last week at the Deaconess hospital. Mrs. Pahud had not been ill long, her death being the result of an operation.

Carl Groener is back at work after spending ten days in Chicago.

A. Wiegand & Sons had a narrow escape with their delivery auto one day last week. But for the quick work of Harry Kelly it would have been destroyed by fire. A leak of gasoline became ignited in some manner and the whole front of the machine was ablaze. Recently this firm installed a 2-inch water line and large hose for fire protection and had it not been for this they would have lost the auto.

L. F. Benson and wife have been spending a few days in Cincinnati.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

Supply and demand are fairly balanced. The optimists tell you that with any business would come a great scarcity of flowers, while the pessimists assert that with more flowers prices would tumble and stock accumulate. Business moves nicely. There are plenty of shipping orders and a fair amount of local business. The quality of flowers generally is fully up to the standard. Roses have improved as the crops come on and excellent blooms of all the varieties, barring only one, are plentiful. That one, American Beauty, can hardly be so described, although orders can usually be filled at listed price for specials.

McKinley day did not especially affect carnations. Some orders were placed for that occasion, but they were few. The general carnation market is in such good shape that any special demand would not be as welcome as usual at this season, when carnations often lag. Colors are in greater favor than white. The poorer grades of the latter are the weak features in carnations. Violets are doing better than at any time since Christmas. The weather has been generally favorable, while prices are low enough to attract buyers. The quantity of sweet peas coming into the market is nothing like what it should be. There is a large increase in the amount of glass so occupied this winter, but only a small increase in the quantity of flowers received. This is the more exasperating because there is a market for so many more good peas. Bud dropping and divers diseases due to lack of sunshine and failure to strictly observe the laws of plant hygiene are responsible.

The bulbous, or so-called spring flowers, have leaped into an important place. Daffodils lead; Golden Spur and Trumpet Major in the order named. They are handled in large quantities, the smaller Trumpets falling a point and a half behind in price. Tulips can be had in all colors; when good they sell readily. Freesia is in demand. Paper Whites have fallen off in price. Romans drag badly. Valley is in heavy supply and fair demand. The absence of foliage on the handsome new crop is a blemish soon to be overcome. Pansies are not so plentiful as they should be to meet requirements. It is said they, too, had a trying summer.

The heavy cut of cattleyas is past. They are gradually moving back to the half-dollar mark. A fair supply of gardenias is arriving, with prospects of continuing. Callas are popular, but not at fancy prices. Greens, barring smilax, are in fair demand. Yellow daisies are preferred to white, even at a cent more. Easter lilies are in moderate demand. Lilac moves briskly.

The Collingdale Greenhouses.

Those familiar with the floral history of Philadelphia will recall vividly the splash made in the early eighties by Maximilian La Roche. Up to the time of Mr. La Roche's appearance on the scene, this city had but one commission house, that of Charles E. Pennock. The growers grew and sold their own flowers in that happy-go-lucky way that was possible only in those early days, when flowers were at a premium and everything sold at glorious prices. Those were the hand-shaking days, when the retailers knew that the best use for their hands, no matter how busy they might be, was to grasp those of each grower as he entered the door and shake them with enthusiasm borne of dire need for the flowers he brought.

Mr. La Roche appeared on this scene of primeval peace like a whirlwind. He established a retail store with a hard-working partner, placed a wholesale commission house in the basement and built a large greenhouse plant at Collingdale. Possibly this is a misleading statement, for after the disappearance of Mr. La Roche from the scene, a few years later, the other Philadelphia florists began to feel that perhaps they had built this plant. Be that as it may, the Collingdale Greenhouses passed from bad to worse until they reached the lowest round of the floral ladder.

Finally, three years ago, Alfred M. Campbell leased what was left of this plant and placed Fred Schezsky in charge. It was a hard battle for three years; the houses were old and poorly constructed, the place sorely neglected. Today the Collingdale Greenhouses, comprising some 28,000 square feet of glass, are in better shape than they have been for many a long year. The place looks well. It is devoted to Asparagus plumosus for sprays, a specialty here; to young plants of asparagus, growing vigorously; to adiantums, among which the hybridum in small pots were particularly fine; to nephrolepis and to Kaiserin roses. Ten thousand Emperor daffodils are grown as a side line, as well as petunias, feverfew and, it may be, gladioli. Plenty of hard work has been put into this place and it looks as if brighter days were dawning.

Rose Double Killarney.

Samuel S. Pennock wishes to correct the impression that Double Killarney lacks color. Mr. Pennock says that when a prospective buyer told him of this report, he asked that judgment be suspended until the rose was seen growing. Sharon Hill was visited and an order placed for 500 Double Killarney. Mr. Pennock also said that Edwin J. Fancourt had brought him three blooms of Double Killarney that were better colored than any Killarney in the cooling rooms.

This same heading will appropriately cover another Double Killarney, a white with thirty-six petals to each flower. This rose has originated with S. J. Reuter & Son, Westerly, R. I. It came from the Waban strain of White Killarney. This firm now has 100 plants of their sports. Some flowers seen at the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. this week showed wonderful substance.

The Market.

The market conditions and the retail business were most excellent last week. All the wholesale houses seem to have plenty of stock in everything except roses, and these have been extremely scarce in this market. There was a great demand for carnations in all colors. The top price was $6 per hundred for extra fancy, and the bulk of them brought $4 to $5 per hundred. Even small Boston Market was held at 4 cents.

The weather seemed just right for California violets, and consignments of from 50,000 to 100,000 from our Kirkwood growers came in daily. The extra fancy stopped at 75 cents per hundred. Roses are all quoted high, owing to the scarcity, and $5 to $6 per hundred is asked for culls. The few that come in were all placed on advance orders. In bulbous stock the trade bought heavily in all lines, but there are not the usual big cuts in Romans and Paper Whites. Sweet peas sell well in all the light shades, and the fancy have quite a good call. Tulips have been coming in fine and all sell well except the yellow. All greens are selling as usual.

The retail trade reports a splendid week's business in all lines—weddings, receptions, dinners and funeral work. McKinley day fell on a Sunday and was not so generally observed as it would have been during the week. Good social work should continue from now on until Lent sets in.

SEFTON CORRUGATED SHIPPING CASES

STRONG, LIGHT AND CONVENIENT

WHY use heavy wooden Boxes for Shipments of Flowers and Plants when you can get a box better adapted to your needs, weighing about one-half as much?

Our Boxes are made to fold flat; thus insuring economy in storage space and enables the commission merchant to knock them down and return them in bundles, reducing return charges--they can be used over and over.

Our Patented K. D. Tin Corner is the only satisfactory K.D. corner ever adapted to a Corrugated Shipping Case. It gives you a perfectly flat box. Costs no more than set up corners.

Standard Mail Tubes

Did you see the article headed

"THE PLANT MAILING RADIUS"

on page 16 of the January 12th number of The Review? It's rather interesting—A severer test could hardly be made. We have done some testing ourselves, but this test, which was made without our knowledge with a regular stock tube, is certainly the hardest test we ever heard of. Evidently our tube meets every requirement. Have you used them? Samples on request.

Werner & Bro., of Clayton, have had great success their first year with growing roses for this market. Their Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond have been in great demand at the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. all season. They are at present, like all others, off crop.

W. J. Pilcher's new violet, with 12-inch to 15-inch stems, is bringing top prices in this market. He has named it the Mazzura. It has a great demand with the west end florists.

Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, accompanied by Mrs. Berkowitz, is here this week, interesting the local trade in florists' supplies.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Gross, of Kirkwood, Mo., entertained all the florists in Kirkwood Saturday night, January 28, at their home, and the Ude band furnished the music. All the florists brought their wives, and there was dancing, singing and plenty of good things to eat. The night was much enjoyed.

The Florists' Club will hold its regular monthly meeting Thursday afternoon, February 9, in Odd Fellows' hall. This will be the club's annual carnation meeting, and a number of new varieties will be shown for the benefit of our carnation growers, who always come out in full force at this meeting. There will also be a number of discussions on carnations and plenty of good cigars.

Mrs. Minnie E. Young, wife of the late John Young, who was head of the firm of C. Young & Sons Co., died Sunday, January 29, after a lingering illness at her home, 4928 Forest Park boulevard. She leaves four children to mourn her loss. Mrs. Young has controlled her late husband's interest in the company. The funeral took place Tuesday morning from her late residence. The local trade was largely represented at the funeral, and many beautiful floral designs were seen.

W. W. Randall, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, called last week with a nice lot of florists' supply samples.

Ed Winterson, of Chicago, spent a day with us last week, attending the meeting of the American Bowling Congress in session here, at which he represented the Chicago bowlers. His many friends here in the trade were glad to see him. Jimmie Stevens, well known among the Chicago florists' bowlers, was

Six Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand. If you are the only florist in your city represented here, you get the orders coming into your territory from other florists. If you are not represented and "the other fellow" is—we can leave it to you what becomes of these desirable orders.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

Roses are scarce and the demand is greater than the supply. There are few Beauties in this market and those that come in are taken up rapidly at rather high prices. Carnations are not plentiful and prices are about 4 cents wholesale. The department stores that handle the Chicago surplus every Saturday were asking 4 cents at retail last week, whereas they generally sell at only 2 cents.

Violets are plentiful this week, but single varieties are most in evidence. Tulips are in now, but are selling slowly, as it is early for them. Double daffodils have not yet arrived, but narcissi are selling well, although the supply is short at present.

Azaleas are plentiful and find a ready sale at good prices—much better than for many years. Pink and red shades seem to predominate and few white are seen. Cyclamen are good and plentiful this year and this market is well stocked with sweet peas, as there are quite a few new firms that are growing them this season. Prices range from 75 cents to $1 per hundred.

Various Notes.

There is some talk of a new firm building a large range of houses for wholesale cut flowers, but we hear this every winter when stock is scarce and high, but when warm weather comes these plans seem to fade away.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. was busy with funeral work last week and reports that business has been simply immense ever since November. This company is growing more stock this year than ever before, but it can't keep pace with the demand.

The G. M. Kellogg Flower Co. has quite a large lot of azaleas in bloom this week and says that they are selling well.

The Humfeld-Orear Floral Co. has bought a new top wagon that is a beauty and adds much to the business. This company reports a splendid trade and is more than pleased in the new location.

W. H. Sawvel, at Fifty-eighth street and Bennington avenue, reports that the first crop of lettuce is all sold and the second crop is coming on nicely. He is cutting quite a fine lot of sweet peas and finds a ready sale for them.

Robt. B. Tindall, Independence, Mo., is now shipping some fine stevia to this market and finds a good demand for all he can grow at $2 per hundred. As his crop came late, he has no opposition; hence the demand. Mr. Tindall has been successful at other times in supplying this market with late chrysanthemums. W. H. H.

too fast and the growers of hyacinths and narcissi are overstocked, with a following scarcity of these valuable flowers during the latter part of February. Azaleas, camellias, Primula obconica, cyclamens, etc., are plentiful, but buyers for them are scarce, notwithstanding the low prices. Boston, Piersoni and Elegantissima ferns, as well as Asparagus Sprengeri, which are used everywhere here all the year around to adorn front galleries, porches and gardens, have been killed by the recent frost and the florist who has a good stock on hand will easily dispose of them; the demand for fresh plants of these kinds is increasing daily.

The ravages of the frost are greater than at first noticed. A closer observation several days after the frost revealed the fact that nearly all the Phœnix reclinata and P. Roebelenii without any protection were killed. Even young, robust growing plants of Washingtonia filifera robusta suffered heavily. Phœnix Canariensis, Chamærops excelsa and C. humilis, all sabal varieties, as well as Erythea armata, are untouched and it can be said that in the future these palms will be planted more extensively than in former years.

Pansies, violets, Roman hyacinths and Paper White narcissi brighten the somewhat somber looking gardens at present. The extremely warm weather causes everything to sprout out afresh and, another cold spell barred, the Crescent City will in a short time be again resplendent in an abundance of all kinds of flowers.

Society Meeting.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting January 19 at Kolb's German tavern, President Richard Eichling, Vice-president R. Simon, Secretary C. R. Panter and about fifteen members being present. The committee appointed at the last meeting to find a suitable place in the business section of the city in which to hold a show reported that they had not found one yet. After a lengthy debate, it was decided to give the same committee more time to confer with the owners of some of the large department stores or hotels. The sewerage and water board has asked for bids for the beautifying of the grounds under its control, and the society indorsed the action. The city board of health is about to adopt a fly ordinance which imposes great hardships on all florists, landscape gardeners and truck farmers, on account of the storing of their necessary manure. C. R. Panter and P. A. Chopin were successful at a meeting of the board in bringing about several changes in the ordinance. The following committee, to be present at the board's next meeting, was appointed: P. A. Chopin, J. C. Quinette and Hermann Doescher.

J. C. Quinette will read a paper at the next meeting, February 16, on "Trees and Hardy Shrubs Suitable for Planting in New Orleans and Its Vicinity." The secretary was instructed to invite the members of the parking commission to be present and take part in the discussion. The lecture will be the first of several that will be given at the meetings of the society.

J. A. Newsham exhibited a fine and rare collection of East Indian dendrobiums. Richard Eichling, foreman of U. J. Virgin's nursery, brought cut flowers of double poinsettias and lily of the valley.

Various Notes.

J. A. Newsham issued a special invitation to the public to visit his display of orchids in bloom at his nursery, January 10. A very large number of admirers, including many professionals, were present.

The Market.

Business conditions are normal, about the same as the preceding week, with supply and demand about equal, making practically a daily clean-up. Spring flowers are becoming more plentiful. Tulips, in pans, and genistas sell readily and also make attractive display windows.

The Chinese New Year created a great demand for azaleas and Roman hyacinths, as these are about the only flowers the celestials will buy for the celebrations. A special batch of azaleas is grown for this particular occasion.

Various Notes.

Lee Walz, of Seattle, passed through the city en route home from an extended trip to Mexico and California.

S. G. Lubliner is having roses shipped from Chicago and they come through in good condition. Bobbie Shank is in charge of the store.

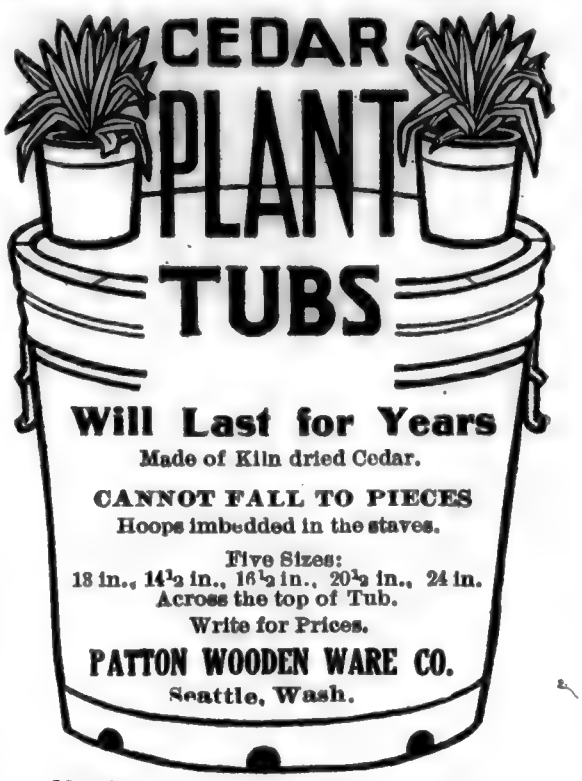
Warren & Moore, Lents, Ore., had considerable stock spoiled recently by the bursting of a steam pipe. E. R. C.

VICTORIA, B. C.

The Market.

Trade since Christmas has been normal only. Flowers, with the possible exception of roses, have been sufficient for the demand. Chrysanthemums are now about finished. The best late varieties suited to this locality are W. H. Chadwick, Yellow Chadwick, Mrs. J. Jones, Yellow Jones and Nagoya.

The recent cold snap, during which the thermometer fell to 19 degrees above zero, was not accompanied by any strong wind and so was little noticed by the local trade. The climate in this locality is much more favorable to the florists' trade than is frequently supposed, especially in the amount of sunshine enjoyed throughout the year. The official record, covering a period of years, gives an average of about thirty-five per cent of the total possible bright sunshine.



Club Meetings.

During February a public meeting, under the auspices of the Florists' Club, will be held, at which a member of the government's horticultural staff will lecture on "Common Garden Pests and How to Fight Them." In March, E. A. Wallace, of Flewin's Gardens, will lecture on "Perennials and How to Plant Them." The club is progressing favorably. Its meetings are interesting and well attended. F. B.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Another week of rainy weather has passed over us and the end is apparently not yet in sight. While this is just what the country needs, there is such a thing as getting too much, and if the showers do not soon cease the dear public will be praying as fervently for the downpour to stop as they were for it to begin a few weeks ago. With the great lessening of sunshine there has been a great falling off in the amount of flowers being brought into town, and for a few days, at least, we will have to pay fully twenty per cent more than we did ten days ago. Violets, however, have not shared in the shortage, and as the dark, rainy weather just suits them, they will be more plentiful than ever in a short time.

Business, especially in the line of funeral work, has been brisk for the last two weeks, and the general scarcity of flowers makes it lively for those who are lucky enough to be able to cut much stock. Bulbous flowers are daily becoming more in evidence and, with the exception of early tulips, which do not move freely, everything is quickly bought up. A few early fruit blossoms are seen, but it will be several days before we have anything except the Japanese flowering plums.

Tame maidenhair fern is quite scarce with the growers at present and is showing the ruthless cutting to which it was subjected last month. In a few days the wild variety will have made its appearance, and then the florists can breathe easier.

Various Notes.

J. M. Wiesel, representing the Barteldes Seed Co., of Denver, Colo., is in town.

The California Evergreen Co. has purchased five acres of ground in Elmhurst and will plant it to hardy flowering stock, but does not contemplate erecting any greenhouses at this place.

E. Wagner, of San Lorenzo, Cal., is bringing in some of the best of the outside grown daffodils seen in town this season.

Miss M. Anderson will open a floral stand in the new Shattuck hotel, recently completed, in Berkeley, Cal. G.

TRANSPLANTING BULBS.

Can hyacinths, daffodils or other bulbous plants in flats, be successfully potted, without injury to blossoms? If so, when would be the best time to do it and how? I have read that such treatment is possible, but on inquiry among florists here, they say it will probably stunt their growth. H. H. R.

Hyacinths, tulips and narcissi can all be successfully transplanted, either when in full flower or just before the buds are fully developed. All you have to do is to take out the bulbs with a good bunch of roots; plant them as closely as you wish in pots or pans; give them a good soaking of water; and, if the work has been carefully done, I guarantee that those pessimists, who say this cannot be successfully done, would never know but that they had been grown from the start in the said pots and pans. This replanting is much more practiced in Europe than here, especially with tulips. Hundreds of thousands of these latter bulbs are annually sold at Covent Garden Market, London, all of which have been made up, and they look as well and last as satisfactorily as though they had been grown in the same pots from the start.

Bulbs forced early and which have become somewhat drawn, more especially narcissi, do not make up so nicely as those which are more stocky. In Europe the growers mix small ferns through the tulip pans, which adds much to their appearance and selling value.

C. W.

Henderson, Ky.—Jacob Hoffman, the Madison street florist, and Mrs. Ellen Shouley were married January 20.

St. Patrick's Carnation Fluid

Directions for Use.

To get the best results put the stems of flowers in about 2 inches of fluid, leaving them there about 30 minutes. After taking them out of fluid put them right in water for about two hours, which has a tendency of forcing the fluid up to the bloom and making that pretty shade of green.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., E. L. Page, Greene, N. Y.; First Vice-pres., L. H. Vaughan, Chicago; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Twenty-ninth annual meeting, Milwaukee, Wis., June 20 to 22, 1911.

CUSTOMS brokers at New York have started an agitation for an advance in their charges.

THE Holland bulb growing district has had no real winter; at date of last report spring conditions prevailed.

THE California growers, while profiting greatly by the recent rains, still are weeks behind in crop planting and growth.

HJALMAR HARTMANN & Co., Copenhagen, say that seed supplies are as closely cleaned up in Denmark as in other parts of the country.

THE packers of peas, corn, tomatoes, etc., are reported to have sold, at this early date, all the 1911 pack they care to pledge in advance of the pack.

A RECENT fire in the Riverside Power building, in Detroit, Mich., is said to have caused a loss of several thousand dollars to the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co.

IT will pay to push for business these four weeks; after the shortest month the next two will not be long enough for all the seed selling that must be crowded into them.

THE south has bought seeds early and liberally. The southern and especially the southwestern seed houses are growing as fast as they can find capable men to handle the business.

THE contract pea growers have, on the whole, met with less difficulty than was expected in getting growing contracts placed with farmers. The principal difficulty concerns stock seed.

THE reports from France prove to have been, as usual, much exaggerated, especially those that have come via England. The floods have unquestionably caused much loss to seed growers, but the French are a people of wonderful resource.

THE annual gathering of the canning trades will take place at Milwaukee next week. There will be no machinery display. Some of the seedsmen who have been regular attendants will pass it up this year, having no peas and little else for sale.

TWO representatives of the Braslan Seed Growers' Co., San Jose, Cal., met at Chicago January 28: Carl S. Eltzholz, en route east, and Miss M. W. Williams, secretary and treasurer of the company, en route home from Washington. Miss Williams was reported to have had $50,000 worth of the government seed contract in her handbag.

THE seed trade will be strongly represented at Washington today, February 2, when the hearing on pure seed bills is called in the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. The American Seed Trade Association, the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association and the Wholesale Seedsmen's league will be represented, and several seedsmen will be present to present their individual views.

NOTHING is too good for those Holland bulb salesmen these days. The largest delegation of the season arrived at New York on the Lusitania's last trip.

THE seed business for the month of January has been good, possibly a little better than in other years, for the planters are learning the advantage of ordering early and the number of seed dealers is constantly increasing; but not many of the catalogue houses have anything out of the ordinary to report. January was a fairly mild month and the number of orders has increased steadily ever since

THE R. V. Crine Seed Co., of Morganville, N. J., has been incorporated, with a capital of $400,000, by R. V. Crine, J. H. Becker and J. N. Grant.

WITH only a month between now and the adjournment of congress, there seems no great danger that a pure seed bill will get up to the President for signature.

THE manager of the Chicago branch of Wm. Cooper & Nephews states that his firm has not withdrawn Apterite from the market, that it is living up to the claims made for it, but that the firm has thus far confined itself almost entirely to the nursery trade.

ARTICLES of incorporation have been filed by the Farber Seed Co., of St. Joseph, Mo. The stockholders are as follows: J. B. Farber, who owns seventy-five shares; W. P. Graham, twenty-one and one-half shares; T. P. Graham, fifteen, and Horace Stringfellow, thirty-seven and one-half shares. The shares have a par value of $100 each.

NOTES FROM HOLLAND.

Several business men or their representatives from the bulb growing districts between Haarlem and Leiden left this week for their annual trip to America, says the Horticultural Advertiser (British). They traveled via Liverpool and made the voyage per Lusitania.

The harvested crops of radish contained this year a large proportion of not fully developed seeds, which made a disappointment for the grower; the medium yield was about nine hundredweight and four pounds per acre. Large

The "Spencer" Type of Sweet Peas

Burpee's Special Re-selected Stocks for 1911

"SPENCER" SWEET PEAS are a great specialty with us! We were the first to grow the seed in America -- the stock having been entrusted to us before introduction, even in England, of the original COUNTESS SPENCER. We have grown "the original Beauty" and its many "sportive" children with painstaking care each season since. There are but few other growers who can supply an equal assortment of TRUE RE-SELECTED "SPENCERS" that are uniformly of such choice quality. Seedsmen and florists can see how superior our stocks now are by the trials at FORDHOOK FARMS next June or July, while those who may be in California are invited also to inspect the growing crops at our FLORADALE FARM, in the beautiful Lompoc Valley. Every planter's garden, however, is really a trial ground, and we shall be quite content if any "Doubting Thomas" will send us only a portion of his order and NOTE THE DIFFERENCE in character of flowers produced.

☛ You can buy so-called "Spencer" Sweet Peas at half our prices -- but the result will be only disappointment, and when in flower you will surely admit that you would gladly have paid EVEN DOUBLE OUR PRICES to have had the BURPEE QUALITY of the TRUE SPENCER TYPE!

quantities are contracted for by foreign houses to grow this year.

Rye grass seed (Westernwoldicum) is saved in big lots. The seed saved from the first crop has a heavy weight and is in great demand, both home and foreign, at a good price. White clover is high in price and wholesale dealers were soon sold out of their fine qualities.

Big lots of caraway are yet unsold. Dull business. The current market price for caraway in Groningen is 20 shillings to 21 shillings 3 pence per fifty kilos.

BRASLAN'S WILL PROBATED.

The following is a special dispatch published by the San Francisco Chronicle under a San Jose date line:

"The will of the late Charles P. Braslan was filed for probate January 20 by the widow, Olga Braslan, and the fact that Braslan's estate was worth only $5,000 became public. He was one of the best known business men in this community, being president and general manager of the Braslan Seed Growers' Co., which conducted one of the largest seed businesses in the world, but it appears from the will that he owned only one share of the stock of the company. Small bequests to the children are made, but the largest share of the estate goes to the widow."

CHRISTMAS HYACINTHS.

Reference already has been made in The Review to the treatment by which the Holland bulb growers are able to cause the hyacinth bulb to bloom by Christmas. The following additional particulars from the Horticultural Advertiser (British) will be of interest:

"The growers now have a method of specially preparing hyacinths to obtain an early flowering period. If exposed to a temperature of 25 degrees C. shortly after having been lifted, the bulbs flower by Christmas; that is, if the treatment has been all right. Last year many bulbs were prepared in this way and a large number of hyacinths were sold guaranteed to flower at Christmas. Of course, the growers also showed in their nurseries what they were able to do in this respect. And, indeed, the trials had a splendid result. One grower at Lisse had potted about a thousand prepared bulbs and all were in flower by Christmas, almost without exception. Another grower at Heemstede had so many flowering hyacinths by Christmas that he could plant a whole bed with them in front of his house. It was, of course, an extraordinary sight, even in the bulb district, to have flowering hyacinths by Christmas in the open. The spikes were as fine as in the best period of the season, and the leaves were also well grown.

"The varieties used were Arentine Arendsen, a beautiful, rather new, pure white variety, with large round spikes; Victor Emmanuel, a deep rose colored, with splendid spikes; Hein Roozen, snow-white and with long, broad flowers; L'Innocence, the well-known white trade variety; Linnæus and General Pelissier, both deep red, but the former more brilliant; General van de Heyden, lovely blue; Garibaldi, brilliant crimson and large bells; Grande Vedette, bright porcelain blue; Grand Lilas, pale blue, fine spike; British Queen, white; Sir William Mansfield, deep violet; General Vetter, pure white, enormous spike, and Distinction, dark purple. Moreno, although in flower, had spikes which were not so well developed as with the other varieties. La Victoire did not flower so well as expected.

"The trials had an excellent result and consequently the methods of preparing the bulbs will be of the highest interest to all growers, as the hyacinths for Christmas flowering have always been in keen demand. If really the preparation of hyacinths for Christmas bloom proves reliable, even in the seasons when the ordinary forcing gives poor results, the cultivation of Dutch hyacinths in southern countries will be entirely abandoned, and the 'Dutch Romans' in all shades of color will once more replace the Roman hyacinths from France."

VALUE OF AZALEAS.

The customs appraisers have advanced many of the invoice values of azaleas of the last season's importation. Here is an advance announced last week:

AZALEAS—From Louis Van Houtte, Pere, Ghent, exported October 7, 1910; entered at Chicago. File No. 57320. Entry 18998. Findings of McClelland, C. A.; Azalea indica, 12 to 14¾ inches, entered at 20 cents, advanced to 22 cents each. Discount, five per cent. Add packing.

Healy Bros., Belle Center, O., send a clipping that reads as follows:

A NEW RULING.

Heretofore the postal department of the government has been printing return cards on stamped envelopes at less than cost for business firms. A recent order of the department states that no more will be printed, but that stamped envelopes will be sold to local printers for the printing. Thus one of the places where the government has been competing with business interests has been closed. Another abuse that should be stopped is the practice of the congressmen in distributing thousands of pounds of garden seeds indiscriminately to their constituents at the expense of the government. Half these seeds are never planted and the other half come in direct competition with seed firms that have vast amounts of money invested in their business. To stop sending these seeds would do away with much of the postal deficit that has been charged to the second class publications.

Healy Bros. add the following comment: "We enclose herewith a clipping taken from our local paper, the Herald-Voice, which has a large circulation in the rural districts of this section of the state, representing probably as fertile lands, as conservative and as intellectual an element of farmers as is to be found anywhere in the United States. At this time of the year there are from one to three catalogues of the best seed houses on their tables, from which they invariably buy their seed wants, and on which they rely. We think we bespeak the sentiments of the farmers of this section, when we

Dreer's Superb Strains of the Best Asters

Our stocks of the following Asters are grown under our own supervision and we are quite sure that nothing finer in quality can be had at any price from any source. Our yearly increasing sales are the best evidence that they give complete satisfaction.

DREER'S "PEERLESS PINK"

A magnificent new variety which may briefly be described as an improved late-branching shell-pink. Flowers of largest size of rich shell-pink, borne on long, strong stems, making them one of the finest for cutting. 50 cents per trade packet; $1.00 per ounce.

DREER'S SUPERB LATE-BRANCHING

The finest of all September-blooming Asters. Our stock has been re-selected for a number of years and is now as perfect as the most painstaking care can make it. We offer the following eight distinct colors:

Azure Blue or deep lavender — Deep Purple
Pale Lavender — Rose-Pink
Deep Crimson — Shell-Pink
Deep Rose — Pure White

Any of the above 25 cents per trade packet; $1.00 per ounce. Finest mixed, all colors, 25 cents per trade packet; 75 cents per ounce.

CREGO'S GIANT COMET

The perfection of Comet Asters, immense fluffy flowers, five inches and over across, borne on long, strong stems, coming into bloom in August, continuing through September. We offer pure white and shell-pink, 40 cents per trade packet; $2.00 per ounce.

DAYBREAK

A fine mid-season Aster of symmetrical growth, 18 inches high, with good-sized, densely double soft pink flowers. 50 cents per trade packet; $2.50 per ounce.

VIOLET KING

A fine late-branching variety of exceptionally free growth, bearing very large double flowers of a pleasing shade of soft violet. 30 cents per trade packet; $1.50 per ounce.

EARLY WONDER

The earliest of all Asters, blooming at the end of June; flowers of good size on good stems and valuable where early flowers are desired. We offer pure white and pink. 40 cents per trade packet; $2.00 per ounce.

QUEEN OF THE MARKET

An early flowering first-class Aster, coming into bloom in July, lasting well through August; flowers of large size on long, strong stems. A good variety for growing under glass. We can supply in the following six desirable colors:

Pink — Bright Rose
Purple — Crimson
White — Lavender

Any of the above, 20 cents per trade packet; 60 cents per ounce. Finest mixed, all colors, 15 cents per trade packet; 50 cents per ounce.

The above are but a few of the many Asters which we offer. For a complete list see pages 2 and 3 of our current wholesale price list. If you do not have a copy we will be pleased to send one to any Florist on application. New crop seeds of almost all kinds are now in stock and early orders from the trade are solicited.

WICHITA, KAN.

The Market.

After the nice weather of the holidays, January started to make things interesting. It brought out a temperature of 9 degrees below zero, with a 30-mile wind to help it through the cracks and help keep the firemen busy. The local gas company had a breakdown, and the gas pressure all over the city dropped to nil. The greenhouses using gas for fuel had a job of quick changing on their hands, tearing out the burners and steaming up with coal in time to save the stock in the houses, which had not warmed up any during the change. No serious freeze-ups were reported, although the wind at that temperature found a few unprotected corners and nipped some stock at the ends of some of the houses.

The month has shown an unusual amount of cloudy weather, and this has made a great difference in the quantity of stock cut from local plants. Conditions outside of this city do not seem to have been much better; so it has been hard to buy extra stock to fill in the shortage. The demand has been much accelerated by both local and out-of-town funeral work, and for several days the stores have had to "scrape bottom" early in the day to fill orders. The handling of the extra business was not helped by the fact that the gas shortage caused an epidemic of grip that got into the florists' forces as well as all other lines of work in the city. The stores were run shorthanded, with some on duty who felt more like putting in time at a hospital.

The general run of stock has been quite good, and prices have not been much higher than usual, although roses have run fairly stiff. At present it looks almost like an even break as to whether conditions will come back to normal or prices will take a soar. The steady call for funeral arrangements has caused a shortage in white stock that extends even to bulbous stock, which is usually equal to all demands. Violets, sweet peas and valley are coming in just enough to be tantalizing,

JOHN F. RUPP, Florist Seedsman.

Shiremanstown, Pa.

but the local growers of these are hoping for improvement soon.

McKinley day fell on Sunday this year, and the local florists made practically no effort to call attention to it. Carnations have not gone begging by any means, and there was no object in attempting to accelerate the demand for them and to lead to Sunday business, which Wichita florists have shown no tendency to welcome at any time.

Various Notes.

The downtown store of Chas. P. Mueller is displaying a window full of splendid plants and jardinieres.

W. H. Culp is pleased with the completion of the new municipal dam over the Little Arkansas river, as he uses water from this stream in his greenhouses, and the rise in the water head helps in the long pull from the river to his pump. W. Davidson, of the Culp greenhouses, was out with a "big stick" for a plumber recently. The suction pipe from the houses runs parallel to a water supply pipe for part of the distance to the river, and, in tapping for water to supply a new cottage, a local plumber bored into this suction pipe by mistake. When he found something was wrong, he left the hole open and hunted elsewhere for his pipe. When the pump was started at the greenhouses the result was not exactly a success. It took some time to locate the trouble, and meanwhile enough dirt had got into the pipe to make the parties concerned think the trouble is not all over yet. In honor of Kansas day, January 29, Mr. Culp's store had a window which attracted some attention. It represented a dry Kansas prairie, across which a prairie schooner was approaching a dug-out whose owner stood at the door. The schooner was crudely lettered, "Kansas or bust," and the attention to detail and proportion had been closely observed. At the back, and separate, the Kansas seal was worked out in immortelles and green moss, backed by the national flag. R. C.

The most profitless occupation in the world is to sit idly thinking of what you would do if you had another chance. Forget what you have done badly and do better in the future. Suppose you have had a bad lot of lily bulbs—that's no reason you can't get better. Perhaps, if you reason it out, it was your own fault. Be reasonable. Get the best bulbs you can buy—that's Horseshoe Brand Giganteum—take reasonable care of them and you will have lilies you can depend upon. The reason why Horseshoe Brand are better than the average is the most simple thing in the world, and that is primarily they cost more money. It takes money to get the best, but, when the first cost of lily bulbs is small compared to the value of a good plant, what's the use in trying to get an eight-cent bulb for six cents? Pay the price and get an article worth while, and you will profit by it. Cold Storage Giganteum of Horseshoe Brand should be ordered now for delivery during 1911—you need them in your business—there is nothing better for funeral work and nothing more appropriate.

Write for prices, which are reasonable. Catalogue free.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1910-11: Pres., W. P. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Vice-pres., E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia.; Sec'y, John Hall Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-sixth annual meeting, St. Louis, June, 1911.

R. C. Berckmans, of the P. J. Berckmans Co., has just returned to Augusta, Ga., after a business trip to New York.

The death of Samuel C. Moon, at Morrisville, Pa., January 21, removed one of the best known of the eastern growers of decorative nursery stock.

The grafting house at the Willowdale Nurseries, owned by the Rakestraw-Pyle Co., at Kennett Square, Pa., was completely destroyed by fire January 19.

L. W. Munn, the veteran nurseryman of Freeport, Ill., is now nearly 90 years old. It has recently been found necessary to take him to a sanitarium for treatment.

At the recent meeting of the Western Association of Nurserymen a resolution was adopted commending W. S. Griesa, of Lawrence, Kan., "for his wisdom and thoughtfulness in establishing, with the University of Kansas, the W. S. Griesa Research Fellowship in Entomology."

In preparing for the thirty-fifth annual session of the Georgia State Horticultural Society, to be held in Thomasville, February 7 and 8, places on the program have been assigned to two nurserymen of the state, namely, B. W. Hunt, of Eatonton, and P. J. Hjort, of Thomasville. Mr. Hunt's subject is "Beautifying Rural Surroundings and Civic Improvement," and Mr. Hjort's is "Beautifying Home Surroundings."

The Texas Nurserymen's Association appointed the following representatives to attend the meeting of the Texas Conservation Association, held in San Antonio, Tex., February 2 to 4: F. T. Ramsey, Austin; W. F. Eshelman, Waxahachie; J. S. Kerr, Sherman; C. C. Mayhew, Sherman; W. A. Yates, Brenham; W. B. Munson, Denison; J. B. Baker, Fort Worth; Robert Drumm, Fort Worth; Otto Lang, Dallas; O. K. Phillips, Rockdale; E. W. Knox, San Antonio; J. L. Downing, Wichita Falls; W. A. Stockwell, Alvin; R. H. Bushway, Algoa.

GOOD IN THE NORTHWEST.

In company with the nurserymen of the rest of the country, the members of the trade in the northwest consider the outlook for the season now opening with them to be at least as good as in any previous season. Under date of January 9 the Washington Nursery Co., Toppenish, Wash., wrote:

"So far as we can judge, the outlook for the sale of nursery stock in our line for the coming season is as good as usual. We do not go very extensively into flowers, etc., though we do handle quite a line of shrubs and shade trees. We make a specialty of fruit stocks suitable for northwest planting of apples, peaches, pears, cherries, plums, in the present rush of work, that you'll need stock later on. For example, there's your MANETTI, for winter grafting; we offer English at $12.00 the thousand, French at $10.00. Both good, 3 to 5 millimeters, smooth, evenly graded, disbudded, well-rooted stocks, especially selected for florists' grafting.

DON'T FORGET

LILY OF THE VALLEY. Reimschneider's Exposition, $14.00 the thousand (1700 to the case); Perfection, $12.00 the thousand (2000 to the case); Holsatia, for storage and later forcing, $11.00 the thousand (3000 to the case).

LILACS, imported, pot-grown, for cut flowers, bushy, suitable for 7 or 8-in. pots, 50c each, $5.00 the dozen. Charles X only.

HALF-STANDARD ROSES. Baby Rambler and Mrs. Cutbush, 50c each, $5.00 the dozen. No better at any price. Full-standard Baby Rambler, same.

BUSH ROSES. Fine assortment leading H. P.'s, like Brunner, Charta, Druschki, etc. Also Hybrid Teas, Ramblers, Dorothy Perkins, etc.

Write and make known your wants. We are GROWERS for the Trade and sell only to the Trade. Use printed stationery.

CANNA ROOTS—CANNA ROOTS

S. & W. Co.'s Northern Grown, Plump, Strong Roots.

ALLEMANIA. An improved Italia, with more numerous flowers, of immense size. Outer petals scarlet, with broad yellow border; inside scarlet and dark red. One of the best of the Giant, or Orchid-flowered section. Height, 5 to 6 feet.
AUSTRIA. Pure canary-yellow; large open flowers with reddish dots in center of the two inside petals. Height, 5 feet.
BURBANK. Color rich, canary-yellow, with a few carmine spots in throat. Height, 5 feet.
LOUISIANA. New American Orchid-flowered, strong, vigorous-growing variety, producing a dense mass of glossy green foliage, and vivid, scarlet flowers, often measuring 7 inches across. Imagine a plant with four to five main stems, each one crowned with 30 to 40 flowers open at one time. The effect is gorgeous and indescribable. Height, 7 feet.
PENNSYLVANIA. The flowers are often 7 to 8 inches across, with petals 2¼ inches broad. Fine red color. Height, 6 feet.

S. & W. Co.'s Best Ten Varieties

ALSACE. A beautiful creamy white-flowering variety used very extensively for contrasting red and pink-flowering sorts. Height 4 feet.
BRANDYWINE. Brandywine is thoroughly handsome all season through. It has a luxurious growth of very dark foliage and is heavily topped with a magnificent display of brilliant red flowers. Height 3½ feet.
BUTTERCUP. True bright buttercup-yellow; always shows up bright and clear, and is undoubtedly the best and most beautiful pure bright, deep, canary-yellow Canna in existence. (Award of Merit from R. H. S.) Height 3½ feet.
DAVID HARUM. Flowers large size with well-rounded petals of good substance; color bright vermilion-scarlet dotted with crimson spots; foliage bronze. Height 3 feet.
EXPRESS. Color scarlet-crimson. Its dwarf habit and large flower commend it very strongly to all those who would have an excellent bedding or edging variety; it is guaranteed to be well up to expectations. Height 2½ feet.
INDIANA. Glistening golden orange, daintily marked, striped and red. Single blossoms often measuring 7 inches across. Height 5 feet.
KING HUMBERT. Of superlative beauty and by far the finest of all bronze-leaved Cannas. The enormous trusses are made up of flowers that measure 6 inches across and are a rich salmon-scarlet distinctly and numerously flecked with deep crimson markings. It is a free bloomer and with its rich, coppery bronze, massive foliage, it produces an effect both bold and striking. Height 5 feet. Doz., 75c.; per 100, $4.00; per 1000, $30.00.
LOUISIANA. New American Orchid-flowered, strong, vigorous-growing variety, producing a dense mass of glossy green foliage, and vivid scarlet flowers, often measuring 7 inches across. Imagine a plant with four to five main stems, each one crowned with 30 to 40 flowers open at one time. The effect is gorgeous and indescribable. Height 7 feet.
PACIFIC BEAUTY. Very heavy, black foliage, striped and variegated. Flowers orange-crimson.
SHENANDOAH. An abundant bloomer with waxy rose-pink flowers and rich, dark foliage, highly ornamental.

General List Large-Flowering Cannas

The following varieties have been chosen from a list of almost 75 varieties, and are in every way the best sorts.

DR. NANSEN. 5 feet. Yellow flowers.
RICHARD WALLACE. A magnificent, large yellow-flowering variety; green, well-shaped foliage, growing about 5 feet high.
BLACK BEAUTY. 5 feet. It seems to us impossible to exaggerate the beauty and richness of this Canna. It undoubtedly has the darkest and most magnificent foliage of all the purple-leaved Cannas. The leaves are a black shining purple, very rich and glossy, and with edges crimped and wavy. Flowers are few and small, but for a foliage plant, and for producing an effect of tropical luxuriance. Black Beauty heads the list.
CHAUTAUQUA. 4 feet. Flowers pure, rich scarlet, intensely vivid; luxuriant, tropical foliage, prettily bronzed. Especially valuable for massing.
EGANDALE. 4 feet. A fine bronze-leaved variety; pretty cherry-red flowers, borne well above the foliage; handsome and distinct.
MLLE. BERAT. 4 to 5 feet. Strong grower with dark pink flowers; one of the best.
FLORENCE VAUGHAN. 5 feet. Large trusses of canary-yellow flowers heavily dotted with deep orange-scarlet; broad, heavy, bright green foliage.
ROSEMAWR. Extra-fine large-flowering, dark rose-colored variety; a fine bedder.
QUEEN CHARLOTTE. 4 feet. One of the finest of the gilt-edge sorts. Large trusses and large flowers of blood-red petals, broadly banded with bright canary-yellow. Handsome, deep bluish green foliage. Exceedingly decorative.
MME. CROZY. 4 feet. All things considered, still one of the best for bedding. A constant, free and reliable bloomer with large trusses set well above the foliage. Flowers large, bright orange-scarlet, lightly bordered with yellow. Bright green, massive foliage.

Crimson and Scarlet-Flowering Varieties

BLACK WARRIOR. 4 feet. A very dark crimson, claimed by the originator to be the darkest known variety.
CHARLES HENDERSON. 4 feet. The standard of excellence in Crimson Cannas.
PRES. McKINLEY. 3 feet. One of the very best Cannas for bedding; luxuriant in foliage and dwarf in habit. The trusses are large and numerous and the flowers large, brilliant crimson, shaded with scarlet; showy and striking.
CRIMSON BEDDER. Similar to Charles Henderson.
RED CROSS. 5 feet. Large flowers, shaded dark red.
WM. BOFINGER. 5 feet. The brightest and richest scarlet.

All the above varieties, dozen, 40c; per 100, $2.50; per 1000, $20.00.

TIME TO SOW SEEDS.

When do you sow bachelor's buttons and cosmos? S. & S.

Bachelor's buttons can be sown thinly under glass now for a spring crop. It grows well in a cool house—not over 45 degrees at night. Outdoors this useful annual can be gotten into the ground just as soon as frost has left and the soil is dry and workable. Cosmos is a rapid growing annual, also one of a somewhat tender nature. Sown at the end of March, it will be amply early for planting out. You can, if you so desire, make an even later sowing, or, better still, root cuttings of the earliest sown batch in an ordinary propagating bench. These also can be kept potted on and flowered until Christmas in a cool house. C. W.

CANNAS

True to Name
Grown by Experts

You have no doubt from time to time bought CANNAS that were represented to you to be true to name, and strong sound divisions and in every way first-class, and when you opened them up they looked well and you planted them feeling that you were sure of a good crop; part of them came up straggling, many never at all, and all badly mixed; then you were disappointed and it was too late to plant again.

But did you ever buy Cannas of us, and did they turn out that way? Not that we ever heard of. Our business is the growing of Cannas, and we claim to be experts in this line, having devoted many years to the business. All of our Cannas are grown under the direct supervision of two of our firm. We use every precaution to keep them true to name and stand ready at all times to rectify any mistakes that may occur. Our prices are right considering quality, which we guarantee to be the best at all times.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

The graduation exercises at the grammar schools of this city the latter part of the week served to accelerate an otherwise somewhat slow week and to put the market on a plane with some of the best of last season. There was a demand that caused a considerable shortage in carnations and roses. A slight stiffening in price was noted for good stock, the overcast skies of the week causing a shortage. With no weddings or social functions of any consequence and only an occasional large funeral, it has been remarkable how general business has kept up. It merely goes to emphasize that there is a growing tendency toward the purchasing of flowers for home use without reference to any special occasion.

Various Notes.

E. A. Chipman, of the Chipman Greenhouses of Woonsocket, announces that he has men in his employ who can take orders in English, French, Russian or Polish.

Paul De Nave, of Fall River, visited this city January 24 with some of the handsomest sprays of orchids ever seen here. They were handled by Joseph Kopelman and Johnston Bros.

Frederick Covill, manager of the flower department of the Shepard Co., announces a big business in cut flowers. On Saturday, January 28, he handled 25,000 violets in small bunches at retail.

Growers hereabouts are putting in a good supply of candytuft and ten weeks' stocks for Memorial day trade.

John Patterson, of Ashton, reports several large orders for funeral work recently.

William Jurgens, of Newport, is sending some excellent daffodils and tulips to this market.

Joseph Kinder, of Samuel Kinder & Bros., of Bristol, was a recent visitor in Philadelphia.

T. J. Johnston & Co., Edward Brooks, proprietor, have just purchased a handsome large dark bay horse from the west that makes a stunning appearance with the firm's new delivery wagon.

Charles Hunt was quite busy last week with graduation and funeral orders.

The newly elected officers of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society have started on a campaign for membership.

H. Howard Pepper has accepted an invitation to read a paper at the next meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, February 20, on "The Growing of Hybrid Roses Out of Doors."

Timothy O'Connor, of Blackstone boulevard, has all his men busily engaged in potting stock for Easter.

Timothy McCarthy, superintendent of Swan Point cemetery, who has been confined to the house for nearly two months, is much improved.

Henry Patrie, who has been associated with various florists in this city, is now in the employ of S. J. Reuter & Son, of Westerly.

Visitors: Mr. Coe, representing D. M. Ferry, of Detroit, Mich.; A. McDonald, of Barnes Bros. Nursery Co., Yalesville, Conn.; Paul De Nave, of Fall River; George S. Hampton, Jr., representing Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia; Mr. Willard, of the Taunton Greenhouses, of Taunton, Mass., and J. E. Cross, of Fall River.

THE IMPROVED CANNA

"In our own country Antoine Wintzer has accomplished more than all the European breeders put together, and is most largely responsible for our modern appreciation of the Canna in American gardens."
—Garden Magazine.

THE work of Mr. Antoine Wintzer, vice-president of our company, has given to the world today a wide range of color in Canna flowers that has been but a dream in the past.

This reality, added to robust, healthy, handsome foliage, erect flower spikes and large blooms, makes a combination that is unrivaled. White, soft pink, bright pink (every shade), yellow (clear and mottled), orange, salmon, scarlet, crimson and a host of shades have been produced in wondrous profusion, assuring the future position of the Canna as one of our most important flowering and foliage plants.

Would not your customers pay a little more for Cannas so superior? Some of our newest kinds you cannot buy elsewhere.

AMHERST, MASS.

The recent lectures before the short course in floriculture at the Massachusetts Agricultural College have been especially interesting and inspiring. Friday, January 13, J. Otto Thilow spoke on "Active Floriculture Stimulated by the Amateur." Mr. Thilow also gave a thorough description of the greenhouse ranges on the H. A. Dreer property near Riverton, N. J. He was enthusiastically received by the students and his talk was full of valuable suggestions. January 20, C. F. Boyle, who has charge of Galvin's Boylston street store, Boston, gave a lecture demonstration on design making. He spoke of the present demand for designs, especially galax wreaths, and gave a demonstration of the manufacture of these wreaths with their various decorations, sprays, pillows, crosses, etc. During the following week the floricultural students were at work on various designs and there was a public exhibition of their work January 28. Each student in the course made a galax wreath and decorated it with roses, carnations, violets or other flowers. They also made a fraternal design or pillow. The short course men have table decorations in addition to this design work and these were on exhibition at the same time. January 27, W. H. Elliott, of Brighton, spoke on roses, and February 3 Eber Holmes, of Montrose, will speak on the same subject.

TAUNTON, MASS.

At the Taunton Greenhouses many thousands of giganteum lilies are coming on nicely for Easter. Multiflorums are this season showing a large percentage of disease. Funeral work has this season been heavy. At W. J. Clemson's, J. O. Khristenson has his carnations looking extra well. Pink Delight, Beacon, Dorothy Gordon, White Perfection and Enchantress being all good. Freesia here was good. A batch of hanging pans of Mahernia odorata were well grown and smothered with their little yellow flowers. C.

TWO NEW CARNATIONS FOR 1911

White Wonder PURE WHITE. Has White Perfection and White Enchantress outclassed.

Gloriosa CLEAR PINK. The pink carnation that will be planted in place of Winona and Winsor.

THESE two varieties will prove themselves to be the leaders in the white and pink classes. The many visitors at our place the past two years have nothing but words of praise for their free-flowering qualities and their excellent habits of growth. Orders for 112,600 rooted cuttings—one-half of total orders booked to date—were placed by parties who have seen these varieties growing. The proof of their commercial value is in this booking. The keeping qualities of the blooms have been proven, and there is nothing lacking in their make-up to place them at the head of the list of commercial varieties.

We have to date booked orders for over 225,000 rooted cuttings and have delivered 150,000 of the two varieties. Our large stocks enable us still to give February 20th delivery on White Wonder and early March delivery on Gloriosa, if order is placed at once. Do not wait, but DO IT NOW.

The cuttings root easily, and the finished stock we are shipping are the finest rooted cuttings we have yet sent out of a new variety.

outclasses everything heretofore grown in the dark pink section. Won first honors in the 100 class for best dark pink at the A. C. S. meeting, Pittsburg, January, 1910, also at the Chicago Flower Show, November, 1909.

It is a pure, bright, dark pink of even shade, size 3½inches, an early and continuous bloomer, brings fully 25 per cent more flowers to the plant than Lawson at its best; flowers well shaped on long, wiry stems; calyx does not split. It is a good shipper, and the cuttings root easy.

Price, per 100, $12.00; 25 at 100 rate; per 1000, $100.00; 250 at 1000 rate; per 5000, $400.00.

NEW YORK NOTES.

Arthur Herrington will act as toastmaster at the Yonkers banquet February 7.

Mr. Blauvelt, of Worcester, is in the city.

John D. Nicholas has begun the improvements on his two stores on Twenty-eighth street, involving an expenditure of over $15,000.

Arthur T. Boddington says that the way the opportunity for the sale of canna roots is broadening is a surprise even to himself, who always has been an optimist.

Bowling.

The bottle of champagne was won January 27 by C. W. Scott. Mr. Scott also won the handicap prize, a pair of lady's shoes, and with these, his wife's consent to his regular attendance hereafter. The club has challenged the Rutherford Florists' Club to a match game, best two in three, and the contest will take place at an early date. The principals and employees of the Julius Roehrs Co. and Bobbink & Atkins make up the membership. The scores January 27 were:

Rooted Carnation Cuttings

WHITE WONDER (Dorner). A white carnation for all growers; leads any white; a greatly improved White Perfection; makes twice the size plant, thereby increasing its productiveness one-third. $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

GLORIOSA (Dorner). A magnificent shade of light pink, somewhat darker than Pink Delight. A great improvement over Pink Delight, early and free and easy to root. $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

BRIGHT SPOT (Zweifel). A grand new deep pink carnation. One that is sure to fill the want in the dark shade of pink that we all want. Won high honors wherever shown. Easy to root and handle in every way. $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

LAST SEASON'S VARIETIES

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY. The very best pure yellow. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

DOROTHY GORDON. One of the grandest carnations ever sent out. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

CANARY BIRD. A large yellow with a slight pink marking. Extra fine. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

SANGAMO. Brighter than Winona. Very free. One that pays well to grow. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

SHASTA. The freest white ever sent out, fine form, filling a long felt want. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

CONQUEST. The best variety of the Prosperity type; free as Lawson, good stem and easy to grow. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

ADMIRATION. A grand variety, much deeper than Enchantress. Free and a good keeper and shipper. One of the very best of last season's varieties. $5.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

SCARLET GLOW. An exceptionally bright scarlet; very free and good grower. Bound to find a place with the standard reds. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

Our New Roses

We take pleasure in recommending our two new roses, believing that it will be to your advantage to grow them.

MELODY: The best commercial yellow rose today, wonderfully free flowering.

Melody is at its best in winter, when roses are most needed. Its color, a most beautiful yellow; foliage, rich brilliant green; its bud, well formed and pointed.

Own root, $6.00 per dozen; $30.00 per 100; $70.00 per 250; $250.00 per 1000; 2½-inch pots, delivery during March. Orders for cut blooms in quantity on short notice, $10.00, $12.00 and $15.00 per 100.

DOUBLE KILLARNEY: Has all the good points of Killarney with two others added; it is a stronger grower and produces larger flowers.

Double Killarney has one-third more petals than are ordinarily seen on Killarney, an invaluable acquisition in warm weather and in a shipping rose.

Own root, $4.00 per dozen; $20.00 per 100; $40.00 per 250; $150.00 per 1000. For grafted $10.00 extra per 100. 2½-inch pots, delivery during March.

First crop of own root Double Killarney all sold; we are now booking orders for April delivery; grafted stock will be ready in March.

Roses for 1911

DARK PINK KILLARNEY

A sport of Killarney, similar in habit, but more highly colored than Killarney at its best. When Killarney is pale, Dark Pink Killarney is bright and cheerful.

Grafted Plants only, from 2¼-in. pots,
$20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000.

LADY CROMWELL

A shell-pink sport of My Maryland that for pleasing color is unsurpassed. A wonderful producer, and a color that sells.

Grafted Plants only, from 2¼-in. pots,
$30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000.

DOUBLE PINK KILLARNEY

Originating with Robert Scott & Sons, who supply us the wood for grafting. Stronger in growth than Killarney, and with at least ten more petals. A wonderful improvement.

Grafted Stock only, $30.00 per 100, $250.00 per 1000.

PRINCE DE BULGARIE

The best prices for cut flowers should be the standard for judging Roses, and this Rose has been the money-getter. Strong and vigorous in growth, and with its beautiful shell-pink bloom, it has sold on sight. One of the best Roses grown.

Grafted Plants, $20.00 per 100, $180.00 per 1000.
Own Root, $15.00 per 100, $120.00 per 1000.

MRS. AARON WARD

By far the most pleasing of the Yellow Roses now on the market. A general favorite, and one which will be widely grown, for yellow Roses are in demand.

Grafted Plants, $25.00 per 100, $200.00 per 1000.
Own Root, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

NORTH MANCHESTER, IND.

The Northern Indiana Florists' Association held its quarterly meeting here January 18. The local florists, Harry White and J. J. Martin, entertained the visiting members at the Young hotel. After a sumptuous banquet, the meeting was called to order by the president, W. W. Dederick, in the parlors of the hotel, and a long business session ensued. Many things were talked about, to the benefit of all present.

One new member, H. D. Seele, of Elkhart, was admitted, making a total membership of thirty-three, twenty of whom were present.

The exhibit was not as large as anticipated, but what was exhibited was above criticism. Harry White, of this city, showed fine carnations—White Perfection and Victory. The Johnson Floral Co., of Kendallville, had a collection of several varieties of carnations. The Wagoner Floral Co., of Columbia City, had a rose-pink seedling with a fine, long, stiff stem, and Enchantress from a two-year-old bed, both of which were declared "all right." Stuart & Haugh, of Anderson, showed violets which were marvelous, with stems almost a foot long. Simon Humfeld, of Muncie, had fine small plants of Sprengeri, plumosus and ferns, also caladium tubers.

The next quarterly meeting will be held at Muncie, April 19, and all florists in northern Indiana are cordially invited to be present. A. J. W.

Lumberton, N. J.—Howard Greenwald has erected a greenhouse and is starting in the florists' trade.

Allegan, Mich.—Geo. Conklin says business has been good, especially in funeral work. He has just finished one new house and potting shed and expects to build two more houses this spring for vegetables.

We have decided to disseminate our new Crimson Carnation

POCAHONTAS

We have grown this variety four years and have found it highly profitable. Our local retailers assert that crimson carnations with quality, such as Pocahontas possesses, will sell as well as any other color, the main trouble having been in getting crimson blooms with quality equal to the standards in other colors. Pocahontas has size and all the other qualities that make up a strictly first-class carnation, and it gives you enough bloom to pay you to grow it. Every visitor will substantiate this claim. Our stock is in fine condition, but limited. So get your order in at once.

New Marguerite Mrs. F. Sander.

NEW MARGUERITE, MRS. F. SANDER.

The most valuable flowering pot plant which has been offered to the trade since the introduction of the Lorraine Begonia.

In this we have unquestionably the most important flowering plant introduced in recent years, which, like its predecessors, the French Marguerite and the later introductions, white and blush Queen Alexandra, will be grown extensively for cut flowers during the winter, while its pure white color will make it more valuable than any as a pot plant for Easter decorations

Unlike all other Marguerites, its color is of the purest glistening white throughout; in size it frequently measures 5 inches across; the center of the flower is a mass of closely arranged fringed florets; these are surrounded or edged by the broad, shining white ray petals, forming a flower which reminds one forcibly of a glorified double Pyrethrum. These are produced on long stems with a freedom not known in other varieties of the Marguerite.

The entire stock of this grand novelty has been placed in our hands for American distribution and we are now booking orders for delivery the latter part of April or early in May:

Good 2¼-in. pots, $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100

The above prices are intended for the trade only.

See our current Wholesale List for a complete line of seasonable Plants, Seeds, Bulbs, etc.

Pink Boston Market

A seedling of Boston Market and Harlowarden that has been under test for the past five years and which has shown up so well under all conditions that I now feel confident it is one of the best commercial varieties and have pleasure in offering it for the first time for spring delivery 1911.

The color is a shade lighter pink than Lawson; form high built, much like Boston Market; stem long and graceful; healthy grower; blooms freely from November all through the season.

This new variety I am confident will prove a money-maker—a pink Boston Market—only much larger and better and destined to be one of the most popular commercial varieties.

Come and see it growing, and would advise you to get early rooted stock, which is now ready. I guarantee same to be in perfect health.

$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

Last week practically everything in the market cleaned up nicely, but the feverish excitement in the demand for stock that has been apparent other years at this season is lacking. The buyers seldom seem to get excited or anxious about their orders; in fact, they do not seem to worry at all. The quality of the supply is uniformly excellent and the prices fair.

In roses, the supply of white seems to exceed that of pink, with the latter moving more quickly than the former. American Beauties are in good supply and sell nicely. The market for Richmond and Rhea Reid is good; in fact, all roses clean up daily. Carnations, although the market for them is easy, are selling up clean every day. The demand is especially for the white and light shades of pink. The Enchantress varieties and the red, especially Beacon and some local seedlings, are the best in quality. A large demand from out of town has taken up many of these flowers and roses.

There is practically a sufficient supply of other stock to meet requests. Lilium longiflorum sells readily. Many more come into the wholesale houses than have arrived for some time, and all are finding a good market. Lily of the valley is plentiful and sells more or less slowly. Single violets are in demand, while the doubles clean up only at low prices. Paper Whites and Roman hyacinths enjoy a good call. Some tulips are now arriving and, with jonquils, are in demand. Sweet peas sell well.

Plant business is good. The call includes especially cyclamens and begonias in blooming stock and Boston ferns in decorative plants.

The green goods market is more or less active, with a strong shipping request for fancy ferns and green sheet moss.

Various Notes.

The hand of the clock at Wm. Murphy's still moves. The flower show guarantee fund has increased to $13,350, with more still coming in.

FINE FERNS

Ready For Immediate Retail Sale

We have an exceptionally fine and large stock of Ferns in the following varieties—first-class plants of exceedingly good value—plants that will please the most critical buyers, both in regard to quality and value.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima (improved). The finest of this type—never showing a Boston frond; has not reverted in the last four years. Fine plants, 4-in. pots, $2.50 per doz.; 6-in., $6 00 per doz.; 8-in., $12 00 per doz.; large specimens in 12-in. pans, $3.00 to $5 00 each.

Nephrolepis Elegantissima Compacta. This bears the same relation to Elegantissima that Scottii does to Bostoniensis. It is a dwarf, compact plant, especially fine in the small sizes. Fine plants, 4-in. pots, $3.00 per doz.; 6-in., $6.00 per doz.

Nephrolepis Scholzeli. Fine plants, 3½-in. pots, $2.50 per doz.; 6-in. pans, $6 00 per doz.; 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis. Extra strong plants, 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

Nephrolepis Scottii. 8-in. pans, $12.00 per doz.

Small Ferns for Fern Pans. Best and hardiest varieties, assorted: Pteris Mayii Wimsetti, Adiantoides, Aspidium Tsussimense, Crytomium Falcatum, etc. Strong plants, 2¼-in. pots, $3.50 per 100.

CROTONS. Nice assortment, well colored, 5-in., $9.00 per dozen.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Trade continues good. Flowers are still scarce, and, with the present cloudy weather, there does not seem to be much chance of an oversupply. Carnations retail at 50 cents to 75 cents per dozen. Roses are extremely scarce; they retail at $2 per dozen. Violets sell fairly well at $1 per hundred blooms, sweet peas at $1 per hundred blooms, Paper Whites at 50 cents per dozen, snapdragons at 75 cents and $1 per dozen and lilies at $2.50 per dozen. Freesias are now in full bloom and help out well. Daffodils retail at 60 cents and 75 cents per dozen. Funeral work has been good.

Various Notes.

E. G. Davis is busy shipping fine Whitmani and Boston ferns.

W. H. Davenport is showing some nice flowering plants in his windows.

R. E. Nofftz is cutting some excellent bulb stock.

R. H. Woodhouse is cutting some elegant freesias and is retailing them at 50 cents per dozen. W. L.

Overcrowded! Room! Room! Room!

We want to spread out our extensive line of Easter plants, therefore we sell. Just look! A fine selection of decorative plants, such as Araucarias, Ferns, etc., which are always in demand, at bargain prices.

Azalea Indica, for Easter blooming, Niobe (white), Apollo (red), Empress of India, Vervaeneana, Schryveriana (double variegated), Simon Mardner, Mme. Van der Cruyssen, Professeur Wolters and others, 60c, 75c, $1.00 to $1.50. In big stock we have Helene Thieleman, Bernard Andrea Alba, Paul Weber, Van der Cruyssen and Niobe, $1.50, $1.75 to $2.00. Deutsche Perle, Vervaeneana and Simon Mardner, showing color, with a few open flowers, 75c to $1.00.

Lilium Multiflorum, our own importation from Japan, raised from 9 to 10-inch. Bulbs planted last part of October and beginning of November, in 6 inch pots, kept cold, now about 5 to 8 inches high, just right for Easter, 25c to 30c; by the doz. or 100.

Dracaena Bruanti, 25 to 30 inches high, perfect green foliage from bottom up, 6-in. pots, 40c to 50c; well suited for store and house decorations because they stand cold, dust and heat.

Latania Borbonica, 30 to 35 inches high, 6 to 7-in. pots, 50c, 75c to $1.00.

Kentia Forsteriana, in fine shape, 5½ to 6-in. pots, 4, 5 and 6-year-old, 30, 35, 40 and 45 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50.

Kentia Belmoreana, 5, 6 to 7-year-old, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each; 4-in., 20 to 25 inches high, 20c to 25c.

Kentia Belmoreana, combination plants, 3 plants in 6 and 7-in. pots, 25, 30 to 35 inches high, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50 each. This is a special bargain, seldom offered.

Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings only (no seedlings), 2, 3, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 5½, 6 to 7-in. pots, 15, 18, 20, 25 to 30 inches high, 4, 5, 6 to 7 tiers, 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 to $1.50 each. Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, 6-in. pots, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 to $2.00 each.

Primula Chinensis, best strain, mostly white, 5¼-in., in bloom, John F. Rupp's well known strain, $2.50 per doz.

Spiraea Gladstone, in 5½ to 6-in. pots, started for Easter blooming, 15c to 25c.

Scottii, Scholzeli, Whitmani and Boston, 2 houses stocked with them, in all sizes and varieties, never before better than this year, 5, 6 and 7-in., 40c, 50c and 75c. Same varieties, as big as a bushel basket, $1.00 to $1.25.

Holly Ferns, 4-inch, 25c.

Ferns for dishes, big assortment, 2½-in. pots, $4.00 per 100.

Nephrolepis Giatrasii, this is a new fern, an improvement on the Scottii and much shorter and bushier, 5¼-in. pots, 50c; 3-in., 25c.

Pteris Wilsoni, 6-in. pans, nice and bushy, 25c, 30c and 35c.

Asparagus Sprengeri, 2½-in., 3c; 4-in., 10c.

Now is the time for Cineraria Hybrida for Easter blooming. We have it, our so well known strain raised especially for Easter; strong 4-in. pots ready for a shift into 6-in. pots, $10.00 per 100; 2-in., $3.00 per 100.

Ipomoea Noctiflora, Aschmann's so well-known pure white, waxy, fragrant moonvine, bearing flowers as big as a saucer; makes many good stock plants for you to propagate from, $5.00 per 100.

Begonia Rex, 4-in., 20c.

Solanum, or Jerusalem Cherries, 6 in. pots, 25c.

Crimson Rambler roses, 6-in. pots, 3 ft. high, nicely staked up and bent down, for Easter, 50c to 75c.

All plants 25 at 100 rate. Cash with order, please. All plants must travel at risk of purchaser only. When ordering state if plants are to be shipped in or out of pots.

CANNAS.

1,000,000 CANNAS 1,000,000
True to name, quality unsurpassed; not to be compared with common southern grown stock, the socalled contract grown roots, mostly badly mixed, which have been kept in boxes ready packed for several months; such stock results mostly in a heavy loss on shrivelled-up roots. See our full page advertisement in January 19th issue, page 5. Catalogue free.
Shellroad Greenhouses, Grange, Balto., Md.

CYCLAMEN.

GIANT CYCLAMEN. For the last 15 years we always select ¾ of our seed-bearing cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country, no fizzle of many so called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers, that don't have to be petted to be grown into a choice salable plant, a well built five petaled flower, many of them at one time, with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize winner. Received first and second prizes at the Toledo Florists' Club meeting early in November when blooming cyclamen were scarce. We back our claims with stock worth seeing and invite everybody for inspection. Many letters from well satisfied customers. Transplanted seedlings, ready for 2½ or 3-in., $3.00 per 100, $25.00 per 1000; blooming plants, 2½-in., $5.00; 3-in., $8.00 per 100; 5-in., 35c and 50c. Cash.

PELARGONIUMS.

PANSY GERANIUM, MRS. LAYAL.
This beautiful pelargonium is of the easiest growth, dwarf in habit, and literally covered with flowers all the time; and as it requires little or no attention, it is invaluable as a window plant. The coloring and marking of the flowers are most extraordinary, light pink, white, dark purple, black, etc., almost rivaling the pansy in uniqueness of flower. It is this combination of coloring which obtained for it the popular name of pansy geranium. Strong plants, $5.00 per 100.
J. W. Davis, 225 W. 16th St., Davenport, Iowa.

Pelargonium Mrs. Layal, $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1000 or will exchange for bars or glass. What have you to offer?

TO MAINTAIN AN EVEN TEMPERATURE IN YOUR GREENHOUSES, USE A

Foster Pressure Regulator

With this simple device attached to your steam main just inside the greenhouse the pressure on the heating coils will be absolutely constant, anywhere from 1 to 15 pounds (whatever the grower sets the Regulator at), no matter how the pressure on the boilers runs up and down.

If the weather changes, or the sun heat varies, instead of turning on more pipes, just turn a nut on the Regulator, and get more steam, or less steam, at once. Made in sizes from ¾-inch to 10-inch just for this work.

"The Foster Pressure Regulators which have been installed in our greenhouses are giving perfect satisfaction."—Peter Reinberg, Chicago, March 16, 1910.

Greenhouse Heating.

THE COAL MARKET.

Heavy stocks have accumulated at the mines and much coal is in transit, and there is a tendency on the part of bituminous coal operators to close down their mines rather than operate at the present low prices, which they characterize as too close to the cost of production. Prices show a slight hardening in consequence of the attitude of the operators and it is predicted by jobbers that there will be a slight advance from now on, ruling quotations being 35 to 40 cents per ton lower than normal for this season of the year. Prices at the mines are about as follows:

Illinois—Steam lump, $1 to $1.15; mine run, 90 cents to $1.05; 1¼-inch screenings, 55 cents to 75 cents; egg, 90 cents to $1.05; nut, 85 cents to $1.05.

Indiana—Steam lump, $1 to $1.15; mine run, 95 cents to $1.05; 1¼-inch screenings, 65 cents to 75 cents; egg, 90 cents to $1.05; nut, 85 cents to $1.05.

Ohio Hocking—Steam lump, $1.40 to $1.65.

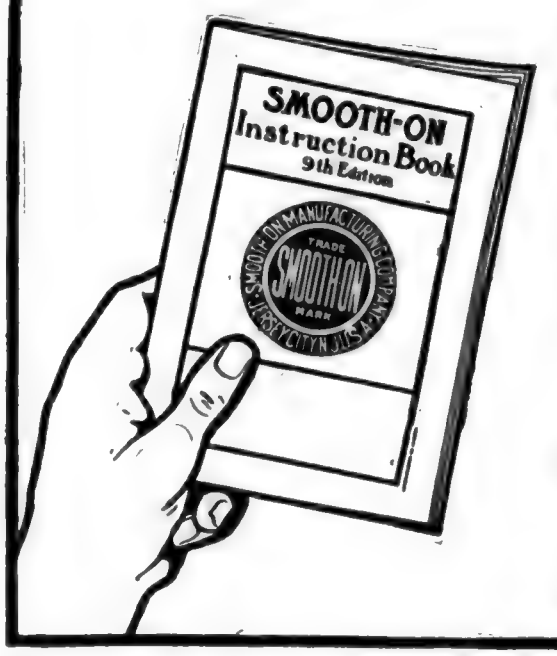
West Virginia smokeless—Mine run, 85 cents to $1.15.

CRUDE OIL AS FUEL.

I saw on page 78 of The Review for January 26 an inquiry by J. B. about using crude oil for heating. I used fuel oil (the heaviest I could get) last winter and this and would not think of using anything else. It depends on the kind of burner he gets and, as there are 60,000 patents, more or less, on oil burners, he has plenty to choose from.

The burner I use is made by F. L. Clark, 917 Splitlog avenue, Kansas City, Kan. It is safe as to fire and there is practically no danger of any explosions when using the heavy fuel oil. Crude oil, or oil as it comes from the well, is very combustible and should be used with great care. L. C. Fields.

BOILER HIGHER THAN RETURNS.



I have two greenhouses, adjoining each other. One is 16 x 42 and the other 28 x 70. There are two 3-inch flows under the ridge and five 2-inch returns on the side posts in the larger house, and one 3-inch flow and four 2-inch returns on each side wall in the smaller house. The boiler is sectional, with the sections standing perpendicularly. There are twelve sections and the boiler is rated to heat 2,300 feet of 4-inch pipe. The boiler is in a pit, but the top of it is about two feet higher than the lowest return pipes. The highest point of the system is over the boiler and all pipes decline from this, but we cannot get satisfactory results. The water boils near the boiler, but does not circulate satisfactorily. Will it be necessary to sink my boiler deeper, or what can be the matter? How much decline is necessary in 70-foot flows?

S. A. M.

The simplest manner of piping a greenhouse is to have the top of the heater lower than the lowest part of the returns. To bring this about, it may be necessary to sink the heater, but if the arrangement of the heating coils is such as to make it possible to raise them, this will probably be the easier way. A closed system could also be used to good advantage. The slope of the pipe need only be enough to free it from air, and one inch in twenty feet will often answer, if the pipes are accurately leveled.

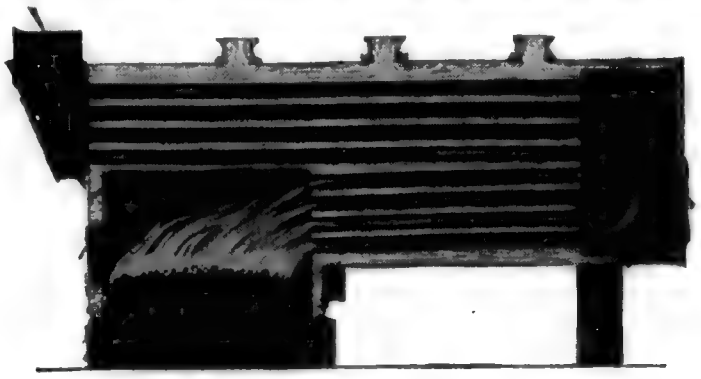
will rust out in a short time. Is this correct? Any advice you can give me will be appreciated. A. B. C.

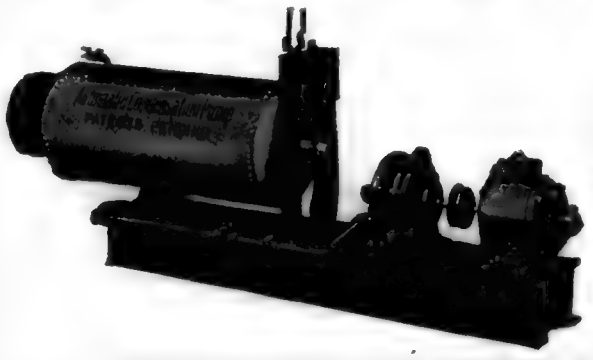
The condition of the pipe is not stated, but at best it will not be as durable as new pipe and if it has been used underground its durability will be greatly lessened. It will be well in either case to coat the pipes inside and outside with mineral paint, free from tar. If the pipe is in bad condition, its use in the heating coils would not be advisable.

COAL, COKE OR GAS?

Can you furnish any information in regard to the relative heating value of hard coal or coke and natural gas, assuming either to be used in the return tubular type of boilers and under normal conditions. The gas is under a pressure of one and one-half to three ounces. We would install the latest improved burners and mixers, but would use no steam or compressed air in connection with the gas. The ruling prices in this vicinity are: Hard coal, $6; coke, $3.50; gas, 30 cents per thousand feet. L.



The results obtained when the fuel is used under a tubular boiler might be different from the results as they have been determined in a small sectional heater. In the latter case the coke would be the cheapest of the three fuels at the prices mentioned, but this would require that it be so burned as to secure its full efficiency. Gas would need to be available at 20 cents to equal the price of coke, and at 25 cents to be comparable with the price of hard coal. In favor of the gas should be noted the saving in the expense of firing and of removing the ashes.



Using it under a tubular boiler, however, it might prove more expensive to burn coke.

THE SLOPE OF THE PIPES.

In hot water heating, how far can the water be carried from the boiler and still give good results? In my heating plant, a 3-inch main will run as far as the greenhouse; then, after it enters the greenhouse, 2-inch pipe will be used for the coils. Would a faster circulation be obtained by running the coils downhill all the way, after leaving the main, than by running them uphill to the far end of the house and then down? W. H. W.

Water can be carried in the mains 500 feet, and even farther if the pipes can be wrapped and if there is a good fall toward the boiler. The question of elevation, as well as the slope of the pipe, enters into the question of rapidity of circulation. With the highest point in one system on the same level as the highest point in another system, and with a uniform slope in each system, there should be a slightly better circulation in the downhill system. With the returns left unchanged in both cases and the furnace end of the down-

Morehead Return Steam Trap and Boiler Feed

The Value of this Temperature Difference.

¶ There are only a few degrees difference in temperature between the steam going into your system and the water of condensation coming out.

¶ A Morehead Boiler Feed Trap will deliver this water direct to the boilers from the steam lines at a still higher temperature (250 degrees and above) and on 90% less steam than is consumed by the pump for returning the same quantity of water of condensation.

¶ It is very foolish, therefore, to cool this condensation down to a low temperature (212 degrees or less) simply to accommodate your steam pump in putting the water back into your boilers.

¶ Don't spend money to heat water when you can use over and over the water you have already heated.

¶ Condensation from any steam heating or power apparatus must be removed to get efficiency. The Morehead Steam Trap does it quicker, easier and makes better use of it than any other means or appliance.

¶ The Morehead is a silent but generous contributor to the Dividend Fund. Just ask the user of a Morehead Trap in your neighborhood. The purchaser is our best salesman.

hill flow pipe raised so as to give it a slight fall in the opposite direction, the circulation would be even better in the downhill system. It is unwise to have any of the pipes run uphill, especially if small pipes are used, as the water cools rapidly, and as it becomes heavier, the weight in the two columns becomes more nearly equal and the circulation is retarded.

VEGETABLES INDOORS AND OUT.

Prof. L. C. Corbett, of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., was the lecturer January 27 in the course given by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at Horticultural hall. He talked on "New England Market Gardeners and Their Competitors," and said in part:

"Lettuce is the great forcing crop of America, and Boston the recognized authority of the crop. While this is all true, the important fact is that the Boston gardeners had adopted as their forcing sort the variety which thrives best in the open. Perhaps this is the result of chance, but I dare say that the evolution of Big Boston or Hettinger's Belmont Forcing would lead along a line of ancestors that came first from the open into frames and hotbed and finally into the forcing house. To begin with, it was the best and toughest outdoor lettuce. It is not a child of the greenhouse except by adoption. In growing it in the field the southern growers are only taking advantage of the sorts and markets which you have for years been preparing for them. As long as there was no field crop in Florida and no frame crop about Wilmington, Newborne and Norfolk, this dual type lettuce was satisfactory. It served the gardener better than two sorts, one distinctly a forcing variety and the other a special outdoor sort. But conditions have changed and with the change a new problem is presented to those growing lettuce under glass.

"The problem as I see it is that of finding a special sort for each particular purpose. Since we have prepared a dual purpose lettuce which thrives equally well in the open and under glass, if we are to continue the cultivation of this sort under glass it must take on some distinctive mark or character when so grown which cannot be acquired in the open.

"This gives me an opportunity to again repeat my text, that it is the task of the market gardener to refine horticulture, and to produce distinctive products which are not generally produced by the truck farmers of the country, who can, as a rule, produce large quantities of the standard vegetables more cheaply than can market gardeners. Instead of trying to win out in a competitive undertaking, let us rather win our financial success by growing a distinctly different type of product than that grown in the open.

"The work that we are doing at the Department of Agriculture along this line has for its object furnishing the foundation on which such a distinctive industry may be built up. It is our desire to place the forcing industry and the field industry on different foundations—to develop a group of varieties which are distinctive forcing sorts and another group which are equally distinctive field sorts. This we believe to be the simplest way of overcoming competition and maintaining both industries. We are at present engaged in determining the sorts which are distinctly adapted for forcing conditions. We are endeavoring to improve the quality of the seed of those sorts, so that those who wish to engage in the production of such specialties may call upon us for a small quantity of stock seed from which to produce their own crop of seed. We do not anticipate growing seed in a commercial way. All we hope to do is to maintain small plantations of distinctive strains of field and forcing house products from which commercial growers may secure sufficient stock seed to enable them to grow seed for commercial purposes.

"The only thing we ask is a pledge of good faith, good cultivation and an honest endeavor to keep the strains pure, but if for any reason the seeds become mixed or lose caste, return to headquarters for a fresh supply of stock seed.

"This is the aim and object of one of the lines of work which we are pursuing for the benefit of the market growers of Boston and elsewhere throughout the United States. I wish to leave the impression that we are not endeavoring to produce new varieties, but rather to bring about a high standard of excellence in the best commercial sorts already upon the market. We are interested in the producer of the commercial crop, and we feel that if we can place this choice stock seed at the disposal of those who grow the seed, we can to that extent insure the producer of the market product. This, we think, is one of the cheapest crop insurances which the government can offer to the gardeners and truck farmers of the United States."

WOOD LICE OR SOW BUGS.

Please tell me the name of the insects enclosed. The little pests are usually near the root of the plants and it seems to me that they eat the plants. Is there any remedy for these?

M. L.

The insects in question are wood lice, or sow bugs, and they do frequently eat the tender growth of various plants. One of the best remedies for this pest is a mixture of brown sugar and Paris green, either sprinkled along the border of the bench or placed on small pieces of glass among the plants.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

There has been a slight improvement in the stock supply the last few days, although carnations are still scarce. Daffodils, tulips, Romans and other bulbous stock are plentiful.

McKinley day, originated in Cleveland, is almost a thing of the past as far as the florists are concerned. Few of the Wm. Scott and other pink varieties of carnations were worn January 29 by our fellow citizens and it is doubtful if many people, including florists, really know the favorite carnation of our martyred president. Whose fault is this, if not the florists'? Such days as this one and several others could be of great benefit to the trade if properly advertised and if the retailers could be reasonably sure of enough stock and fair prices.

Various Notes.

The J. M. Gasser Co. had a Saturday window of orchids which was worthy of note. A large tree trunk in the center was covered with southern tree moss and Cattleya Trianæ, as also were several smaller ones at the sides and in the background.

The opening of the Geo. D. Koch Furniture Co., Euclid avenue and East One Hundred and Fifth street, January 30, created some stir in the florists' business.

The Jones-Russell Co. reports business good and has several big weddings booked for early spring.

Geo. Hoffman, of Newburgh, is marketing his new variegated carnation in limited quantities and it surely is a beauty.

The flower show, February 13, bids fair to be an enthusiastic affair. It will take place at the club rooms on Detroit avenue and it is doubtful if there will be sufficient space to accommodate everybody, but let us all take a chance anyhow and make this one a good start for a greater one next year.

UP-TO-DATE GROWERS SPRAY

TO-BAK-INE LIQUID

And Are Not Troubled With

Thrips on Carnations

TO-BAK-INE Liquid in cans: ¼ pint, 60c; ½ pint, $1.10; 1 pint, $2.00; 1 quart, $3.95; 1 gallon, $15.00. Also put up in 10, 20 and 40-gallon casks with locked faucet, for large growers.

Directions for Use

MR. A. F. J. BAUR, the well-known Carnation expert, writes: "If I had a carnation house ever so badly infested by Greenfly or Thrips, I would spray with To-Bak-Ine Liquid not stronger than three teaspoonfuls to a gallon of water, and six gallons of this solution would spray a house 25x100 feet thoroughly. I would rather spray with this strength every day for a few days than to make it stronger. Ordinarily one spraying in two days is enough for the first week, and thereafter once or possibly twice each week will be sufficient.

"I am satisfied that spraying is most effective in destroying these pests, as well as the least harmful to the plants or blooms.

"In order to derive the most benefit from the use of To-Bak-Ine, it should be used regularly throughout the season, as a preventive. We begin to spray our carnations with it regularly once each week as soon as they are well established on the beds in the houses, about September 1 (or sooner if any insects show themselves), and we find that this will keep away Aphis, Thrips, and in addition to intelligent syringing it will keep down Red Spider. The number of blooms usually lost through the ravages of these pests can be reduced to a minimum by the use of To-Bak-Ine. These blooms saved will easily pay for the cost of spraying and have a good balance over. It is surprising how many blooms are discarded by growers, which could have been saved by the use of this preparation; when you figure them at 3c to 5c each during midwinter it runs up into money quickly.

"No grower can afford to be without this preparation and it will take merely a fair trial to convince anyone of its value. When I begin on To-Bak-Ine I find it hard to stop. I feel that I could not possibly say too much in its favor, especially as a remedy for Aphis and Thrips."—Signed, A. F. J. BAUR.

(Mr. Baur is Secretary of the American Carnation Society.)

PITTSBURG, PA.

The Market.

The retail cut flower trade has been moving along quietly the last week; it could not be called dull, but there have been no large orders and there is no doubt the high price of flowers has kept the small sales down.

Among the wholesalers pink and red roses have been scarce all week, but white have been plentiful enough. Lilies have almost dropped out of sight and carnations are still short, but violets, valley, daffodils and tulips are quite plentiful. Taken all in all it has been an easy week, with just enough stock to clean up nicely and nothing to worry about except collections.

Various Notes.

G. & J. W. Ludwig have rented a large store room on Federal street, north side, and will open a first-class flower store at once.

P. J. Demas, of the Pittsburg Florists' Exchange, and J. Gregories, who was formerly in the retail flower business on Fifth avenue, have taken a ten-year lease on a building on Fifth avenue at a rental aggregating $500,000. They will rent the upper floors, but expect to open a theater on the first floor.

Tuesday, February 3, will be club meeting night and all the members should pay their dues and be on hand to vote, as this is the first time in years there has been more than one candidate for president. The candidates are: John Jones, foreman Schenley Park greenhouses, and Wm. Allen, superintendent of Homewood cemetery.

Edw. Weaver, of Randolph & McClements, who has been on the sick list, is back at his post.

C. Philipp, formerly gardener on the Swift estate at Lake Geneva, Wis., is now in this city, where he is taking charge, as superintendent and florist, of H. J. Heinz's place, generally known as the Greenlawn Conservatories.

John Madden, of Randolph & McClements' Penn avenue store, reports the business as showing continued improvement, especially counter sales.

We had two days' sunshine in succession last week—the first in months.

POTASH

¶ When I was a boy, 40 years ago, my father was the largest manufacturer of Potash in Canada. He had the best Ashery I ever saw, and I think I have seen most of the good ones and a lot of the poor ones, or one-horse affairs. I will give you a short sketch of how his business was run:

He kept 4 teams and 4 men collecting Ashes every day in the year, these Ashes were put in bins in the ashery, and where 2 men were kept to leach Ashes and boil down into Potash; there were 7 large vats to hold Ashes, these 7 held 22 tons of Unleached Ashes. They were filled once a week, and never allowed to be without water in them, which leached lye down through them into a receiving kettle. It was then pumped up into a storage tank, carried by pipes to boiling down kettles, with taps so that it could be fed as required, and boiled down into Potash. Now one of these men came to work at 4 in the morning, the other later. The latter worked till 9 at night, in that way it could be kept going 24 hours a day. Now, he got off his Ashery 7 barrels of Potash a week. The barrels held 600 lbs. of Potash, which gave him 4,200 lbs. of Potash out of 22 tons Ashes. He sold his leached Ashes in the United States for Fertilizer. You may say, did he always get 7 barrels out of these Ashes? Well, when I say 7 barrels I mean 7 barrels was the average; if he had 6¾ one week he would get another week 7¼ or 7½. The barrels were made up of Coolers and it took 2 coolers to make a barrel, so the average was 7 barrels week in and week out as they rolled by.

The Potash was shipped to Montreal and sold according to market value, which ran from 5 cents a lb. to 5¼, 5⅓, 5½ and sometimes 6 cents a lb. Now figure the per cent of Potash he got by leaching and compare to tests shown by experiment stations. Why, they try to shove it down my neck, my No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes test 4½, 5, 5½, 6, 6½ Potash. You know how much I believe in their tests, don't you?

My No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes of today are collected just the same as my father's Ashes were collected 30 and 40 years ago, are burnt out of the same kind of wood, and are not manufactured. The process of taking 1 week (7 days) to leach Potash out of Ashes may produce more Potash than Chemists show them to contain. Another point to consider, after this large per cent of Potash has been taken out of these Ashes, the same chemist will tell us leached Ashes contain 1 to 1½ Potash. These leached Ashes also contain lime, etc., which makes them a valuable fertilizer. If a farmer can buy leached Ashes at a profit, he has to pay as much freight on a car of leached Ashes as on a car of my No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes.

It seems to me, my No. 1 Unleached Ashes, with all the Potash in them, is the greatest money maker any grower can buy, for he gets everything in them. His soil has plenty of time to leach the Potash out. My No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes will make your crop increase not only first year, but for years to follow. You can see the results.

I wrote one learned, high paid gentleman, and asked if he could explain to me why my No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes did not test 10 to 12 per cent Potash, and what they would produce if leached. He wrote me a very nice letter in reply, stating that what my father made was crude Potash, and the test he gave was K_2O, or A, Absolute Pure. Well, crude Potash sold for 5 and 6 cents a lb. We had to test No. 1 Potash to get that price. All I have to say about it is, my No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes will give better results than his or any other test will give them the credit of doing, and $500 worth of my ashes will produce a larger crop than $500 worth of any manufactured fertilizer will produce, side by side on the same farm. I have had my customers write me, that my ashes have doubled their crops.

Give me an order for a car and try it on your own work, watch results, and you will be a regular customer of mine.

I do not own an Ashery, never leached my Ashes, but have teams scattered in different parts of Canada collecting No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes, and do a strictly exporting business. Nothing but the best is handled, and shipped just as collected. All I do with them after they come into my storehouses is to sift them to remove charcoal or other dirt that may be thrown into the stoves, such as dishes, broken glass, burnt bricks falling down out of the fireplaces. All this rubbish is removed so as to have my Ashes go out properly, and save freight on such stuff that would be of no use for fertilizer.

Shipped in bulk in tight box cars, car lots only. Shipped in any quantity desired, put up in bags, car lots or smaller lots, as required.

FOR LAWNS—1 ton to acre No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes will give you a beautiful rich green lawn. GARDENS—1 ton to acre will give you abundant crop. OATS—36 bushels to acre requires 24 lb. phoc. acid, and 80 lb. potash, 1,000 lbs. No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes will supply the plant food required to grow. HAY—1 ton No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes will supply plant food to grow 3 tons Hay to acre. WHEAT, figuring 30 bushels to acre—500 lbs. No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes will furnish plant food required. ORCHARDS—35 trees to acre bearing, should have 1,500 lbs. to 2,000 lbs. No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes to acre to get good results. BARLEY—Crop 1,000 lbs. Ashes to acre. MAIZE—1,500 to 2,000 lbs. No. 1 Ashes to acre will give you a crop. POTATOES—1 ton my Ashes to the acre. CABBAGE—Sprinkle with Ashes, it will keep the worms off the plants; dust it on.

If the land is well tilled, you will have abundant crops if you use No. 1 Canadian Unleached Hardwood Ashes.

Trusting to have the privilege of quoting you my price, delivered at your nearest railway station, I am, Yours truly,

GEO. STEVENS, Peterboro, Ont., Can.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

No particular change in trade conditions can be noted for last week. Supplies just about equaled the demand. The sale of carnations on Saturday was not quite as large as was expected, but no surplus was left on hand, as out-of-town calls cleared out everything. Violets are still quoted at 50 cents a bunch, and tulips find a ready sale at 60 cents a dozen.

Various Notes.

The wedding of Miss E. Pearl Becker and Ransford W. Wilson took place Thursday, January 26, at Alton, N. Y. Mr. Wilson is connected with the firm of H. E. Wilson, and is the active manager of the Rochester Floral Co. The home was most beautifully decorated with palms, ferns and flowering plants, and the bride carried a dainty bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will make their home on Hudson avenue, in this city.

The next meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association will be held Monday evening, February 13, in the new rooms at 75 Main street, east. The growth of the association has made it imperative that larger quarters be secured, and the new location meets the requirements in every way, and is more centrally located than the former rooms. President Hart has some plans that will make the monthly meetings of special interest, one of them being a series of talks on floriculture by practical men. E. F. R.

WINTHROP, MASS.

Miss Eunice B. Belcher, who last year opened a flower store in the Wadsworth block, reports business as satisfactory. For the funeral of the late Edward B. Newton there was the largest display of flowers ever seen in Winthrop. Miss Belcher had a large number of designs. Among these was a basket five feet high of Pink Delight and White Perfection carnations, all on long stems. Several designs were made of orchids and gardenias; one large pillow of cattleyas with Mexican ivy as a background was pretty. Among other organizations supplied by Miss Belcher were all the schools, Republican Club, Masons, Odd Fellows, Yacht Club, Civic League and many others.

ST. LOUIS NOTES.

also here with the Breen and Kennedy team and made some good scores.

A. C. Brown, of Springfield, Ill., was a caller last week. Mr. Brown is a shipper to this market, and reports stock scarce the last two weeks.

Mike Mitchell, a few years back in business at Little Rock, Ark., has purchased the business of John Quinn at 1000 North Grand avenue from W. C. Smith, who had it for sale. Mr. Mitchell and his wife will run the place. Mrs. Mitchell is said to be one of the best designers in the floral art in the south.

E. W. Guy, of Belleville, was over last week and reports good trade in Belleville among the florists. Mr. Guy is chairman of the trustees of the Florists' Club, and says he will call a meeting of the officers this week and lay plans for an interesting club meeting.

The midwinter graduating classes of the public schools last week caused quite a run for stock at all the wholesale houses, causing it to be somewhat scarce and high in price. J. J. B.

ANOTHER STYLE OF HOUSE.

Ludwig Stapp, at Rock Island, Ill., is putting up three houses, each 32x300 feet, employing a combination iron frame and truss construction designed by the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, who say contracts have been received for about 250,000 square feet of glass to be built this spring with this construction. The framework is made up with angle iron rafters placed eight feet four inches apart, and these rafters are fastened to the gutter posts with wrought steel collars, so that the iron frame is entirely independent of the gutter or the roof woodwork. Where the iron rafters meet at the ridge a wrought steel plate is used to connect them and in this way all parts are firmly joined. The result is a strong and rigid iron frame over which the sashbars, gutters and roof are laid. In addition to the iron rafters, truss rods are used with wrought steel struts. The Moninger Co. has installed several new machines for manufacturing this type of construction and is confident the new house will be largely used in commercial construction. Jobs now in course of erection, besides the one for Mr. Stapp, include two houses 27x110 for W. H. Kneer, Peoria, Ill.; three houses 28x214 for Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, Wis; two for the Northern Hospital for the Insane, Madison, Wis., and one house 28x100 for Toledo State Hospital, Toledo, O.

A Parallel Proposition

A house 200 feet long on private grounds looks too commercial, but two 100-foot houses built parallel fashion like these, and you have an attractive, compact proposition. THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

RETAILERS' ADVERTISING.

Advertising space in the leading morning paper in Chicago costs considerable money, but the retail florists who have tried this method of increasing their sales have found that the money spent is bringing good returns, so that there is a constant increase in the amount of space used. The reproductions of advertisements on this page were all clipped from a recent issue. Each advertisement was double column. Everyone connected with the trade in Chicago is glad to see the retailers making liberal use of the space in the daily papers. In the first place, the advertising retailers handle increasing quantities of stock, and a part of the demand they create is felt in other stores. In the second place, the newspapers naturally are interested in the lines of industry from which they derive their own business and are therefore treating floricultural matters with much more consideration than they did before florists began advertising. It all helps.

VALENTINE TABLES.

Dainty, Expressive Decorations.

The table for a valentine party calls for an especially dainty, small decoration. In picturing a particular sentiment, some object which is in itself practical and suggestive will express the idea much more clearly and quickly than a week's work. Let us see. You could pile a bushel of violets on a table without expressing any special valentine sentiment, but if you introduce some familiar image you have the idea made conspicuous.

What objects, then, would occur to you in connection with the valentine season? Why, Cupid, of course, and hearts and flowers, and little birds that tell things. And, following a little farther, how does the prince of hearts operate? Immediately you remember some of his tools—bows and arrows, canoes and candles, the new moon. These are several keys to unlock the sentiments too dumbly expressed by the flowers for our material vision to grasp them.

Cupid and His Surroundings.

Fill a basket or vase with whatever flowers you propose to use and set a dainty Cupid in among the flowers. Let him hold a whole bunch of ribbons, a strand of which shall extend to each place and there be tied to a bunch of flowers to be used as a favor. Or he could be suspended over the table with the burden of ribbons, and with cards to which are attached tiny baskets of flowers as favors.

Then he is always interesting on parade with a heart of flowers, amid a litter of loose flowers all about on the table. Who could refrain from admiring a dainty Cupid aiming his arrows from a swinging crescent of flowers, especially if the crescent be of violets or Romans, a mere outline new moon just out over some guest's left shoulder? Cupid looks "cute" at the oar, too, in a canoe loaded with small flowers with some long trailers of vines, and with a pierced heart and some loose flowers left behind.

The Telltale Birds.

Small doves will do for the telltale little birds. Perch them upon the rims of pots or among the branches, or down on the table with some scattered flowers, where they are supposed to be jabbering love secrets to one another. In this decorative plan, much depends upon the attitude and pose of the birds. They must be in gossipy and listening positions, either with regard to one another or to the guests. Plenty of them will be needed to make the hit of the decoration. A few small hearts of scarlet flowers or violets will develop this plan. Scatter them about on the table conspicuously.

A more elaborate centerpiece may be evolved from the combination of Cupid in the center, amid a thicket of flowers and ferns in an ordinary plaque centerpiece, with a circle of birds about all alive with interest in what they may be gaining from him. This circle of birds can be mounted on a thicket of pussy willows. The pussy willows can be cut three or four weeks previously and forced into bloom in water in the warmth and sunshine of a greenhouse.

INTERIOR STORE DECORATION.

A flower store may be always beautiful, but the sameness of effect cannot fail to be apparent, in the course of time, to those of the customers who have sufficient artistic perception to analyze the means by which the effect is obtained. More and more as retailers come to appreciate the value of frequent change of tasteful window display, they come also to appreciate the need for rearrangement of the interior of the store. It is because of this, for one thing, that the modern flower store has no counters for the clerk to stand behind when selling. Movable marble-topped tables are so much more easily rearranged.

Pittsburg has one of the handsomest flower stores in the country, that of the A. W. Smith Co., where the management is wide-awake to the value of such seasonable decorations as will make it always possible for the customer to find something new to admire

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT.

[A paper by Irwin Bertermann, of Indianapolis, read before the Detroit Florists' Club February 6, 1911.]

The retail flower business may well be classified in two well defined parts—the commercial and the ideal. It is most essential that the sterner force which propels the larger industries be combined with the more subtle and delicate artistic loving nature. It is not enough to master the art of buying and selling—it is necessary to live the veritable life of the flower; to love and to be able to personally arrange them in beautiful combinations, or to constantly teach others to imbue them with a masterful individuality. The retail store man, to gain prominence, must be a composite of the Italian, with his love of art; the German, with his perseverance and perfection of detail; the Parisian, with his knowledge of color, and last, but not least, the leader of the van with salesmanship and push—our Yankee.

Some of the flower dealers lean more toward one qualification than to another. One well-known retailer, who possesses a fine knowledge of figures and segregation, manages his business efficiently and in entirety from his office; another, with innate taste for the beautiful, manages directly among the flowers and throws bookkeeping, figuratively speaking, to others. Suffice it to say that no matter which policy a retailer pursues personally, he must be most careful that not one or the other be forgotten in rounding out a business.

Commercialism in Flowers.

There is more commercialism in the flower business than there was ten years ago, and there will be more in the future, so it behooves all who would be among the "survival of the fittest," harsh though that may sound, to adopt the bulwark of the larger American industries and apply system throughout. Individuality has its merits, and the store man who arranges flowers with taste and skill is to be admired as a creator of the finer arts, but, like all others, must become a unit where the great volume of trade is subservient to the iron hand. It takes no more exertion for a man to do a large business under a system than it does to do a small one without such advantage, and if anything the favor comes to the larger, as it is certainly more of a pleasure and a credit to manage it.

The foreign trade papers are, or should be, a source of much learning. Years of plodding have taught the older countries an insight into perfected detail which is hard to discover among ourselves. Our goal has rightfully and honorably been the dollar, but for the sake of finer beauty and success, also more dollars, it is well to take notice of the beautiful wreaths, baskets and easel arrangements of Russia, Germany, France and England.

We are store men in a wonderful country. The growers are producing elegant stock, so let the retailer show nature's productions in their most exquisite arrangement.

The cost per hour of a well-decorated window is in direct proportion to the amount of store rent paid. A well-arranged window is one of the best advertisements a dealer may have, and it should always be of utmost importance to keep the same trimmed in excellent taste. Unlike other lines of trade, the florist has the finest material at hand, and rarely is it necessary to introduce other materials to make it attractive—in fact, goods other than those regularly supplied as accessories should be discouraged in featuring a window. There is no better taste than flowers, and as we derive our livelihood therefrom, why promote other attractions? Harmony in color by allotting a whole or a distinct part to one shade of flower adds much to the general appearance of the window.

The Automobile.

Many of the store men are adding automobiles to their chattels, and the consensus of opinion seems to have relegated the horse to the past. The urgent time calls, the long hours and the important events of life with which the retailers have to contend make automobile delivery of peculiar valuo to the retailer, and its use should be encouraged as a useful rather than an extravagant part of the equipment. Let it be omnipresent, though, that we are florists and are not endeavoring to degenerate into a greasy garage manager, as he can do repairing much better and more economically while we are engaging a fancy customer.

Most important is it for the leading retailers to produce or to deal in novelties. It would be a grand thing were it possible to sell the same article each year, but destiny will not have it so. Catering to the public makes it imperative to have something new or novel at all times. The flowers need not be new from the trade standpoint, but it is requisite to have a refreshing change for the flower lovers. There are created styles in flowers and they keep changing. What was regarded as old and uninteresting a generation previous may be a good selling article at present. Antirrhinum, bouvardia and Bon Silene roses were favorites with our grandmothers, but are in style right now, made up with paper holders used during Napoleon's reign. Mignonette, pansies, forget-me-not and carnations will never grow old, but the grower and retailer should conspire to present something different at all times. Novel arrangements are as essential as novel flowers, and no opportunity should be overlooked in placing before the public a new and meritorious combination of nature's wares. Corsage bouquets made of older varieties of flowers have grown wonderfully in demand and are a source of much revenue to the present-day dealer.

Irwin Bertermann.

Counter Trade.

At least forty per cent of the store men's business might properly be classified as counter trade, so the importance of packing flowers carefully in a neat box of up-to-date pattern and adding a few finishing touches in the way of ribbons, Farleyense ferns and flowers must not be overlooked. Counter trade is a certain barometer of the state of trade and, like that instrument, fluctuates quickly. The many details in connection with this important branch are often ably taken in hand by correspondents of the florists' press. Their ideas may often be enlarged upon, and the incentive given the fagged, but energetic, shop man is not to be underestimated. It is up to him to effect an opening for the great mass of flowers thrown upon the market by millions of feet of glass, and any suggestion in furthering their sale is of immense general value.

"Take care of your business and your business will take care of you," as Poor Richard's Almanac had it, is certainly an axiom worthy of every retailer. The flower business is not so conducive to financial results as are some other commercial lines, but the instances are few in which the returns are not sufficient, provided the above axiom is closely adhered to.

Opinions differ greatly as to the best method of advertising. There are many effective ways. Some use newspapers, others magazines, some programs and others none at all in the way of prin-

n the general effect of the store. The ccompanying illustrations show how elaborate these seasonable decorations are. This is a Japanese effect and it embraced the entire large store, with gardens, joss houses, tea house and illumination by Chinese lanterns, throwing a mellow light over the whole. Opinions differ greatly as to the best method of advertising. There are many effective ways. Some use newspapers, others magazines, some programs and others none at all in the way of printers' ink, but in actual energy in their display of flowers and in the class of goods furnished. All of those mentioned and others receive the support of the public if done in an energetic manner and supported in actual facts.

One of the most promising institutions —the florists' telegraph delivery—is still in its infancy. The amount of business transacted mutually between cities is no small one, and with the plan outlined by the president of the association, J. A. Valentine, generally accepted this source of revenue should be greatly increased. No retail florist in the larger cities could afford to be without the protection and advantages thus offered at a minimum cost.

Orchids and gardenias, articles de luxe a few years ago, have become staple articles in cities with over 200,000 population. Customers may complain at times that prices are high for fancy flowers, but still it is seemingly the unusual and the higher priced goods which satisfy.

The Growth of Riches.

The flower standard grows higher each year, so the retailer in a city of 500,000 sells more than twice as much as when the city was half that size, as the patrons have grown proportionately richer. When recognition is taken that New York city's millionaires are now to be counted in the thousands, whereas twenty years ago there were perhaps less than 100, we can see the direct reasons for changing our business methods and look forward to standards which will place the retail florist in the front row of industrial pursuits and gain respect as a representative type of American business men.

A progressive flower store, tasteful in appointment, absolutely clean, with efficient salesmen and flower workers attaining the reputation of handling meritorious goods, must be ably managed. The ideal manager, a rare individual, must possess the executive qualities usually attributed to him. Further, he should have the fine artistic ability of a Thorley, Battles, Palmer or a score of others who have won distinction for their class and whose work stands forth as a challenge to all who would do better.

GIGANTEUMS FOR EASTER.

We have planted some Lilium giganteum and some are slower than the others. What can I do to force them along so they will be in for Easter? They are now about two and one-half to three inches above the pots. H. B.

Place the lilies in a house which you can keep at 60 to 65 degrees at night. The higher figure will be the better. Spray them overhead once or twice a day with clear water and once a week with nicotine to keep aphis in check. To be quite sure of having our lilies on time you should be able to see the buds when Lent arrives, which is this year the first week in March. Do not, however, despair of them if the buds do not show then. In a brisk, moist heat they can be had in thirty-five days' time, but it is far better to be able to keep the plants a little cooler just before Easter, when the flowers are open. It makes the blooms of greater substance and gives them better keeping qualities than those which have to be forced to the utmost limit to get them in on time. C. W.

FLOWERS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

What kind of ten weeks' stocks are best? We have an empty greenhouse and wish to start it the last of February and cut flowers for Memorial day. Would that be in time for gladioli, zinnias and ten weeks' stocks? A. A. S.

To have ten weeks' stocks in flower for Memorial day, seed should be sown at once in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. The giant ten weeks' is an excellent strain. If sown now the plants will flower at the end of May. Sow in flats; then transplant into other flats, or, better still, pot off singly, later transferring to the benches. Gladioli of the large flowered types will be in good season planted at the end of February. Spiræas planted in the benches seven weeks before Memorial day will be on time and will prove a paying crop. If you have any good double feverfews in pots, they can also be relied upon for an abundance of flowers. C. W.

CULTURE OF SNAPDRAGONS.

I wish to get some information about the culture of snapdragons. When should seed be sown to have the plants ready to go on benches after early chrysanthemums? How far apart should they be planted on the benches? Please give general instructions about the culture of snapdragons. B. W.

Snapdragons can be propagated by either cuttings or seeds. Your best plan would be to sow a batch of seed, comprising the best selling colors in separate shades, which are pure white, yellow, clear pink and scarlet. Plant these outdoors. Mark the plants carrying the finest spikes. Cut them back and take cuttings from them early in August, rooting them in a north house or coldframe. Seed of a reliable strain will give flowers pretty true to color. Sow these early in August. Pot off singly when of sufficient size, using 2-inch pots. Later shift into 4-inch pots. This will give you strong plants for benching late in October.

Pinch the top out of the young plants, so that they will break and send up four to six shoots each. If you want fancy spikes, reduce the number to three. Soil which has been used for mums, if given a coating of cow manure and some fine bone, will grow good snapdragons. Place the plants twelve inches apart each way. As the shoots run up, stake them, as those with twisted stems will be unsalable. Rub all the side shoots off the flowering stems, in order to give all possible strength to the flowers. Feed when the plants are in active growth. Fumigate to keep down aphis, but never use gas, as snapdragons will not stand it.

Snapdragons should have a night temperature not exceeding 50 degrees; at 5 degrees lower than this, while they will develop more slowly, they will give stronger spikes. It is a good plan to propagate from the best plants you have of any particular color, planting these out in the field in May in order to get stock from them. C. W.

TIME TO SOW ZINNIAS.

What kind of zinnia seeds should I buy and when should they be planted? A. A. S.

Zinnia seeds germinate quickly and grow so rapidly that it is better not to sow them before the end of March, or early in April. If started earlier they will become rather unwieldy before planting-out time arrives. About every seedsman carries a good strain of Zinnia elegans and you can purchase it either mixed or in separate colors. Purchase a good strain and you are then certain of having few singles. C. W.

DAHLIAS AT DES MOINES.

The dahlia is becoming a commercially important plant throughout practically the entire country. The accompanying illustration shows one of the dahlia fields at the establishment of W. K. Fletcher, Des Moines, Ia. Mr. Fletcher grows, in addition to dahlias, gladioli, Shasta daisies, sweet peas and other hardy bulbs and plants. He grows both for stock, for wholesale and for cut flowers for the local and other markets. Mr. Fletcher reports a fine season for the sale of gladiolus bulbs, saying: "I have been getting from two to a dozen letters each mail in response to the classified ad in The Review."

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Bouvardias.

The red and pink varieties of bouvardia are now little grown. This is regrettable, for not only do they furnish a pleasing variety in cut flowers for Christmas, but nicely grown plants in pots are quite salable. In the European markets plants in 5-inch and 6-inch pots meet with a large sale. The variety, Humboldtii, has come into considerable favor of late. This is far the best of the bouvardias. It produces long stems. The flowers are larger than the other sorts and have a delicious perfume. A prominent grower for the Boston market, who made a specialty of this variety last winter, cut large quantities with stems twenty-four to thirty-six inches in length, which found a ready sale in bunches of one dozen at $1 to $2 per bunch.

In order to secure a batch of strong plants for flowering next winter, some old plants should have been rested, pruned back and placed in heat. These will give a crop of cuttings in a short time, which will root in three weeks, and can be planted in the field in May. B. Humboldtii propagates much easier than any other bouvardia and is a more vigorous grower. It is not, as some people imagine, a new plant, as it has been in cultivation over thirty years. The other varieties of bouvardias propagate best from root cuttings laid in a sand bench in a warm, moist house.

Rhododendrons.

The white and light pink rhododendrons make desirable Easter plants. The strong colors are not wanted at all. Rhododendrons should have been potted some time ago and stored in a pit just clear of actual freezing. They are much better in quality when not subjected to hard forcing. There are now a good two months before they are wanted, so place them in a moderately cool house, kept at 45 to 50 degrees at night, and they will be in flower on time. If they are found to be a little early, as may be possible if we get a hot spell in the last half of March or early April, it is easy moving them to cooler quarters. When hard forced the flowers wilt quickly when subjected to a low temperature. A syringing overhead once or twice a day in bright weather may be given until the flowers show color.

Lorraine Begonias.

The earliest batch of Lorraine leaf cuttings are now well rooted and little plants are pushing up from them. Pot them into 2-inch pots, using mostly flaky leaf-mold and sand, and stand them on a warm bench, where they will get some bottom heat. There they will quickly establish themselves.

As the bulk of the left-over plants have now passed out of flower, this is an opportune time to take off a large quantity of leaf cuttings and put in the propagating bench. Plants which were headed back after Christmas, kept dry for a time and then given a brisk, moist heat, are now throwing a good crop of cuttings. These should be taken off as fast as they are of sufficient size. Given a warm bench, few should fail to root. There is, of course, plenty time yet in which to propagate Lorraines; even those put in as late as June will make nice little plants, and, by the way, the supply of these in small pots and pans was inadequate last Christmas in many of the large cities.

Callas.

Callas in pots should now be generously fed, not only with liquid manure, but top-dressings of fine bone, which the roots seem to fairly revel in. During the next two or three months the finest flowers of the year will be produced and, in order to get them of the best possible quality, the plants must be well fed.

Where the stock is being grown in shallow benches, the roots will also now have pretty well used up the available plant food and occasional top-dressings of fine bone or sheep manure, scratching over the surface lightly, will greatly benefit them. In using sheep manure, a good plan is to mix it with twice the quantity of screened loam before applying.

The new Godfrey calla, with its pure white flowers and paler spadix, is a grand acquisition, and flowering as it does thrice as freely as the old variety, it is bound to largely usurp its place. It originated with W. J. Godfrey, the noted English chrysanthemum specialist.

Gladioli.

Toward the end of February is a suitable time to plant a good sized batch of large-flowered gladioli for May flowering. The colored varieties will be found especially useful for Memorial day. Any vacant benches can be profitably utilized by growing a gladiolus crop in them. If the benches are not quite ready and you are anxious to get the bulbs started, place the bulbs singly in 3-inch pots. Stand them pot to pot on any spare bench and later plant them out in their flowering quarters. America continues a prime favorite with growers. The new Dawn will prove a strong rival for it. The old brilliant scarlet Brenchleyensis, although the cheapest on the list, is one of the best for cutting and is of just the color wanted for Memorial day.

Freesias.

Where the freesia plants are cut down close to the soil, there is no use in keeping them over another year. As the demand now is for flowers on long stems, it is necessary to ruin the bulbs to supply the flowers. If, however, as often happens, the flowering stems have been cut off separately and the foliage not removed, the bulbs will be of excellent quality for another year, provided that when the flowers are cut the pans or pots are not stood under the bench to ripen, but given a light shelf where they can gradually ripen off. The small bulblets should all be saved, for these, if sown moderately thick in flats containing four inches of soil, will the year following produce fine flowering sized bulbs, and as the price of Purity, the best freesia, holds up well, it will pay for anyone to raise some of his own bulbs.

Geraniums

SEASONABLE CULTURE.

The last lot of geranium cuttings procurable from the tops of the stronger plants should now be taken and inserted singly in small pots. Plants which will not yield a cutting of sufficient length and which nevertheless need pinching, should merely have the tops taken out. Any plants still in 2-inch pots should go into 3-inch, and if any in the latter size are appearing starved, better move them into 4-inch. They can easily be kept in good condition until the early sales start, even if a little feeding is necessary to keep them toned up later in the season.

It is pretty generally conceded that the use of anything like fresh animal manure in geranium soil is harmful. It may give you a vigorous, green looking plant, but flowers, which are needed to sell stock, will be sadly lacking. Bone meal and good pasture loam at the rate of a 6-inch pot of the bone to a wheelbarrow-load of loam makes a suitable compost. A little old mushroom or hotbed manure will do no harm, however, and as this has lost its fire it serves as a useful medium, especially in heavy soils.

Geraniums should be firmly potted. This promotes a firm growth; loose potting, the reverse. The ideal location for geraniums is in a light, sunny house with a temperature of 45 to 48 degrees at night. Young stock can be given a few degrees more heat, but the minimum should not exceed 52 degrees, or the plants will lack stockiness.

Many errors are made in overwatering geraniums. They should not be treated like semi-aquatics, or they will become soft. Let them dry out well between waterings. Growth is now quite rapid and the plants will need spreading out occasionally, at which time decaying foliage and seeds should be removed.

Illinois State Florists' Association

MEETING AT CHAMPAIGN.

A Good Attendance.

The Illinois State Florists' Association is in session this week at the State College of Agriculture as the concluding feature of a ten days' horticultural institute conducted by the Illinois State Horticultural Society with the coöperation of several organizations other than that of the florists. The big storm which swept over the state early in the week doubtless did something to keep down the attendance, and especially to reduce the exhibition of cut flowers and plants; also the fact that there has been something doing of interest to florists every day since the opening of the institute, January 31, doubtless has detracted from the attendance on the closing days. Nevertheless, there is a large and representative gathering of the florists of Illinois.

The routine business session was held Wednesday afternoon, February 8, opening with the address of President C. L. Washburn, who spoke in part as follows:

President's Address.

"This is our sixth annual convention and each year has seen a steady growth of this association. We, in this state, have had a very prosperous year and can congratulate ourselves in this respect when comparing ourselves with the trade in the east and also with some other lines of business. Your association is becoming one of the recognized industrial associations of this state and was called on in conjunction with the Chicago Commercial Association, the Illinois Manufacturers' Association and a number of other associations to join in a protest to the Illinois Board of Railway and Warehouse Commissioners against the express companies regarding their high rates. After a long hearing of the case, the board ordered a reduction of twenty per cent on all express rates in this state. This action of the board was immediately contested with an injunction, on the ground that the board had no jurisdiction over the express companies. This, however, will be decided in a short time and I am told that there is no doubt that the express companies will lose their case. They obtained the injunction to gain time and possibly to compromise on a better basis.

"The time of holding our meeting is inconvenient to most of us, for during the latter part of January and the first two or three weeks of February we are right in the midst of our busiest season and it is like pulling teeth to get a florist to leave his business when it is very active. I think if our meetings were held along in the first half of March that more would attend, and certainly a larger number of flowers would be available for a display. A discussion of this point should bring out some good ideas on this subject.

"The matter of federal inspection of plants and Manetti at seaboard points should be taken up, so that when an import shipment has once been inspected at port of entry, that should be sufficient to carry it into any state. This is a matter which has bothered a number receiving shipments direct from across the water."

This was followed by the reports of the secretary and treasurer, which showed the association to be making steady progress. The advisory committee, which has charge of the work for floriculture at the State Experiment Station, presented a lengthy report covering its meetings of the year and the progress of the work at the station greenhouses.

Wednesday evening was given over to the annual banquet of the association.

The program for Thursday, February 9, was as follows:

"Live Issues for the Florist," a paper by J. C. Vaughan, Chicago.
"Some New Things," a paper by E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.
"Work at the Experimental Greenhouses," a paper by H. B. Dorner, who has charge.
Reports of committees, miscellaneous business, election of officers, etc.

The Horticultural Institute.

On the program for the horticultural institute there have been a large number of features of interest to florists. C. L. Washburn, Chicago, read a paper on "Greenhouse Management" February 7. February 4 P. J. Foley, Chicago, read a paper on "Illinois Greenhouses and Their Products." February 2 J. F. Ammann read a paper on "Packing and Shipping Plants and Flowers," and the same day W. N. Rudd was down for an illustrated lecture on "How to Plan Home Grounds." Following an address on the relation of the nursery business to the landscape gardeners by A. M. Augustine, of Normal, Miss Emily Dorner, La Fayette, Ind., was on the program for February 6 for a paper on "Floral Decoration." H. B. Dorner, J. J. Davis, J. C. Blair and others of the university staff talked on scientific subjects of interest to the trade. E. O. Orpet and E. Bollinger, of Lake Forest, were down for papers February 7.

The Exhibition.

The quantity of stock shown was not large, but the quality was high.

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., staged Sunburst, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Rose Queen roses; also Carnation Bonfire.

Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, showed Easter lilies and O. P. Bassett carnations.

Baur & Smith, Indianapolis, sent Carnation Pocahontas.

Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., sent Carnations White Wonder, Gloriosa, and crimson and pink seedlings.

Bertermann Bros. Co., Indianapolis, showed Carnation J. Whitcomb Riley and a pink seedling.

Chicago Carnation Co., Chicago, showed Washington, Princess Charming, May Day, Sangamo, Enchantress, White Enchantress, Mary Tolman and a scarlet seedling.

Washburn & Sons, Bloomington, showed Princess of Wales violets and Paper Whites.

Mt. Greenwood Cemetery, Morgan Park, showed Afterglow, a variegated seedling, and a vase of mixed seedlings.

C. Loveridge, Peoria, showed Herrick and Princess of Wales violets, Golden Spur narcissi, and Beacon, White Enchantress, Bassett, Enchantress, White Perfection and Rose-pink Enchantress carnations.

Henry Baer, Peoria, showed White Enchantress, Rose-pink Enchantress and Enchantress carnations.

A. C. Brown, Springfield, showed Richmond roses and the following carnations: Scarlet Glow, James Whitcomb Riley, Optimo, Clara Mae, Dorothy Gordon, White Perfection, Superba, White Enchantress, Mrs. Ward, Enchantress and Sangamo.

John C. Hatcher, Amsterdam, N. Y., sent excellent strings of Asparagus Hatcheri.

F. B. Smith & Sons, Danville, showed primulas, Lorraines, cyclamens and violets.

I. L. Pillsbury, Galesburg, showed his calyx staple.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, showed heating plans and photographs.

There were no premiums, but each exhibit was given appropriate recognition by the judges, W. J. Keimel, Joseph Kohout and George Asmus.

Those Present.

Among those present Wednesday were the following:

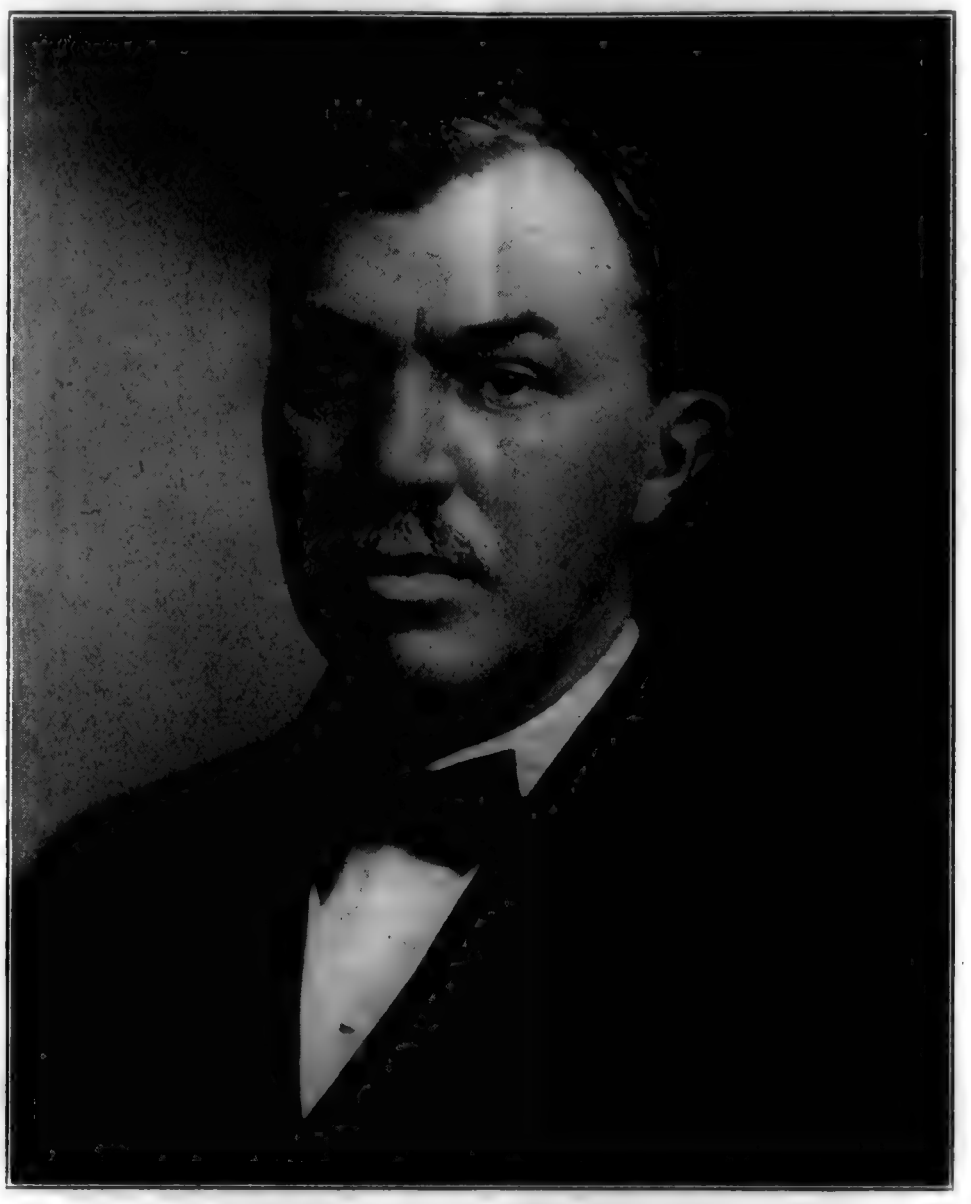
Ammann, J. F., Edwardsville.
Asmus, George, Chicago.
Balsley, Harry, Detroit, Mich.
Benson, Andrew, Hinsdale.
Berning, H. G., St. Louis, Mo.
Bertermann, Irwin, Indianapolis, Ind.
Bollinger, Emil, Lake Forest.
Brown, A. C., Springfield.
Caldwell, H. D., Danville.
Culp, T. A., Pekin.
Edwards, Wm., Onarga.
Eichler, Otto, Chicago.
Evans, J. A., Richmond, Ind.
Foley, P. J., Chicago.
Gullett, C. E., Lincoln.
Hill, E. G., Richmond, Ind.
Howard, H. B., Chicago.
Jack, G. W., Springfield.
Johann, H., Collingsville.
Johnson, C. W., Morgan Park.
Johnson, Henry, Bloomington.
Jones, John, Richmond, Ind.
Keimel, W. J., Elmhurst.
King, A. D., Mattoon.
Kohout, Joseph, Hinsdale.
Lautenschlager, Fred, Chicago.
Longren, A. F., Chicago.
Loveridge, C., Peoria.
McPherson, R. A., Litchfield.
Morris, H. M. and wife, Rantoul.
Mueller, C. P., Wichita, Kan.
Olsem, Peter, Joliet.
Orpet, E. O., Lake Forest.
Palinsky, W. L., Chicago.
Peterson, Andrew, Hoopeston.
Pillsbury, I. L., Galesburg.
Pyfer, A. T., Joliet.
Rudd, W. N., Morgan Park.
Scott, Walter, LaGrange.
Smith, Henry, Peoria.
Smith, Herbert, Danville.
Taylor, C. C., Louisville, Ky.
Washburn, C. L., Chicago.
Washburn, F. L., Bloomington.
Wirt, W. J., Parsons, Kan.
Wood, E. A., Chicago.
Woodyard, R. S., Chicago.

Janesville, Wis.—Though J. T. Fitchett does not give his undivided attention to his dahlias, being a printer as well as a florist, yet he has received first prizes for these flowers, in the professional class, in various exhibitions in the state, and he feels safely within the bounds of truth in stating that he "grows the largest and best collection in this neck o' the woods." He is sending out a little calendar which contains a photograph of a vase or two of his flowers.

GREENHOUSE MANAGEMENT.

[A paper by Charles L. Washburn, of Chicago, read at the horticultural conference at Champaign, Ill., February 7, 1911.]

In giving my ideas on greenhouse management it must be understood that they refer to Beauties, roses, carnations, etc. I am not familiar with the growing of palms, ferns and that class of plants. However, the management is about the same regarding the usual care of watering, ventilating, etc.



The Heating System.

I will suppose, at the beginning, that the greenhouses are well built and of modern construction. The heating is the first subject we shall take up—it is absolutely necessary that a good circulation is obtained of either hot water or steam. The pipes must be so arranged that they will easily drain back to a tank, whence the condensation can be pumped into the boilers. The circulation is the main foundation plank of successful heating, as either hot water or steam, with perfect circulation, will do better work with a less amount of fuel than when the returns have to be forced around by pressure. The boiler capacity in every greenhouse heating plant should be at least fifty per cent larger than what was figured as the rated capacity required, as the most economical way of firing a boiler is to burn an even fire without forcing it. If the boilers have to be forced to their full capacity, a large amount of heat escapes up the chimney.

The heating plant and the greenhouses themselves should be thoroughly overhauled and all repairs made during the summer months. All broken glass should be replaced and the woodwork thoroughly painted. If any of the outside sheathing has rotted or broken away it should be repaired and made snug and warm. The drain-pipes should be carefully looked after to see that none are broken, for greenhouses require good drainage in order to keep good, fresh air under the benches.

Planting the Houses.

We now come to the matter of planting the houses. When removing the old soil from the benches it is best to thoroughly clean and whitewash the benches if they are of wood. Have the benches well repaired, so that all will be lined up in good shape. The new soil is one of the principal features of the success for the coming season's operations. This soil should be mixed the previous fall and left in a pile all winter, so as to get well mellowed. When the soil pile is being made it should be composted of at least one-third well-rotted manure and one-quarter good fibrous sod, the balance good black soil with about twenty per cent of clay in it. This should be thoroughly mixed, both when put up in the pile and again when ready to spread on the benches. A soil pulverizer should be used if possible. This will give us a splendid bench soil for the growing of either roses or carnations. Our plants for own use should be the best that can be procured. Our own firm has found out, from years of experience, that the best young plants that we can grow we must save for ourselves. We have made a practice of keeping track of the best blooming plants in the benches of both roses and carnations and propagating exclusively from that stock. By carefully following this plan we have raised the flowering quality of our plants fully ten per cent over our former average.

Charles L. Washburn, President Illinois State Florists' Association.

I want to impress this point on every greenhouse man—that the best young stock possible is the cheapest in the end, and the stronger and larger the stock is at the time of planting the better the results will be.

As a general rule, early planting is always advisable. With roses replanting should start by June 1 and be completed by not later than the middle of July. In a large place some replanting is done in April and May, in order to commence cutting new stock in August.

With carnations I would advise the planting of part of the stock indoors. Those plants that have been grown in the field should be well cared for and constantly cultivated. Pinching in the field is necessary, so that our plants will be well bushed out, with three to five branches. It is best to have the field plants all benched by the middle of August.

Grafted Versus Own Root Stock.

In roses there is considerable controversy over which is best to plant, the own root or the grafted. From our own experience we find that grafted plants produce the best results in Maid, Bride, Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond. However, the grafted plants require more careful attention during the cool nights of August and the early fall. The fires should be started just as soon as the night temperature drops to 50 degrees, as otherwise mildew will form. The wood and foliage of the young grafted plants are much softer than on similar plants of own root stock, and in consequence are more susceptible to a cold night.

In the early stages of growth in the benches we must remember that our young plants are simply a large family of children and they require the most careful attention to develop good, strong bodies. We must be careful as to their food and drink, seeing that they have plenty of water, good food and plenty of fresh air. The soil around the plants in summer should be scratched over with a hand-scratcher, and by the last part of August a light mulch of manure should be put on the benches to keep the soil from baking and cracking, for by this time the roots will be working towards the surface and scratching must stop. This is an important feature. It is better to spend a little more money on heating and give the plants plenty of fresh air than to keep the ventilators closed all night or with only a small crack of air on.

Fumigation.

Our plants will be less liable to mildew if grown with plenty of air; also thrips and other insects can be more easily gotten rid of from good, strong, healthy stock than from weak plants. The steam pipes should have a little dab of sulphur put on twice a week as soon as steam is turned on.

We found a good preparation for keeping thrips and other insects down to be a solution consisting of one pound Paris green, five pounds brown sugar and twenty gallons of water. This preparation should be sprayed on the plants when the sun is not shining, or late in the afternoon, and left on until the next syringing is done. A few applications will suffice to keep the plants free, and it is a cheap preventive. A little later it is a good idea to paint the pipes with nicotine solutions. This fumigation should be kept up the whole season; also the putting on of a light dose of sulphur on the pipes should be kept up. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and this especially applies to plant pests and diseases. The care of the plants in tying up should commence as soon as possible, as the careful training of the young growth will be a great help to the future production of good stock.

Roses usually take about four months on own root stock and three months on grafted stock from the time of benching before we can commence to cut any flowers. It should be our idea to get a crop of flowers in September and again the last of October. This will bring our plants in crop for the holidays. It takes four to six weeks between crops in the fall and almost eight weeks in November and December.
